Burns Ave. Kid Pix Program

Mrs. Kessler fingerprints Jen Lawson during Kid Pix Program while Burns Avenue classmates Anand Kumar and Samir Narang look on.

Volunteers Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Damiano, photographers at the Burns Avenue Kid Pix Program.

In connection with Child Protection Month, the Burns Avenue School Health and Safety Committee arranged the Kid Pix Program which was held on November 10, after school.

The committee, consisting of Mrs. Barbara Becker, Mrs. Anne Chin, and Mrs. Weintraub, the School Nurse, arranged for the training of six volunteers from the PTA at Police Headquarters in Mineola with Officer Franzone of the Public Relations Department. Officer Franzone trained the volunteers in how to properly fingerprint the children as well as how to photograph them. The prints and pictures were given to the parents to keep safely at home.

Through the terrific and speedy efforts of Mrs. M. Ford and Mrs. Damiano working the camera, Mrs. Romanelli registering the children, Mrs. Kessler, Mrs. Viana, Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Weintraub fingerprinting the children, approximately one hundred Burns Avenue students and their siblings were taken care of.

Davis Running For Re-Election

Clifford G. Davis has announced his candidacy for re-election for the five year term of Hicksville Fire Commissioner. Voting will be held Tuesday, December 8, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Station One, 20 East Marie St., Hicksville. Mr. Davis served twenty-one years as a Fire Commissioner, and is an Ex-Chief of the Hicksville Fire Department. He is a third generation Hicksville firefighter, having served 44 years with the Hicksville Fire Department, and has resided in the Hicksville Fire District his entire life. He is an active member of County, State and International Firematic Associations, a Past President of the Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Hicksville, the Executive Council of Firematic Associations of Nassau County, Nassau County Fire Chiefs Council, and the South Shore Firemans Association. He also served as Chairman of the Nassau County Fire Commission, and Chairman of the Ninth Battalion Fire District. Mr. Davis was a local businessman in Hicksville for over 30 years and presently is retired from the Building Department for the Town of Oyster Bay. He also served as Director for Nassau County in the Firefighters Burn Center Foundation, (for better burn care for the people in the Long Island and New York area). Anyone who is a registered voter in the Hicksville Fire District may vote.

No other candidate is opposing Mr. Davis.

Fork Celebrates Readers' Day

National Young Readers' Day at Fork Lane School: Mrs. Bergeron's third grade class shared their reading skills with the school's kindergarteners.

Fork Lane School students recently celebrated National Young Readers' Day. Sponsored by the Center for the Book in the Library of Congress and Pizza Hut, the day is designed to motivate children to call attention to the joys and importance of reading for America's children. The children participated in a variety of reading activities throughout the day. Teachers narrated and presented their production of "Little Red Riding Hood." Students shared reading skills with schoolmates, viewed a special broadcast from Oklahoma City and enjoyed a reading of "The Fantastic Mr. Fox" by the High School theatre group.

In addition, the students are currently involved with the Book-It Program, a five-month reading incentive program. The program, designed to motivate children to read more, both at home and at school, rewards children for their reading accomplishments.

'Happy Birthday'

Bertha Kunzig, center, a long-time active member of the Theodore Roosevelt Republican Club, is wished a happy 86th birthday by her grandson, Town of Oyster Bay Councilman Leonard Kunzig and his wife Donna at a recent meeting of the Bethpage organization.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

Watching Street Stories on TV I saw Elvin or Alvin Bale and Shawn Thomas being shot from a cannon at Clyde Beauty-Cole Circus. He was injured years ago and Young Shawn has taken over. They stated the idea was started by Hugo Zucchini, who I mentioned in a previous month. He came from Germany where he perfected the shot and I saw him do his act out of the cannon in the 20's on Eisemann's Farm on the corner of Newbridge and Old Country Road now a shopping center.

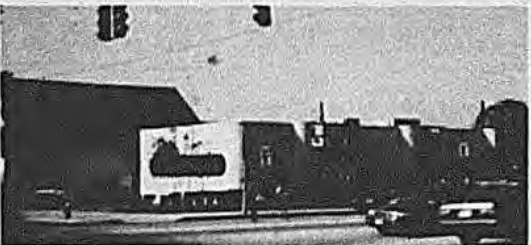

A definition of a nudist is a person who goes coatless and vestless with trousers to match. Some where I came across an old item about Our National Birds, The American Eagle and the Thanksgiving Turkey. May one give us peace in all our states and the other a piece for all our plates. Not being a hunter I thought it was a new item when a friend received a Deer Whistle for her car. On the phone the word came as dear. I though she was getting desperate for friends, so I got educated.

Before 1937 Fire destroyed the entire corner; Sweet Shop on the corner, 5 & 20 Store and Seaman, Tallafarro & Eisemann upstairs.

Entire new building after fire with Bahrenburg Bakery on corner later Engler's

Present day corner after Broadway road widening - Corner is W. Marie Street & Broadway.

Folkerth-Goerke Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goerke

Andrew Goerke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Goerke of Hicksville, was married to Susan Folkerth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Folkerth of Williamsville, New York, on September 12, in St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church, Williamsville.

The Rev. Vernon Victorson and Monsignor David Gallivan of Sta. Peter and Paul Catholic Church, Williamsville, performed the ceremony. Attending the groom was his brother, Robert Goerke as best man and Brian Goerke and Robert Franz, all of Hicksville, as groomsmen. The maid of honor was Beth Brody of Rochester and the bridesmaids were Dale Rachowitz of Plainview and Donna Schall of Darien Center.

The bride, a staff occupational therapist in St. Vincent Health Center, Erie, Pa, is a graduate of Williamsville East High School and SUNY Buffalo. The bridegroom is a graduate of Hicksville High School and SUNY Farmingdale. He is a computer supervisor for Chemical Bank in Hicksville.

The newly married couple honeymooned in Hawaii and are presently residing in Hicksville, and Erie, Pa.

Student Of The Month

As part of the program at Nassau Technological Center, teachers select, on a monthly basis, the Student of the Month.

For the month of October, Richard McMahon was selected in his Building Maintenance Occupations class and John Calise was selected in his Construction Electricity class. Both students attend Hicksville High School. During the month, these two students surpassed their classmates in production, attitude, study and safety.

United Way Kick-Off

Nassau County Executive Thomas S. Gulotta, right, greeted Department Coordinator Helen R. Behan, a Hicksville resident, center, at the Kick-Off for the 1992 Nassau County Employee's Campaign of the United Way which was recently held. Helen is with the Nassau County Comptroller's Office.

Looking on was Jennifer Humphreys, Associate Campaign Director, United Way.

Memorial's 10th Anniversary

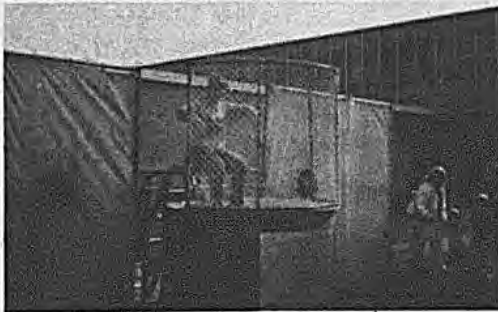

Bob Kretzmer, right, of Bethpage and Ray Flanagan of Hicksville unfurl the POW/MIA flag upon arriving in Washington D.C. on Veterans Day. Both men, who are members of the Vietnam Veterans of America, Nassau County Chapter #82, were joined by a bus-load of Long Island veterans who went to Washington for ceremonies commemorating the 10th Anniversary of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

Homecoming Fair

Hicksville High School's Homecoming was so much fun. People love to try to win a goldfish at Woody's wheel. Pictured are Rosemary Dikeman and Rosemary Spindler.

Ms. Abbriano, one of Woodland's gym teachers, in the dunking tank.

Award Recipient Congratulated

Nassau County Executive Thomas S. Gulotta, (right), congratulated Curator of Life Science at the Nassau County Department of Recreation and Parks Carole Ryder, a Hicksville resident, on behalf of the department's receipt of the NACo Award, (National Association of Counties). The department was specifically recognized for its outstanding Nature Preserve Management.

Everything you need to close down a crackhouse.

You aren't helpless when crime invades your neighborhood. You're fully capable of helping police and they're ready to show you how.

The case of The Stanton Park Stand-off.

When crack moved into a row house on a quiet block of Stanton Park, folks decided to serve an eviction notice.

They met with police to find out what they could do to keep drugs out of their neighborhood.

The cops told them to keep an eye out—to let police know whenever something suspicious happened. They began to notice faces. They wrote down license numbers of strange cars. They noted the times of odd behavior.

They worked with each other.

They worked with the police.

Armed with field glasses, note pads and telephones, folks kept track of the neighborhood.

Within one month, enough evidence had been gathered. Police moved in. Crack moved out.

Citizen participation beat crime

Village School Mother's Night

Shelly Wool

Mothers, teachers and guests had a fun-filled evening at the Woodbury country Club!

A delicious dinner was served, accompanied with music by D.J. Mike Thomas (Mike Thomas Music) throughout the evening.

Fabulous fashions were coordinated by Marlene's Place, Berry Hill Road, Syosset. Our very attractive models (some of our PTA Executive staff) looked absolutely stunning in all of Marlene's fashions.

After the fashions were presented, everyone anxiously waited to have their number(s) called in the picking of raffles, donated by local store merchants.

A special thank you to Janet Gordon, Joan DiGregorio and Debbie Ziolkowski for making this event possible and a great success!

Juniors Receive Class Rings

Maintaining an age-old tradition, two hundred High School Juniors received their class rings at a Ring Dance on November 12. The students, who turned another very special page in the scrapbook of High School memories, spent the evening dancing and "turning" each other's ring. Winners of the Free Ring Drawing were Nora Elbedeeve and Stephen DiGirolamo.

Local Student Gets Scholarship

Robert Grote, a resident of Hicksville, is one of 56 recipients of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants (NYSSCPA) Excellence in Accounting Scholarship. Grote, an accounting major at St. John's University, will receive $1,250 per academic year.

Lee Ave. School Spirit

Demonstrating their school spirit for Principal, Kathy Catania, are Lee Avenue School students Kelly McCullough, Heather Scanlon, Pamela Quinlan, Ryan Klupt, and David Wertl. The students wore their school jerseys and ties as part of the recent "Lee Day" celebration.

Walt Whitman Children's Book Week

National Children's Book Week began Monday, November 16 at the Walt Whitman School with the goal of "Lighting Up Our Lives With Reading relay. Each class had the reading torch for its reading period after which a torch bearer passed the torch on to the next class.

Passing The Reading Torch from first graders (on the left) Heather Ajanman, Drew Botwinick (Hidden), and Robb Kalkstein to kindergartners Amy Dorfman and Scott Kogel.

On Tuesday, Master Storyteller Hal Kuebler delighted students on every grade level with his tales from foreign countries. Storyteller Hal Kuebler sharing his tales with kindergartners and teacher Mary Ann Marriott.

A survey was conducted among parents to determine the book that was their favorite when they were children. selections included "Pippi Longstocking" and "Charlotte's Web." Third graders Blake Rieter and Marc Roitman share a story with Kindergartners.

Resident Retires

Nassau County Executive Thomas S. Gulotta, right, congratulated George Yochman, a Bethpage resident, on behalf of his retirement from his position as Deputy Commissioner of the Nassau County Department of General Services. The celebration was held at Spencer's Restaurant in Woodbury.

Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pie

Lee Avenue Kindergartners proudly display their "choice" pumpkins on a recent trip to Hicks Nursery in Westbury.

The children enjoyed feeding the animals, as well as picking pumpkins.

Senior Celebration

Hicksville residents Lloyd and Joan Rose receive a copy of the Golden Link newsletter from LILCO Senior Program Coordinator Suzanne Putzi during "Senior Appreciation Day" at Chemical Bank. Seniors had an opportunity to learn all of the many services and cost saving ideas that LILCO offers as part of its Golden Link program. To find out more, senior citizens can call the info-line at 800-542-4111.

On Saturday evening, November 14, the Hicksville High School Gymnasium was transformed into a musical extravaganza. The families of the Hicksville High School Marching Comets had come together for the "Espirit De Corps" dinner. Espirit De Corps literally translated means The Spirit Of The Group. Everyone had brought a homemade dish and a salad or dessert. What a smorgasbord! The Espirit De Corps dinner marks the end of the marching band season. It is the time for sharing the memories of the years competition and comparing them to past years. For the Freshman it is a time to realize that they now have a years experience under their belt. For the seniors it is a time to reflect on all of their wonderful achievements accomplished over the last four years. Close friendships, discipline learned, that will carry them through the rest of their lives. The Band Parents put on a skit which depicted the 29 seniors which will be leaving the band at graduation, in the year 2028, their 25th High School Reunion. The script was written by David Master, former Band Parent President. The kids took the ribbing with good humor. Videos from summer band clinic and the Giant Stadium Championships were shown. Hicksville competing against strong bands from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania placed 9th overall with a score of 82.10. All of the members of the band as well as the staff should be very proud of their accomplishments.

Section leaders gave out individual achievement awards to each member of their particular section. Diana De Palma, current Band Parent Association President, gave a very moving speech thanking all of the parents for their continued support financially as well as practically with hundreds of man hours put in fund raising, getting equipment repaired, or loaded on the truck, or being a chaperone on all those bus trips to competitions. Mr. Jim McRoy, Band Director thanked the students and the parents for a year full of hard work and dedication.

ARE YOU OVERLOOKING LONG ISLAND'S WILDEST NIGHTLIFE?

The black-crowned night heron (Nycticorax nycticorax) is a mostly nocturnal native Long Islander who is highly discriminating. You won't find him at just any watering hole. And for dinner the fish had better be fresh, the ambience unhurried.

You might say the black-crowned night heron is a hard bird to please. But The Nature Conservancy has been working hard for 40 years to provide the night heron and hundreds of other animals and plants the finest accommodations available on Long Island.

We've saved 30,000 acres of ecologically significant land on Long Island alone, from the last 19-acre remnant of the Hempstead Plains to our 2,000-acre Mashomack Sanctuary on Shelter Island. Nationwide, we've preserved nearly 6 million acres of forest, prairie, desert, island, and mountain. And our international program is fighting to save the world's rapidly vanishing rain forest. You can help The Nature Conservancy do its vitally important work. For $25, far less than you'd spend in an evening at one of Long Island's hottest night spots, you can become a member of the Long Island Chapter. You will receive the Long Island Chapter Newsletter and The Nature Conservancy Magazine to keep you informed of Conservancy activities. As a member of the Long Island Chapter, you can participate in hikes and education programs led by experienced naturalists, and you are welcome to volunteer to take part in Chapter operations.

If you're concerned about Long Island—not just about its native flora and fauna but also about the water we drink, the air we breathe, and the quality of life here—we urge you to give us a hand. Just call (516)367-3225. You can help protect your environment. And you can have a wild time!

Please enroll me as a member of The Nature Conservancy. My $25.00 check is enclosed.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you favor a two term limit on Congressional and Senatorial seats?

INPUT Callers Mixed Ideas On Clinton

There were mixed answers to the Question of the Week on whether Clinton will have it better with party controlling Congress in answer to this question: "Now that we have a President in the same party as Congress do you think the country will be better off?" Here are some of the answers:

BETTER OFF

I think the country will be much better off with the Congress and the President in the same party. In recent years the voting public seems to believe that electing a Democratic Congress and Republican President is helpful in that the President of a different party will tend to restrain Congress so that it does not spend too much money. Unfortunately in recent years we have gridlock. Bills are not passed. There is tremendous hostility between the Executive branch and the Legislative branch. The people and the public suffer because of this. This has also happened at the state level. Especially in the state of Connecticut. It happened when an independent governor was elected several years ago and the legislature was controlled by the Democrats. Again gridlock occurred. I think that President Elect Clinton has started off on the right foot and met with Congressional leaders. He seems to have read history correctly in trying to avoid the mistakes other Democratic Presidents encountered. Jimmy Carter alienated several Congressional leaders in 76. J.K.M.

NOT BETTER OFF

I don't think the country will be better off with Clinton, let alone with Clinton and a Democratic Congress. I think we are going to return to the Carter years. Jimmy had a Congress of the same party and he couldn't do anything. Inflation was high, the country lost face all over the world with hostages being taken. Nothing went well. I voted for Bush and wish that other people had. Now we will just have to suffer. H.V.

NOT REALLY DEMOCRATS

It is only mythical that the Congress is majority Democratic. The Southern Democrats have always been more conservative than many Republicans. Clinton will have to have some good bills or they won't get passed. He will be afraid to veto any big spending bills because he will be afraid of losing friends in his own party. No. I don't think things will be better. I think we are all set for every group that advocates something for itself getting in with laws that will be unfair to many people and the spending that will accompany them will be a burden in the future. N.D.

GOOD CHANCE

I think that Clinton has a good chance with a Congress of his own party. He certainly cannot say what Bush said that it was all the fault of Congress. If things don't get done it will now be the fault of the President. We gave him the tools. Now let's see some action. M.S.

LOCAL SPENDING

Congress, no matter what party is in power will always be difficult to handle. The trouble is that the members have to keep the re-election wheels well greased back home and they will always be looking more at how spending will be in their district and benefit them than how it will benefit the entire country. J.F.

GOOD PRESIDENT

I think Clinton will be a good President. I don't think we know enough about him but I believe he will be more independent than most Presidents have been. He won't be beholden to big business, yet he is not a radical liberal. I think he will be great. V.F.

HOPES FOR BEST

Quite honestly, with the President giving allegiance to the same party as Congress, I believe that he is going to have a more difficult time than one might expect. I can't help but feel that the Democratic Congressmen and Senators will be expecting President Clinton to give them a major degree of support whatever weakness in their proposed legislation might be clearly evident. I believe it would just be expecting too much to look to the minority Republican representatives to provide the necessary correction or balance especially when the Democratic constituents would obviously be looking for major support of bills clearly in their favor. As a possible indication, an article in today's New York Times is headlined "Aides Say Clinton Might Back Deficit Spending as Growth Stimulus." Mr. Clinton's spokesman stated that the President-elect and Congressional leaders had agreed on a two-pronged approach: an economic stimulus, like new public works spending, to give an immediate jolt to the economy combined with deficit reduction "over the long haul." Perhaps a cooperative Congress might infuse these words with improved performance but they don't make me feel at this point in time that "the country will be better off" but I do hope so. P.G.S.

Eulogy For A Pet

By William Wrigg

He was brought to us twelve years ago by our married daughter who found him, in sub-freezing weather, rolling around in an empty garbage can in front of her house. Since she owned two dogs, neither of which would peacefully share their domicile with a feline intruder, we were designated temporary custodians until my daughter was able to "find a suitable home for him." Of course that was twelve years ago.

He was the fourth cat that found its way to our house, all via one of our children. But this time it seemed a little ridiculous that my oldest, married daughter would be bringing another to us, especially at this period of our life. His arrival coincided with our plans for retirement which were pretty well set and which entailed a good deal of travel. The last thing we needed was the responsibility of another pet, especially since we were the only ones now at home to care for him.

For quite sometime, whenever my daughter came over to our house, I would greet her only half-jokingly with the query: "What about that nice, suitable home you were going to find the cat?" His indefinite status, up to then, can perhaps be best understood by the fact that my wife got to calling him just Pet, which became his moniker for the next twelve years.

As time wore on, my queries to our daughter became less and less frequent. Not only did the cat develop a really great personality but he was a fine looking cat, almost a dead ringer for Morris whose TV antics seemed so like Pet's - at least, we interpreted it that way. And before the winter was over, our house was his.

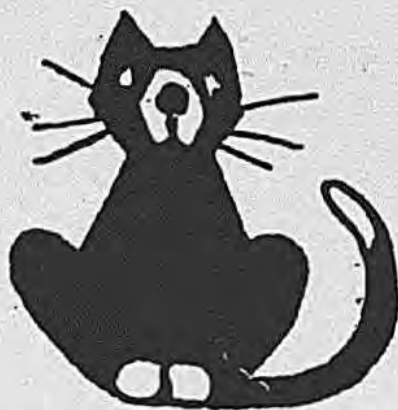

As with all proud "parents," it would be easy to go on and on about how exceptional was Pet. When I retired, he would follow me about the yard, as I did some gardening or other chores, more like a faithful pooch than an independent feline. But he could exert his independence in very definite ways. Sometimes when I would open the back door to let him in, he'd mope and I would apply the toe of my shoe very gently to his rear-end to move him into the house faster, especially in winter time. This was an affront to his dignity, and he would often stop dead in his tracks and give a withering look. If I persisted in nudging him on, he was not beyond giving me a hiss and/or a swat.

Perhaps what I admired most about Pet was that he seemed to know no fear. If my daughter's dogs should menace him, he would not run, but just sit on his haunches until the dog came within reach and he'd let go with a one-two-swat that matched the speed of Sugar Ray or Ali. Soon her dogs, and others in the neighborhood, learned to keep their distance, although they might continue to bark a lot. Pet would ignore all the barking and hoopla, treating it with disdain as well as the big oafs from whence it came. To paraphrase the parlance of bullfight aficionados, Pet was definitely a bravo gato (brave cat).

The neighbors just across the street had no pets, mainly because the man of the house suffered from allergies. But whenever he was on business trips, his wife and kids welcomed Pet with delectable dishes, the favorite being cooked chicken livers. After dining, and giving out with a little after dinner entertainment, Pet would take off up the stairs and jump up to the foot of the master-bed and stay all night if he was allowed, as if he was keeping the mistress of the house company while her husband was on the road. But once the husband's car re-appeared in the driveway, he was out of there, confining himself to the back patio, or the kitchen area if one of the children would sneak him in the house. A few years after retirement, my father who lived upstate about 125 miles away, had to undergo radical surgery for a condition that soon became terminal. For over a year we traveled upstate every weekend, and sometimes more frequently as the end came near. On the first trip up, Pet was a little leery about getting into the car. But once inside, he quickly adapted, finding a comfortable spot on the ledge between the top of the backseat and the rear window. From his vantage point, he could survey the traffic from the sides and rear. Needless to say he was the focus of attention from the occupants of other cars, and when we stopped for a traffic light, waves and sometimes kisses were blown his way, all of which were taken in stride as if he more than deserved to be the focus of such adoration and affection.

The family homestead upstate, in which my father had lived for more than sixty years, was a huge ten room house that had been built back in the '20's. Pet became quickly adapted to it, as he had to the car; only now he had ten huge rooms to explore. He quickly learned that the kitchen was where he'd find his food and water. In the cellar he would have to go if he needed the litter box, and upstairs were five bedrooms to choose from for his resting place. The rooms on the south were preferred due to the warm sun that poured in by day. When the hot summer weather arrived, Pet was to be found in the bedrooms on the shady side of the house. Comfort always had a high priority with Pet.

My dad, who I can never remember being particularly fond of any of the pets, dogs or cats, that we had around the house as kids, soon began to show some affection for Pet, and it wasn't too long before Pet felt welcome enough to sit on his lap and be the recipient of the gently head scratching that dad had ascertained was the preferred spot to apply his affection. As my father's condition deteriorated, and only infrequently did he sit upright in his armchair for any period of time, Pet seemed to recognize and accept the fact that my father's pain and discomfort had caused him to lose interest in their daily get-togethers as well as most other things; so he would jump up on my dad's lap only if invited.

When my father passed away, and it was no longer necessary for the trips upstate, Pet rediscovered the joy of spending time outdoors, visiting his favorite haunts, especially a wooded area just adjacent to our house. Here he could be found chasing the squirrels, and birds, and catching the small field mice which were his favorite prey. It was as if he were making up for the time lost in traveling to the upstate house where he was confined almost exclusively indoors. As he became older the chasing became secondary, and more time was spent basking in the sun just out of range of the shade caused by a small honeysuckle tree that was on the edge of the wooded area. In winter, he went out less and less, and rarely for any extended period of time.

The end came for Pet quite swiftly and unexpectedly. My wife noticed he began drooling quite a bit and at first we joked about "ole" Pet starting to show his age. But his appetite remained hearty as did his desire to go outside when the weather was warm. Then suddenly we noticed he was drinking a great deal of water and the drooling became worse. We took him to the local vet's office and were completely unprepared for his diagnosis. The drooling was caused not by a bad tooth as we surmised, but to ulcerations on the inside of his mouth resulting from an uremic condition caused by kidney failure. Blood tests revealed that both kidneys combined were functioning at only about 12% capacity.

The diagnosis was terminal; we might have him undergo a flushing procedure which could be painful, and would certainly cause much apprehension for the cat when the flushing apparatus (tubes, etc.) had to be hooked up. The other choice was to take him back home, administer antibiotic drops to clear up the ulcerations and then bring him back to the vet if he showed signs of pain or other chronic discomfort. It was the opinion of the vet that this stage would be reached in a week or less.

Actually more than double the time elapsed before Pet reached this last stage. During the final few days he rarely came up from the basement where he slept in a cardboard box lined with his favorite afghan blanket that he still enjoyed kneading on. His appetite diminished to eating just a little moist cat food and small bowls of milk. I took our portable TV down to the basement and would sit by him, scratching his head while watching my favorite programs. Up until the last day, he continued to purr when we came down to feed or sit by him. And despite decreasing strength, he always managed to get from the afghan to his litter box; Pet was to maintain his dignity to the very end.

On the final day, we made an appointment with the vet to put him to sleep. After regular office hours, when none of the other patients would be about, we pulled up to the back door of the vet's office. My wife went in first to see if all was in readiness for the lethal injection. Meanwhile, I remained back in the car with Pet who was lying on his favorite afghan right beside me. Then one of the most touching things occurred: he used the strength that remained to move off the afghan over to my lap. I lost complete control of my emotions. Tears began to stream down in torrents, unlike anything I could remember, even back to my childhood. When my wife came out to tell me all was ready in the vet's office, she joined in with her own sobbing, which was the way the vet found us both when we handed Pet over to him.

Because of the terrible stories that had recently appeared in the press and on TV, about the scandalous way animal remains had been found in local pet cemeteries, I decided to dig a deep enough grave to bury Pet on his favorite spot, by the honeysuckle tree in the wooded area near our home. That is where he rests today, and although we buried him there almost a year ago, I still get a pang of sadness whenever I pass the spot or look over that way from our kitchen window.

Pet's passing away has made me think a great deal about the role reversal that takes place as one grows older. Whenever a pet died in earlier years, I never had a problem "handling it", and it was always easy to assume the "Big-

Wine Talk

By Richard Nalley

If Sauvignon/Fume Blanc were a TV show, it would be ready to move to prime time.

The crisp, dry, white wine with herbal flavors is gaining audience share, and not only because it's relatively affordable in recession time.

The wines from the 1990 and 1991 vintages demonstrate the growing confidence of America's producers, and their willingness to let Sauvignon be Sauvignon.

In a market where fruity, often off-dry Chardonnay is king, Sauvignon/Fume Blanc's generally leaner, more acidic quality and herbal or "grassy" flavors have sometimes faced an uphill battle with consumers. The fact is, however, that the wineries themselves are mostly to blame for this.

On the one hand, many Sauvignon Blancs have seethed with overly aggressive green pepper and green bean flavors, which many drinkers, not surprisingly, find off-putting.

The herbal qualities of Sauvignon or Fume Blanc (whichever name the winery chooses to use) should be one strain of flavor among many — it's a nuance, not a rolling pin over the head.

Perhaps in reaction to this, other Sauvignon/Fume Blancs were being stripped of their varietal distinctiveness and turned into Chardonnay clones at best or dull "house white" wines at worst.

You can still find plenty of wines answering both these descriptions (not all of them American, by any means), but the food-loving crispness and multi-faceted flavors of melon, fig, menthol, lemon and herb that make Sauvignon/Fume Blanc so pleasurable are now turning up in record numbers of wines that you can find without hiring a private detective.

For the most part, American producers have followed the Bordeaux model in blending Sauvignon Blanc with Semillon for extra roundness and melony character, and given the wine aging time in small oak barrels.

Others have opted for the fresher, crisper taste of the Sancerre/Pouilly Fume style of the Loire that de-emphasizes wood contact and relies on Sauvignon Blanc alone. In theory, the label "Fume Blanc" (a reversal of the Loire's "Blanc-Fume") should signal the latter style of wine, but in practice the two names are used interchangeably.

It was an inventive colleague who reminded me of something the food world calls the "power-house grain."

She was out of bulgar wheat and ready to make tabbouleh — the Middle Eastern dish that combines bulgar with tomatoes, fresh parsley, oil and lemon juice. She substituted quinoa, the super grain, and was pleased with the tasty results.

Without knowing it, she also got a nutritional boost: quinoa (pronounce it KEEN-wa, not phonetically like it looks) is a complete protein grain.

Unlike other, more familiar grains, quinoa supplies all the essential amino acids, which is especially important to vegetarians or consumers who eat little meat.

It is particularly rich in the

Q. I do not understand why American restaurants continue to use French wording on their menus. Not long ago, I ate in a place where various dishes were described as "A l'Espagnole," "a la Grecque," and "a l'Anglaise." Telling diners that the foods were prepared in the Spanish, Greek, or English manner was not very helpful!

A. French cuisine is considered by many people to be the best in the world so it is not surprising that many terms dealing with food preparation are derived from the French!

Your waiter would have been pleased to inform you that a dish served "a l'Espagnole" is combined with tomatoes, onions and olives. One which is "a la Grecque" has a sauce of olive oil, lemon, spices and peppercorns. Anything served "a l'Anglaise" is boiled.

Don't be intimidated by French (or Italian, German, etc.) expressions on menus. Those terms are not difficult to master and after a time you will begin to see they are a useful "shorthand" for the diner, telling him about methods of food preparation and ingredients.

Q. Next month my husband and I will be entertaining out of town business associates. While they are here we expect to take them out one evening for dinner. While price is no problem (because the company will cover our expenses), we are a little nervous about where to take them. It is the first time we will be meeting our guests and we have no idea what their tastes are!

A. When you entertain people you do not know well it is best to choose a "classic" restaurant with French or American cuisine, rather than one which serves more specialized food. Once you select a likely place it might be a good idea to try it once before your guests come if you haven't eaten there lately. That way you would make sure the food and service are satisfactory at the present time. Always remember that restaurants can change!

Q. I notice that some people pick up wine glasses by the bowl. However, I think it looks more elegant to pick them up by the stem. What is your opinion?
A. I agree with you that it is more attractive to pick wine glasses up by the stem. In the case of white wine, it also keeps the wine cool for a longer time!

Q. I am a busy professional woman who finds it difficult to entertain at home. My working hours as an attorney are long and tiring. I really don't feel like coping with guests on the weekend. Would it be all right to repay my social obligations by inviting people to dine out?
A. Certainly that would be proper. Social obligations do not have to be repaid on a strictly tit-for-tat basis. Your friends would enjoy a delicious dinner in a relaxed restaurant atmosphere more than an at-home meal served by a hostess whose sense is harried and exhausted.

Q. Recently I attended an elegant wedding and I noticed that the champagne was served in a tulip shaped glass rather than the traditional broad brimmed type. Is this something new?
A. It is a fairly new idea. The theory now is that a tulip shaped glass preserves the effervescence (bubbles) of champagne longer than a wide brimmed glass.

Q. Is it proper to tip soup or dessert dishes? And when is soup eaten with a spoon? I sometimes see people drinking bouillon, etc. directly from a cup. Is this correct?
C.T.

A. The tipping of a soup or dessert dish is acceptable if the plate is tipped away from the spoon, not toward the eater. Soup or bouillon served in a handled cup or (Oriental fashion) small, cup sized bowl may be drunk. If there are vegetables or other garnish floating on top, these may be lifted off with the spoon before the soup is drunk. Noodles or other things which may be in the bottom of the cup are spooned up after the liquid has been drunk.

COOKS' BOOKS

Down to basics with Mediterranean spices

By Charles Britton

"Sweet Basil, Garlic, Tomatoes and Chives" by Diana Shaw; Harmony; $20.
 "Gourmet Grains, Beans and Rice" by Doty Griffith; Taylor; $17.95.

Put the titles of these two books together and you have the makings of a complete meal — and a good one, too.
 "Sweet Basil" etc. offers us the vegetarian dishes of Tuscany and Provence, an admirable choice. But there's a certain levity, in the original sense of lightweight, to this production. Author Diana Shaw, a free-lancer who contributes to a number of magazines, writes as though the regards Provence and Tuscany as having a single cuisine, an opinion not widely shared in those two regions, where local traditions run strong.

Her grasp of geography is not much surer. Reading Shaw's preface and introduction, you could conclude that Provence and Tuscany were adjoining. That requires you to overlook Liguria (around Genoa) and Emilia-Romagna (with Bologna, the gastronomic capital of Italy), both of which are in the way.

Then here's another thing: The chives of the title aren't especially characteristic of the cooking in either of the regions Shaw covers. As a matter of fact, I have just paged through the book and found chives mentioned in only five of the 125 or so recipes. Oh, well, there's plenty of basil, garlic and tomatoes, and it's impossible to cavil when Shaw dishes up earthy food like this.

IL TORTINO CON ZUCCHINI (Zucchini and Rice Torte)

- Coarse salt
 3 medium zucchini, chopped
 2 tablespoons olive oil
 1 small onion, chopped
 2 cups cooked white or brown rice
 1 cup bread crumbs
 4 eggs, lightly beaten
 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

2 teaspoons dried oregano, crumbled
 Salt, pepper to taste
 1 tablespoon unsalted butter, cut into small pieces

Yields 4 to 6 servings.
 Salt zucchini and toss it well to distribute salt evenly. Set aside to drain for 30 minutes. Rinse zucchini with fresh water and dry thoroughly with paper towels.

Heat olive oil in skillet and saute onion until soft and translucent, about 7 minutes. Add zucchini and saute until cooked through, about 5 to 8 minutes more.

Stir in rice and half the bread crumbs. Continue to saute, stirring, until well blended. Heat oven to 425 F.

Transfer mixture to mixing bowl; stir in eggs, cheese and oregano. Season with salt and pepper. Pour into an 8-inch tart pan. Distribute butter and remaining bread crumbs over top. Bake about 40 minutes, until firm and lightly brown. Serve hot or at room temperature.

amino acid lysine, which is difficult to get from vegetable sources. The calcium content is the same as an equal amount of low-fat milk but with four times as much phosphorus. It is also a good source of B vitamins and vitamin E.

If you like to keep track of stats, a 1.2-ounce serving (about 1 cup cooked) contains 129 calories, a whopping 44 grams of protein, 23 grams of carbohydrate, 2 grams of fat, 21 milligrams of sodium, 250 milligrams potassium and no cholesterol. That's a nutrition bargain.

Ballyhooed five to six years ago as the answer to world hunger because of its high protein content and ability to grow in unfriendly climates, quinoa has yet to reach the mainstream.

Generally, you still have to go to a health food or alternative food store to buy it. Americans have tried to grow it near Boulder, Colo., but mostly the grain is a product of Bolivia and Peru, where it originated with the Incas thousands of years ago.

The price of quinoa may be higher now than other grains, it has dropped about $1 a pound over the last five years. While it may never become trendy, quinoa is still a diet plus. Here are two basic recipes to give it a try.

QUINOA

- 1 cup quinoa
- 2 cups water
- Yields 5 servings.

Rinse quinoa thoroughly in small strainer or by running fresh water over grains in pot and pick out any bits of debris; drain.

Place quinoa and water in 1 1/2-quart saucepan and bring to boil. Reduce to simmer, cover and cook until all water is absorbed, 10 to 15 minutes. When done, the grain appears translucent and the germ ring will be visible.

QUINOA BREAKFAST CEREAL

- 1 cup quinoa
- 2 cups water
- 1/2 cup apples, very thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/4 to teaspoon cinnamon, or to taste
- Yields 4 servings.

Rinse quinoa thoroughly. (See complete prep directions above.) Place in medium saucepan with water; bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Add apples, raisins and cinnamon and simmer until water is absorbed. Serve with milk and sweetened to taste with honey or brown sugar.

Hollandaise for the holidays

Food, glorious food. The holidays revel in it. This is the time of year for traditional family recipes, fancy specialty foods, and richly sinful desserts. The perfect time to grace your table with creamy, calorie-laden, but delicious hollandaise sauce.

Hollandaise is a cooked sauce thickened with egg and flavored with a light hint of lemon. Smooth and buttery, it takes plain microwaved vegetables out of the realm of the ordinary and transforms them into something special.

Serve hollandaise over microwaved broccoli, asparagus, brussels sprouts — or spoon over poultry or fish. And it's a classic ingredient of eggs Benedict, the perfect star of a holiday breakfast menu.

Delicate egg sauces can easily curdle when prepared on a conventional stovetop and must be cooked over very low heat or over a double boiler.

The sauce generally requires constant stirring. While some microwaved hollandaise recipes call for a lowered setting (LOW or MEDIUM), others allow a HIGH (100 percent power) setting.

Constant stirring is unnecessary when microwaving sauces, but beating at intervals with a wire whisk ensures smoothness. Do check frequently, since overmicrowaved hollandaise can curdle, too.

To make an easy microwaved hollandaise, place ¼ cup butter or margarine in a 2-cup glass measure. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 30 to 45 seconds, until bubbly. Beat in ½ cup half-and-half, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, and a dash each of salt and paprika.

Microwave at HIGH setting about 1 minute, or until sauce thickens, being careful not to overcook. Whisk well with a wire whip until frothy. Yields about 1 cup.

For a quick and easy blender hollandaise, melt ½ cup butter or margarine in microwave at HIGH setting until bubbly (about 1 to 2 minutes). Place 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, a dash each of salt, paprika, dry mustard and cayenne pepper in blender container.

Cover and blend for 10 seconds. Drizzle in hot butter, a little at a time, and continue blending at HIGH setting until sauce is smooth and thick. Add a little cold water, if necessary, to thin.

Add hollandaise sauce and you're adding a touch of elegance to your holiday table. Vary, if you like, with capers, minced shallots or chives, grated nutmeg, paprika, dill, dry mustard or cayenne pepper. But use a light hand with any added seasonings — the lemon flavor should be the most prominent.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

CLASSIC BROCCOLI WITH HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

1½ pounds fresh broccoli florets, well rinsed
¼ cup water
½ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon all-purpose flour
2 to 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
½ cup half-and-half
1 egg, well beaten
Dash each salt and white pepper
Dash paprika
Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 8 to 13 minutes (plus 2 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Arrange broccoli florets in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Add water. Cover and microwave 6 to 10 minutes, until fork-tender, stirring twice during cooking time. Let stand, covered, 2 minutes; drain.

For sauce, place butter or margarine in 4-cup glass measure. Microwave about 1 minute, to melt. Stir in flour, then blend in lemon juice, half-and-half and egg, in that order.

Microwave 1 to 2 minutes, beating with wire whisk every 30 seconds, until sauce thickens. Stir in salt, pepper and paprika. Pour sauce over broccoli and serve immediately.

FRENCH ONIONS AND PEAS WITH HOLLANDAISE

2 (10-ounce) packages frozen green peas with small onions
½ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons half-and-half
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon water
2 egg yolks, well beaten
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Dash each salt and pepper
Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 11¾ to 15¾ minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM (50 percent power).

Place vegetables in 1½ quart microwave-safe casserole and cover. Microwave at HIGH setting 5 minutes. Stir. Cover and microwave at HIGH setting 5 to 8 minutes longer, or until vegetables are heated through and tender. Drain well, replace cover and let stand on heat-proof surface while making sauce.

For sauce, place butter or margarine in 2-cup glass measure. Microwave at HIGH setting 45 to 60 seconds, to melt. Add half-and-half, lemon juice and water. Beat in egg yolks with fork.

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dear Teens: Two recent letters I received questioned the value of professional counselors, even if teens have extremely serious problems. One of them referred to an earlier letter written to me by a girl who had been raped by her stepfather and whose mother had taken him back. Neither of these letter-writers included a name or address.

In addition to the numerous direct responses provided in this column, it is true that occasional suggestions are offered to teens writing in recommending that they talk their problems over with competent professionals. Such suggestions also may mention involvement by one or both parents if at all possible and often stress not going beyond the parent or parents for advice unless there seems to be a need to do so.

Teens as well as others can, of course, frequently solve many of their own problems or do so with the help of parents or other family members and friends. This column is also available to suggest solutions directly or based on appropriate professional resources that must be checked on in depth and in advance before involvement by the teen or his or her family.

The types of counseling assistance recommended depend on specific problems mentioned and the seriousness of the issue involved.

Among those mentioned for possible assistance are school counselors (and professionals in psychology or other fields to which they might refer teens) and family physicians. Others might be consulted whom parents, other family members or teachers suggest.

In any case, the competence, possible costs and other details related to such professionals should be thoroughly checked out through relatives or friends who have used their services and community agencies.

Such personnel often possess counseling skills that help them deal with the total facts in serious situations objectively and in confidence.

The writers of the two letters mentioned above that questioned such professional counseling resources apparently had experiences with one or more that had not been helpful. It is easy to understand their concern and possible resentment. However, no profession or other field of work provides 100 percent success or satisfaction.

But to suggest that teens and others should never consider seeking assistance to help solve serious problems with which neither they nor their families are able to cope could close the door to solutions that may be available.

Every problem each of us faces, especially the most severe ones, requires the use of whatever competent resources we can locate. (Let's hope the cost isn't too great.) Otherwise we have to live with continuing frustration, anger and conflict. Most of us believe that inaction can lead to further unhappiness and even more serious situations.

Dr. Abraham: I'm a 15-year-old girl who is mistreated. My mother and father won't let me accept company, I mean guys coming over to see me. And they won't let me go to dances or movies to see the guys, either.

I can't answer any of my mom's or dad's questions without them accusing me of being or getting smart.

I recently received my driver's license, but my mom tells me that I can't drive her car. When my brother first received his license he got the car the same day. He had recently wrecked our car, and shortly after he wrecked another one.

She doesn't believe anything I say, won't let me talk on the phone and doesn't like my only true friend.

I don't believe she likes me. No one likes us at school (or at home). So we recently adopted the attitude that the world would be a better place if we weren't in it. — We're Mistreated, Brookhaven, Miss.

Mistreated: That is what James Stewart thought in a fine movie, "It's a Wonderful Life." He found out how wrong he was. You are wrong to think that way, too.

Even though this situation does sound pretty bad, there are possible solutions. Is there any way you can get either of your parents (or even better, both of them) to read something that will help you and them, too?

Here are two recommendations: "Parent Effectiveness Training" by Thomas Gordon and "Between Parent and Teenager" by Haim Ginott. I hope they are available in a nearby library.

Also, please get an appointment with your school counselor to discuss all this as soon as you can. He or she may be a big help to you.

Incredibly edible latkes

By Robin Silverman-Denker

Hanukkah traditionally means eight nights of candles, gift-giving and lots of my favorite comfort foods. Hanukkah has always been my favorite Jewish holiday of the year. Especially now, since I share the tradition of Hanukkah with my husband and our children.

The most memorable parties were spent with my family at my grandmother's house. Of course as a child my eyes lit up at the sight of the gifts. I can still remember the piles and piles of the freshly fried latkes, the giant bowl of applesauce and sour cream, and lots of gold-wrapped chocolate coins, otherwise known as Hanukkah gelt. As I walked through my grandmother's front door, glorious aromas filled the air; I knew it was going to be a great day.

Some of us are lucky enough to have our grandmother's or even great-grandmother's favorite recipes. Although I am sure every family has their favorite latke recipe, try experimenting by adding a grated vegetable, shredded leftovers, chopped dried fruits and a favorite spice.

One cold day last December I was in my kitchen experimenting, as I usually do an hour or so before dinner. It was the sixth night of Hanukkah, and my fridge was overflowing with potatoes, bean sprouts and leftover lox (smoked salmon) from the preceding Sunday brunch.

I gathered up the fresh spuds, some green onions, the lox and sprouts and went to work. In 15 minutes we had dinner: a latke with flavors of the Orient. I knew my husband would love my concoction. I think our family will, too, as well as the vegetable and apple pancakes. My signature applesauce recipes are delicious with plain potato pancakes as well as for a fat-free dessert throughout the year.

LATKE HINTS

There are many varieties of potatoes to choose from. My preference is for the white potatoes; there is no need to peel them, and they do not become brown and mushy. If using russets or reds, they should be peeled.

Since I love timesaving techniques, I advocate using the food processor to grate the potatoes and the vegetables. However, this method produces a slightly gummier potato. Therefore, it is necessary to gently rinse the grated potatoes under cold running water, then pat dry with paper towel.

Latkes are the best fried in a non-stick pan, turning only once. Use a good quality canola or safflower oil, heating the oil until it is hot before frying.

Plan to do all of your prep work and cooking ahead of time. Latkes can be a wonderful timesaver if prepared in advance and frozen in a single layer. Once frozen, they can be stacked and transferred to plastic freezer bags. When ready to serve, preheat oven to 375 F, transfer pancakes to a cookie sheet in a single layer, and reheat for 20 minutes.

If holiday parties are your forte, everyone will delight in a B.Y.O.L. (bring your own latke) Hanukkah party. There's no need to knock yourself out. Using the food processor and the freezer will save you time, which is, after all, better spent in the company of loved ones and your guests.

These recipes reflect the theory that less is more — the less time in the kitchen, the more time at the dining room table. The following dishes are designed to make the most of the versatile and wonderful potato. They're homespun in feel, bursting with flavor and plain old-fashioned fun at the table. Try the Salmon Latkes, Spinach Puff Latkes, Apple Latke Fritters, Basic Potato Latkes, Potato Kugel and the myriad of signature applesauce recipes. Enjoy, and diet next year.

APPLESAUCE HINTS

My preference in apples is Golden Delicious, Granny Smith, Pippin, Jonathan or a combination. For those who prefer a smooth applesauce, puree in food processor to desired consistency after apples have cooled.

I've created what I call "designer add-ins." You add in what you like to suit your taste buds and complement your meal. Try one, try them all. Be creative, let your imagination explore the endless varieties of dried fruits and spices you can add.

The add-ins I suggest are:

- ½ cup currants
- ½ cup chopped cranberries, fresh or frozen
- 1 cup fresh raspberries
- 1 cup fresh strawberries, sliced
- 1 cup chopped rhubarb plus ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup cassia

BASIC BLOND APPLESAUCE

½ cup 7-Up

- ½ cup sugar (or to taste)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 pounds apples, peeled, cored and cut in chunks
- Yields 3 cups.

In large saucepan, combine all ingredients except apples. Bring to boil, stir to combine. Reduce heat to simmer, add apples, cover and simmer approximately 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve warm or chilled.

CRIMSON CINNAMON APPLESAUCE

- ¼ cup frozen, undiluted cranberry juice
- ½ cup sugar (or to taste)
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- ¼ cup red-hot candies (optional)

2 pounds apples, peeled, cored and cut in chunks

Yields 3 cups.
In large saucepan, combine all ingredients except apples. Bring to boil, stir to combine. Reduce heat to simmer, add apples, cover and simmer approximately 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve warm or chilled.

SPICED DARK APPLESAUCE CHUTNEY

- ½ cup cola soda
- ¼ cup dark brown sugar, packed
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons grated orange zest
- ½ cup currants
- ½ cup golden raisins
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 pounds apples, peeled, cored and cut in chunks
- Yields 3½ cups.

In large saucepan, combine all ingredients except apples. Bring to boil, stir to combine. Reduce heat to simmer, add apples, cover and simmer approximately 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve warm or chilled.

These latkes are wonderful as an entree. You can use leftover cooked salmon; increase quantity to ½ pound. If your budget allows, use more lox.

PACIFIC RIM SALMON LATKES

- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon sherry or dry vermouth (optional)
- 1 pound white potatoes, grated, rinsed, blotted dry
- ¼ pound lox, diced
- 1 teaspoon sesame oil
- 2 green onions, chopped
- 1 cup fresh bean sprouts, chopped
- 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds
- 2 tablespoons matzo meal
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro (optional)
- Oil for frying
- Yields 12 to 14 latkes.

Beat eggs and sherry in large bowl. By hand, fold in remaining ingredients.

Heat oil in large, non-stick skillet over medium heat. Using ¼-cup measure, spoon mixture into hot oil; smooth top. Fry on both sides until golden-brown and crisp, turning only once. Drain on paper towels.

Delight your family and guests with these delicious apple pancakes. Serve warm with your favorite applesauce.

These latkes are an incredible dessert. They can be made ahead and frozen. To reheat, put frozen latkes onto a cookie sheet in a preheated 400 F oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Sprinkle with sifted powdered sugar just before serving.

The reason I chose Golden Delicious apples is that they do not become brown after grating. However, if you prefer, you can use a Granny Smith or Pippin apples; Red Delicious are too mushy.

APPLE LATKE FRITTERS

- 4 Golden Delicious apples (about 3 cups), peeled and grated
- 1 white potato, grated, rinsed, patted dry
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup water
- 1 cup tempura mix (pancake or biscuit mix)
- ¼ cup matzo meal
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup ground toasted almonds
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon almond extract or vanilla

Oil for frying
Powdered sugar
Yields 20 fritters.
Grate apples and potato using food processor. Remove; insert steel blade. Chop apples and potato to using a few on and off pulses; do not overprocess.

In large bowl, beat egg with remaining ingredients. By hand, stir apple and potato into mixture; blend well to combine. Refrigerate 1 hour.

Heat oil in large, non-stick skillet over medium heat. Using ¼-cup measure or heaping tablespoon, spoon in mixture, smooth top. Cook until golden-brown and crisp. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with powdered sugar just before serving. Serve warm with your favorite applesauce.

RAISED POTATO PANCAKES

- 4 large white potatoes, grated
- 1 large onion, grated
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup tempura batter or cake flour
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Yields 24 latkes.

Grate potatoes. Add onion, baking powder, tempura batter or cake flour, egg yolks and salt. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Fold into mixture, combine until well mixed. Heat oil in large skillet, spoon batter into pan smoothing with the back of spoon. Cook until brown and crisp on both sides, turning only once. Drain on paper towels.

Q. Can you tell me the necessary equipment I'd need to teach my children to make pressed-flower pictures for Christmas presents?

A. What a marvelous idea and a great project for children, especially during the dreary, cold days before the holidays.

The materials you'll need:

- Picture frames (5-by-7 inches) with glass and stiff backing.

- Background — velveteen is the best material to use; the background color choices depend on the colors of the pressed flowers you use.

- Most important are a good pair of "tweezers" to handle and place the dried material. Patience and care are the key words here!

- Household glue.

- A small pair of scissors to cut the plant material to the size you wish.

- Toothpicks to apply small spots of glue to flowers.

For tiny hands (and best results), you'll need to flatten your plant material firmly and evenly, but do so carefully.

The two most common techniques for flattening plants are by using books and by using presses.

Books are the easiest since they are right at hand. Flowers and leaves should be sandwiched between sheets of facial tissues or blotting paper to speed drying.

Always choose thin plants because they will lie flat and evenly under the glass of your picture. Place your plants between layers of absorbent paper and put them in a book. Add weights on top and store in an out-of-the-way place (away from curious hands).

Most material will be completely dried in about two weeks. Now your flowers are ready to be glued, so let your artistic imagination run wild!

Q. I have many friends and neighbors who garden, and I would like to give them presents that would suit their hobby. Can you help me out with some ideas?

A. The possibilities are practically endless because there are so many fabulous gardening items on the market. Of course, at this time of year (the holiday season), some people find it difficult to locate gardening products since most garden centers and nurseries are stocked with holiday trimmings and Christmas trees. However, most places have the items but not on prominent display, so just ask. Being so late in the season you might even get the product at a reduction.

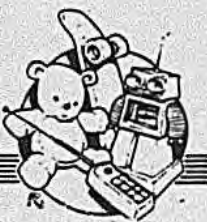

Consider a nursery gift certificate for a shrub, tree or lawn mower — they could pick it up next spring. Gardening equipment is another possibility; it ranges from large to small and from expensive to moderately priced.

Tools are another consideration, or equipment such as an electric hedger, leaf blower, nozzle, sprinkler or wheelbarrow. I think a hose is one of the best items.

Small hand tools, clippers, a bulb planter, summer-flowering bulbs, pre-cooled bulbs, amaryllis and hardy chrysanthemums are all nifty presents.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

For youngsters, play is work

Q. My husband is gung-ho for so-called educational toys for our 3-year-old. He takes such pride in the numbers and the alphabet letters our youngster recognizes, and in the ABCs he can go through (without having the slightest idea what he is saying and why). He is just like a little robot reflecting the constant repetition and pressure my husband puts on the little guy.

I think he's wrong, and our little boy's preschool teacher agrees with me. She puts a lot of emphasis on the little kids having fun and "learning by doing" (a phrase she often uses) and frequently says that "play" is the "work" of young children.

I've visited that preschool several times and watched the youngsters working hard on puzzles, games, toys, water activities, mushy, modeling materials and more (sometimes with sweaty upper lips and deep involvement). They were obviously learning and enjoying what they were doing, paying little or no attention to what was going on around them.

I wish I could persuade my husband to relax and let our little boy just be a little boy. It lasts such a short, precious time.

A. I hope I can help persuade him for the reason that you expressed in your last sentence. Two of the finest thinkers and writers who are respected experts in the early childhood area are also on your wavelength — David Elkind for his books, including "The Hurried Child" and "Miseducation" and other writings, and T. Berry Brazelton for his many sensitive offerings regarding young children and their parents.

Although it is reasonable to encourage children of all ages to develop toward the capacity of their their intellectual, maturity and physical and emotional limits, pushing and pressuring are questionable ways to go.

Enriching their environment both in and outside the home, encouraging and stimulating a child's "sense of wonder" (the title of a fine creative book by Rachel Carson), using educational and all other appropriate materials and equipment (with emphasis on "appropriate" for a specific child) and retaining realistic expectations that are within a youngster's grasp are all part of a scenario for young children that may be practical and within the capabilities of most parents.

In a series of 77 articles ("Parent Talk") that I've written for the parents of young children are three related to this issue. Their titles are "Play is Important," "How Realistic are You About Your Young Child?" and "The Early Years — Don't Waste Them!"

Q. We have a son-in-law and a daughter-in-law, and our relationships with them are so different.

The young man has been part of our family for seven years, and I mean exactly that. He came in with the desire to be close to us even though his parents live nearby and he has a loving relationship with them. We have had no conflicts with him or his parents because they are warm, loving people, as I think we are.

The daughter-in-law, a more recent entry into our family is another story. She and her parents are cold, detached people who always seem to look at the negative side of things. I'll admit to you that I can't for the life of me see what my son saw in her, although he does seem to be happy. I've, of course, never revealed my feelings to him and try my best not to show them.

My husband and I realize that we are involved in a difficult situation. We don't pressure in any way, but subtly try to make it clear that we welcome her in our home as often as the other couple (sometimes together, sometimes separately), are interested in anything she'd like to share with us and never in any way compare her with our son-in-law.

We may win this battle in time. We certainly hope so for the benefit of her, our son and their young children. And we won't give up trying.

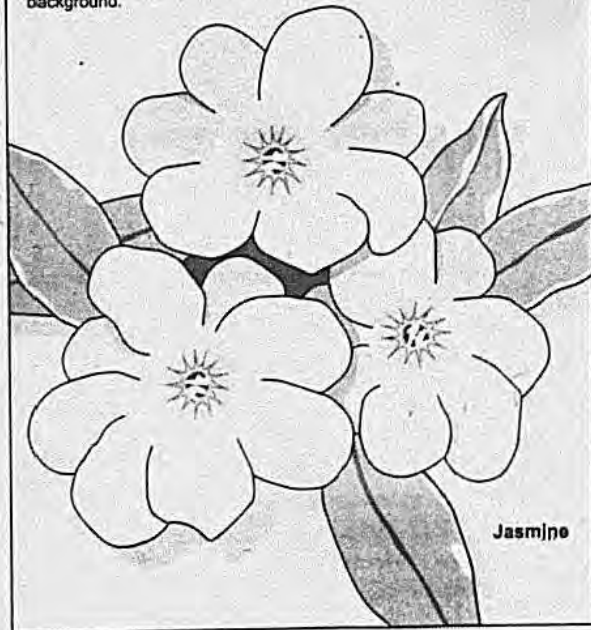

Do you think we are taking the right approach?

A. I understand how hard it may be to keep your relationships, comments and even your thoughts fair and unbiased. It is, of course, important to try to do so. Your attempt to provide equal support to both young families is a goal well worth pursuing. It will obviously require continued patience, together with activities that are enjoyable for all involved.

I hope your efforts pay off, and that you'll keep in touch once in a while.

Pressed flowers

- Flatten flowers evenly by placing them between the pages of a heavy book. Add extra weights on top.
- Sandwich flowers and leaves between layers of tissue paper or blotting paper to speed drying process. Use thin plants such as jasmine or amaryllis, which may be in bloom at this time.
- Allow plants to dry completely (about two weeks).
- Once plants are dry, mount them in a picture frame with glass and stiff backing. Velvet in a complementary color makes an elegant background.

Handling stress after job loss

By Jeanne Freeman

If you think you are middle-class, then you believe you have gotten where you are by hard work, that you have some degree of control over your life and that you have every reason to believe there is room to move up.

Take away your job then, and what's left?

When middle-class workers are laid off, maybe as hard as the loss of income is the collapse of things in which they believed.

Denial comes first, according to Leonard Elkind, a clinical psychologist in private practice. "It's almost like dealing with an addiction. People's expectations are set very high.

"A lot of people (who were laid off) were assuming the recession wouldn't last very long and they wouldn't go too deep in the hole. And then when it didn't end, their anxiety started to go up.

"Their denial is that (they tell themselves) it's soon going to be the way it was before. They have trouble making the adjustment, budgeting down. So I find myself doing a lot of talking about reality. I get a lot of resistance.

"I tell them they need to re-evaluate their lifestyles. They say no."

Kenneth Greene, clinical psychologist in private practice says, "There's no question that a lot of men and women have a lot of self-worth tied up in the way they earn a living."

Loss of a job can be frightening and humiliating.

Greene is working with two men "who both say they're even embarrassed to leave the house and have the neighbors look at them."

After denial, says Elkind, often comes resentment, "a bitterness. They say, 'I'm trying and trying and nothing's happening.'"

This is completely contrary to the way middle-class people see the world and how they live their lives, according to Richard Madsen, University of California at San Diego professor of sociology and a co-author of "Habits of the Heart" (HarperCollins) and "The Good Society" (Random House).

It isn't so much income that makes people middle-class, says Madsen; it's how they see themselves.

It's the sense that "you basically have worked for your money and have gotten where you are on your own merits. Owning a home or at least having the prospect of it is a very important part of it. Having control over one's life."

There is also in play what Madsen terms "the essence of the American dream — the belief that you can move ahead."

When something happens to make someone doubt these things are still true, the result, Madsen says, can be "psychologically devastating."

If your husband or wife has lost a job, Greene advises, first: Sit down and talk. "A couple should get their fears out in the open. They're probably worrying about exactly the same things."

Next, make a plan. Couples should figure out how much money they do have — and then live accordingly, says Elkind.

Be honest with the kids, emphasizing, "We're in this together." The kids will likely have already picked up on the stress level in the family, says Greene. "I don't think you can hide stuff like that."

And when bad news arrives, Elkind warns, "No one wants to hear that it doesn't matter. They know that's not true."

Other advice:

- Exercise. It's free — and reduces stress.
 - Be realistic.
 - Take care of yourself.
 - Be close and supportive with one another.
 - Do things with your family.
- And if you want to get another job, says Richard Novik, a coordinator for the self-help organization, Professional Networking Group, keep your spirits up as much as possible.

"Absolutely. That's the key to it all. You have to have a good mental outlook or you defeat yourself."

More ways with versatile chicken

When in doubt, I turn to chicken. It's the constant in my culinary life. I could eat it seven days a week, and I understand that's true of most people.

I believe chicken wins the versatility award because it yields to so many ingredients and so many ways of cooking. Boil, bake, roast, grill or steam chicken, and the results are predictably good. Add some exotic ingredients such as orange marmalade, Indonesian peanut sauce or good old apple cider, and the results are predictably wonderful, exciting, a party meal.

And here is chicken those three different ways to carry you through the rest of the Sundays in the month. You won't be sorry.

MARMALADE CHICKEN

- ¼ cup unbleached white flour
 - 4 chicken breasts skinned, bone-in
 - 2 teaspoons olive oil
 - ¼ cup chicken stock
 - ½ teaspoon dried marjoram
 - ½ teaspoon grated lemon zest
 - 2 tablespoons sherry
 - 1 teaspoon soy sauce
 - ¼ cup orange marmalade
 - 1 orange
- Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 180 calories, 4 grams fat, 60 milligrams cholesterol and 100 milligrams sodium.

Put flour and chicken in bag and shake to dust chicken with flour. Heat oil in skillet and brown chicken. Place chicken in single layer in casserole that can come to table.

Combine stock, marjoram, lemon zest, sherry and soy. Pour over chicken and brush with marmalade. Peel orange, removing all of the white pith. Pull orange segments away from each other and catch juice in casserole dish as you do.

Arrange orange segments over chicken. Bake in an oven preheated to 375 F for 30 to 40 minutes and serve with some of chicken juices over each piece.

APPLE CIDER CHICKEN

- ¼ cup white flour
- Pinch salt
- Freshly ground pepper
- 2 whole skinned and boned chicken breasts, cut into cubes
- 4 teaspoons corn oil
- 1 onion, cut in half and sliced
- 1 cup apple cider
- 2 fresh tomatoes, chopped, or 1 (14-ounce) can drained

- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel (no white pith)

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 200 calories, 4 grams fat, 60 milligrams cholesterol and 330 milligrams sodium.

Mix flour, salt and pepper in large bag. Toss in chicken and shake to dust each piece lightly. Heat oil in skillet and add chicken. Don't crowd chicken, but cook until lightly brown. Remove chicken from pot and set aside.

Saute onion in same skillet. If necessary add a little cider or stock to pot. Add tomatoes and apple cider to pot along with chicken. Simmer gently, covered for 30 minutes. Add basil and orange peel and cook 10 more minutes. Serve at once.

CHICKEN WITH INDONESIAN PEANUT SAUCE

- 1½ tablespoons lime juice
 - 2 tablespoons chunky peanut butter
 - 2 teaspoons low-sodium soy sauce
 - 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
 - 1 tablespoon honey
 - 1½ tablespoons water
 - ¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
 - Pinch ground hot chili peppers
 - 2 whole chicken breasts, skinless and boneless
 - Sesame oil
- Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 190 calories, 7 grams fat, 60 milligrams cholesterol and 280 milligrams sodium.

Puree everything except chicken and sesame oil. Put chicken in plastic bag and pour sauce over it. Marinate in the refrigerator for at least half an hour or as long as 4 hours.

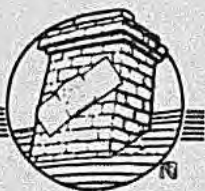

Heat a little sesame oil in wok and add chicken pieces. Stir-fry until cooked through. If you want to use marinade as sauce, heat it thoroughly before serving.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. Some sparks from our fireplace have damaged the carpeting with small, but noticeable burns. Do you know of any way to camouflage or repair burns in carpeting?

A. If the burns are superficial, carefully snip off the charred ends with small, sharp scissors. Then mix up a solution of dishwashing liquid and water and dab it into the spot. Blot frequently with a clean, dry cloth to prevent over-wetting the surface. Let the spot dry and then go over it with vinegar diluted in water. Blot and dry.

If the burn is deep, this method won't solve your problem. Here's another suggestion. Try this method of retuffing. Use a knife and a small scissors to cut away all of the burned fibers and to scrape the blackened area clean. Cut enough carpet fibers to fill the hole from any hidden section of carpeting, such as a closet area. Dab a small amount of clear, water proof cement into the center of the burned spot.

Then, using tweezers and working from the outer edge of the burn toward the center, stand each replacement carpet fiber upright into the cement. Work slowly to ensure that the fibers stay upright. Fill the burned spot with fibers until it matches the density of the surrounding carpet.

If these methods prove unsatisfactory, it's time to call in a professional for advice on reweaving or retuffing.

Q. We have one of those textured ceilings throughout the house, except bath and kitchen areas. Over the years they have become increasingly dingy. In one area, due to a moisture leak in the eaves of the roof, the ceiling is water stained. Do you know of any way this type of ceiling can be cleaned by a homeowner? I priced professional respraying with new acoustical materials, and this is just too expensive.

A. There are special products available, developed for this specific problem. One such manufacturer is Gamma Laboratories (840 Arroyo Ave., San Fernando, CA 91340), which distributes an Acoustic Ceiling Cleaner & Whitener, available at major paint and home stores.

The manufacturer claims the product will clean, whiten and renew complete acoustic ceilings, including the removal of ugly water stains, or spot cleaning of such difficult areas as the ceiling above fireplaces or near air registers. It is made for use on natural white or off-white sprayed-on acoustic ceilings and acoustic tile.

Much of the difficulty in using such a product is in the preparation. Furniture, carpeting and walls should all be covered with plastic or multilayers of newspaper to protect from the residue mist created when spraying your ceiling.

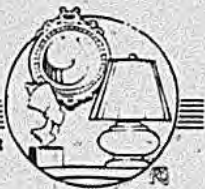

The room should be well ventilated. You should wear old clothing, eye goggles and a painter's mask. This is a cleaner, not a paint, and has a cleaning, staining and bleaching action that can be used to clean suspended acoustic ceilings as it will not harm painted metal dividers.

Prior to application the ceiling should be lightly brushed with a soft paint brush to remove lint, dust and foreign matter. In most cases, only one application is necessary. Occasionally a second or third cleaning may be necessary.

Water stains are particularly difficult to remove and when excessive water damage has occurred, this product may not be able to clean completely.

Decor Score

Q. Our apartment is completely bland, architecturally speaking: no moldings, no frames on the windows or doors. We own it, so I'm thinking of making some small structural changes.

Do I need an architect, or do interior designers do this kind of work? — B.F.

A. Many interior designers are trained to make structural changes as well as create surface decoration. They speak of it as "getting the bones right" before bringing in the color, carpeting and other furnishings we usually call on designers to orchestrate.

As with any professional you're thinking of hiring, choose your helpmate carefully, whether he or she is an architect or interior designer. Discuss your ideas in depth. Ask for references, and then go see the work, don't just phone.

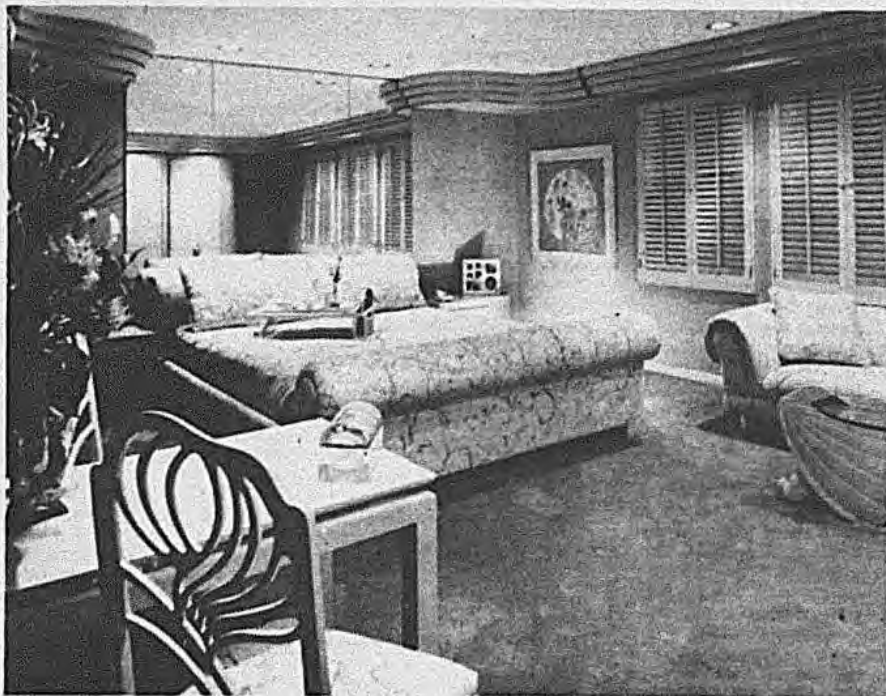

You should always reach a financial understanding in advance and in writing; know what you're getting for your money, how much it is estimated to cost, how payment will be scheduled, when work will begin and when it will be completed.

The room we show here is the happy outcome of an apartment owner and interior designer working together to improve the boring "bones" of a room.

Designer Howard Alan Zaltzman of Deerfield, Ill., has changed the contours of a once-rectangular room, using moldings with art deco overtones to create sensuous curves that frame the contemporary bed.

Mirror panels, strategic recessed lighting and tailored window shutters stress the architectural character of the room and set the stage for the curvaceous furniture.

ADDED INTEREST — Designer Howard Alan Zaltzman rounds out an ordinary rectangular room with new ceiling moldings and curvaceous furniture.

HAVE YOU A HIDDEN TALENT that has yet to be discovered in print?

We are looking for articles, not exceeding 3,000 words or less than 1,500 words, on local topics, opinions, ideas, nice places to visit on Long Island, and even fiction. In our magazine section, we will try to "Discover" one new feature length article and writer per week. Each writer will be reimbursed a stipend of $25.00.

If you want to be published and be part of an issue of Discovery, you may submit your article to: Litor Publications, 81 East Barclay Street, Hicksville, N.Y. 11801.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
Oh Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful and intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depths of my heart and humbly beg to you who God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked St. Jude, pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen. Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Mary's, 3 Glorias. Say for 9 consecutive days. Publication must be promised. This novena has never been known to fail. Thank you for answering my prayers. M.S. gcN4

HOLY SPIRIT YOU WHO SOLVE all problems, who light all roads, so that I can obtain my goals. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evils against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you ever in spite of all material illusions, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Say for 3 consecutive days after which the favor requested will be granted even if it appears difficult. This prayer must be published immediately. Thank you Holy Spirit. P.M. and N.F. hN4

Daddy" role of comforting the children, sometimes even with stories of an animal heaven when they were very young. But now they were the ones comforting me. Also in the past I would be able to shake-off in a few days any sadness that was caused by the passing of a pet, but now pangs of sadness still reoccur.

Diminishing ability to cope with stressful situations, both physical and emotional, is part of the territory of the "Golden Years." Some handle it better than others, but it's never easy as Rodney Dangerfield has told us so often.

Gold paint reduces settee's value

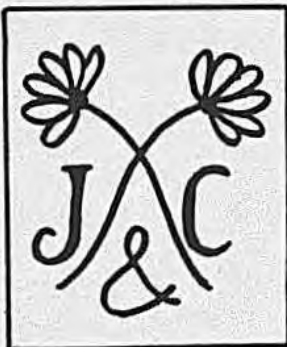

Q. I am enclosing a picture of a settee that I inherited. It is painted gold, and the upholstery is in good shape. Could you please tell me its period and value?

A. This is Louis XV style made about 1900. With its original natural finish, this would sell for $500 to $600. The gold paints reduces the value to about $300.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a 4-inch-high candy dish that is 5 inches in diameter. It is compeote style with pierced lattice work around the side. It has applied pink and yellow roses with green leaves.

I would like to know who made this, when, and what it might sell for now.

A. This very choice candy dish was made in Marktredwitz, Germany, by Jaeger & Co., between 1900 and 1910. It would probably sell for $265 to $285.

Q. What can you tell me about a 7-inch bud vase marked "Lefton China?" It is light pink with darker pink and blue flowers.

Could you please tell something about this vase and how much it is worth?

A. Lefton China is an import company that sells china made in Europe and Japan. This was made in the mid-20th century and would probably sell for about $25 to $35.

Q. I have a book written by Robert Louis Stevenson and printed by the Roycroft Shop in East Aurora, N.Y., in 1902. The title of the book is "A Lodging for the Night." Will you please estimate its value?

A. This book is collectible because it was published by the Roycrofters — not because it was written by Robert Louis Stevenson. It would probably sell for about $165 to $185 in good condition.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 3-year-old cat shakes her head a lot. She also scratches at her ears and tries to rub them on the floor. Our cat is clean and stays in the house most of the time. What is causing her problems?

A. Your cat probably has a condition called "otitis externa." This is simply an inflammation of the external ear. There are several common causes for otitis externa in cats: trauma; the presence of excessive amounts of dirt, wax, hair, moisture or foreign objects, such as plant seeds or weed awns; and ear mites.

Hot, humid weather and infections due to bacteria and fungi are often seen in cats with otitis externa.

Cats with ear infections often hold their heads cocked. The cat usually shakes, scratches and rubs the ears, often causing abrasions and bleeding. Kittens with otitis externa due to ear mites often are so agitated that they appear to be convulsing.

Determining the cause of otitis externa can best be made by your veterinarian. The specific cause can usually be ascertained by a careful examination of the ear with an otoscope, a special flashlight designed for looking into the ear.

After examination, your veterinarian can prescribe the most appropriate treatment for your cat. Because ear problems are so irritating, you should have your cat examined and treated as soon as possible.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Thanksgiving is almost upon us. Traditionally ours is the only country that celebrates it. As you know, the Pilgrims and the Indians got together to share their customs and a successful harvest and to give thanks that they had overcome the difficulties in a harsh new land.

Pilgrims are still settling in this country and making a new life for themselves. Every once in a while I like to invite a family who is new to this country to my Thanksgiving dinner. It is a good opportunity for them to learn about our way of cooking and our customs and we enjoy hearing theirs. How will you celebrate Thanksgiving?

Your Friend,
Aunt Tilly

Medicare patients can enroll in an HMO

By William M. Acosta

Q. Who is not eligible to enroll in a health maintenance organization with a Medicare contract?

A. You may not enroll in an HMO if you have end-stage renal disease. However, if you are already a commercial member of an HMO that has a Medicare contract, you may change to Medicare membership with the same HMO even if you have ERSD. You can make this change to Medicare membership as soon as you are eligible for Medicare (for example, you can make the change during the month you turn 65 years of age).

You may not enroll in an HMO for Medicare services if you have elected hospice benefits.

Other than these two reasons, an HMO may not refuse your request for enrollment because you are already sick or have some other kind of medical condition.

Q. Does the Social Security Administration have any way of checking whether a recipient is receiving money from other sources?

A. Supplemental Security Income recipients (or their representative payees) are responsible for reporting any information that may affect their eligibility or payment amount.

However, they do not always report necessary information in a timely manner. Therefore, the Social Security Administration has established interfaces with the federal and state agencies whose records contain information which may affect SSI eligibility or payment amount.

Q. I will soon reach age 70. However, I plan to continue working. I understand that earnings in or after the month I reach age 70 will not affect my monthly benefit amount, but will I continue to pay the Social Security tax?

A. As long as you have earnings that are covered by Social Security, you continue to pay Social Security taxes — regardless of your age and even if you are receiving Social Security benefits.
