Students Helping Students

Anxious to help their new classmates learn how to speak and read English, third graders at Fork Lane devised a valuable way to share their reading skills. The students in Mrs. Anne Bergeron's class, recorded on cassettes popular easy reading books from the school library. ESL (English as a Second Language) students can now hear their classmates narrate favorite stories as they read along in the book. Students Heather Highfield and Douglas Wallach enthusiastically narrate and record a favorite book with the assistance of Ms. Nancy Schacter, Library Media Specialist.

World Of Difference

ESL (English as a Second Language) students at Old Country Road School held their third annual "International Lunch." The students in Mrs. Helene Stopak's class, performed favorite folk tales and entertained family and friends with original stories about their native countries. Family members in turn provided for the luncheon authentic foods from their native countries. The students and their guest sampled delicacies from India, Bangladesh, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Columbia, Korea, Russia, Turkey and the Philippines. The group was pleasantly surprised by Mr. Llanta, a parent in the group, who sang songs about New York - his new home. Students and families enjoyed sharing this warm and enriching educational experience.

Celebrating a world of difference with Mrs. Helene Stopak are ESL students Sarah Kim, Orbelina Nolasco, Henry Martinez, Sandip Dhillon and Jose Londono.

Movies At Bethpage Library

As part of the Bethpage Library's "Friday Night at the Movies" series we are presenting "The Player" on Friday, January 22, at 8 p.m. The film stars Tim Robbins, Greta Scacchi and Whoopi Goldberg and is directed by Robert Altman. This scathing satire of power-hungry Hollywood executives provides an insider's look at the corrupt studio system. Newsweek called it "viciously droll. Dead-on." Everyone is welcome and admission is free.

Volunteers Assist At Warehouse Fire

Hicksville Volunteer Fire Fighters have had a busy week. The Westbury Fire Dept. called Hicksville for assistance when a mattress warehouse at 27 Urban Ave. went up in flames on January 6. Three Hicksville apparatus responded to the 3:58 a.m. alarm.

On January 7, the Hicksville Haz Mat team was requested in Jericho when a tractor trailer struck a bridge on Northern State Parkway. The truck had drums of hazardous waste, but it was determined by Firefighters from Jericho and Hicksville that none of the containers were damaged.

A garage at 108 Morgan St., Hicksville, was damaged by fire on January 9. Several Hicksville units responded to the 12:45 p.m. alarm.

Hicksville Vamps were back in Westbury on January 11 when a fire at Prospect St. and State St. went up in smoke. One engine responded to the 1 p.m. call for help.

On January 12 a fire at 246 W. Old County Road, the Central Nassau Guidance Council, caused $25,000 damage. The building is located behind Antun's Catering hall. The fire was reported at 7:15 p.m. Upon arrival, Firefighters found heavy smoke. 3 alarms were sounded. The fire - electrical in origin - was found above the ceiling. One Firefighter was injured. Units remained on scene for several hours.

On January 13, a small school bus was involved in an accident on the N.S. Parkway in Jericho and Jericho Firefighters requested an ambulance to assist. It was unknown at press time if any of the injuries were serious.

Kiwanis Mark 78 Yrs. Of Community Service

Hicksville Kiwanis members will mark Kiwanis International's 78th birthday during Kiwanis Anniversary Week, January 17-23. Also being celebrated is the 75th anniversary of Kiwanis in New York State.

The event was celebrated recently by the formal presentation of a large donation to the newly formed Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset. This new Center offers the highest level of care available to injured children, and is made possible by contributions from Kiwanis Clubs in the Long Island/Metropolitan area.

The first Kiwanis Club was chartered in Detroit, Michigan and has grown today to 8,900 clubs and 330,000 members in 83 countries around the world. Clubs sponsor community service projects and raise funds to meet local needs.

Hicksville Kiwanis serves our community in many ways, including sponsorship of a Boy Scout Troop, scholarships to students, support of athletic programs, and assistance to families and children in need. The recent holiday season was an especially busy time with food baskets donated to local families, a clothing drive, a Christmas Party and visit from Santa for local needy children, and the sponsorship of a young girl from Lima, Peru in need of a life-saving heart operation.

Last year, Kiwanis Clubs around the world raised and spent more than $65 million and donated more than 22 million volunteer hours on community service activities, with a special emphasis on meeting the needs of young children. Membership is open to all area residents and employees who share our special concern for service to the Hicksville Community.

ARE YOU OVERLOOKING LONG ISLAND'S WILDEST NIGHTLIFE?

The black-crowned night heron (Nycticorax nycticorax) is a mostly nocturnal native Long Islander who is highly discriminating. You won't find him at just any watering hole. And for dinner the fish had better be fresh, the ambience unhurried.

You might say the black-crowned night heron is a hard bird to please. But The Nature Conservancy has been working hard for 40 years to provide the night heron and hundreds of other animals and plants the finest accommodations available on Long Island.

We've saved 30,000 acres of ecologically significant land on Long Island alone, from the last 19-acre remnant of the Hempstead Plains to our 2,000-acre Mashomack Sanctuary on Shelter Island. Nationwide, we've preserved nearly 6 million acres of forest, prairie, desert, island, and mountain. And our international program is fighting to save the world's rapidly vanishing rain forest.

You can help The Nature

Conservancy do its vitally important work. For $25, far less than you'd spend in an evening at one of Long Island's hottest night spots, you can become a member of the Long Island Chapter. You will receive the Long Island Chapter Newsletter and The Nature Conservancy Magazine to keep you informed of Conservancy activities. As a member of the Long Island Chapter, you can participate in hikes and education programs led by experienced naturalists, and you are welcome to volunteer to take part in Chapter operations.

If you're concerned about Long Island—not just about its native flora and fauna but also about the water we drink, the air we breathe, and the quality of life here—we urge you to give us a hand. Just call (516)367-3225. You can help protect your environment. And you can have a wild time!

WHAT TO DO IF YOU THINK YOUR CHILD IS ON DRUGS.

Take a deep breath.

You're not a failure as a parent. You're not helpless. And you're not alone.

If you think you're a failure, consider this:

There are many kids with neglectful parents who never use drugs. There are also children with seemingly model parents who do use drugs.

So the first thing to accept is that drugs, while indeed dangerous, are one more problem for youngsters to handle. And they'll do it better and faster if you're aware, involved, and don't stick your head in the sand.

THE AWARE PARENT IS THE GOOD PARENT.

Part of awareness and a major deterrent to experimentation is to talk to your kids about drugs.

But even with a lot of parental involvement, there are no guarantees. So it's important to know the symptoms of drug use and to take action if you see your youngster displaying them.

THE WARNING SIGNALS.

There are no symptoms that are absolutely reliable. But there are clues (see box).

Most of these symptoms tend to be gradual which is why parental awareness is so important.

But don't jump to conclusions.

Many of the warning signs for drug use are the same as those for depression or for the ups and downs of being a teenager. There's also the possibility it's a physical or emotional problem.

But whatever the problem, we're talking about a child who needs help. Right now.

The Telltale Signs

Chronic eye redness, sore throat or dry cough.

Chronic lying, especially about whereabouts.

Wholesale changes in friends.

Stealing.

Deteriorating relationships with family members.

Wild mood swings, hostility, or abusive behavior.

Chronic fatigue, withdrawal, carelessness about personal grooming.

Major changes in eating or sleeping patterns.

Loss of interest in favorite activities, hobbies, sports.

School problems - slipping grades, absenteeism.

First, you'll need an evaluation from a health professional skilled in diagnosing adolescents with alcohol or drug problems.

You may want to get involved with an intervention program to learn techniques that will help convince a drug user to accept help.

For the user, there are self-help, outpatient, day care, residency, and 24-hour hospitalization programs.

The right program depends entirely on the circumstances and the degree of drug involvement. Here, you'll need professional help to make an informed choice.

Another point: If a program is to succeed, the family needs to be part of it. This can mean personal or family counseling. It may also involve participating in a support group where you learn about co-dependency and how not to play into the problems that might prompt further drug use.

If you don't know about drug programs in your area, call your family doctor, local hospital or county mental health society or school counselor for a referral. You can also call the national helpline - 800-662-HELP - for advice and a referral.

WHATEVER YOU DO, DON'T GIVE UP.

That child who upsets you so much is the same little boy or girl who, only yesterday, gave you such joy. They're in way over their heads, and they never needed you quite as much as they need you now. No matter what they say.

For more information on how to talk with your kids about drugs, ask for a free copy of "A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call 1-800-624-0100.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

Recently, we showed a picture of the sidewalk clock in front of Roth's Jewelry Store next to the theatre. Mr. Roth kept it working about 17 years. At approximately 15 feet high it had a face on both sides and ran on a set of dry cell batteries, so it kept time during any electric failures. LIRR commuters could see the clock as the train crossed Marie Street. At that time the railroad was at ground level, like the Sheffield Milk clock I looked at going through Jamaica. Originally, I am told it was first located further East on Marie Street, about 100 ft.

from Sal's Repair Shop, then Centre Island News office. It was in use from the late 20's. In the 40's parts had to be handmade as the company went out of business.

The sun came out today, Sunday, after a long absence, as it would do when I was young (yes, they had weather forecasts then, too). People would ask each other, what is that shining.

With the Super Bowl coming up, I wonder if any portion of Hicksville will be in the background of the car advertisement even for a second from all those pictures they took this summer.

The Editor's Notebook

I think we have all been deeply affected by the story of Katie Beers - the little girl who was imprisoned for 16 days by that dear "friend of the family," John Esposito. Here are a few questions prompted by the story:

- Where were the girl's school and teachers? Katie had not come to school since October. Was there no investigation? Years ago when this editor taught in East Harlem, truancy of any child over seven was taken seriously. Parents would have been hauled into court if they did not send children to school. Teachers also intervened when they saw signs of neglect. The editor personally did so on three occasions - once when a child could not attend because her family could not afford shoes, a second time when a child had a skin eruption (from malnutrition, it turned out), once when a boy badly needed glasses and his parents would not (or could not) provide them. In all three cases, the problems were resolved. Katie was a neglected child - shabby, dirty, with head lice. Why was she not helped?
- What will become of John Esposito? Will he be out on parole in a few years to repeat his unspeakable deeds? Surely the court should try to launch as many charges against him as possible, throw the book at him for each conviction, then sentence him not concurrently but in succession for each crime. Pedestasty is not considered curable. It would be well if this man was never freed again - but perhaps our laws do not allow that. He should certainly be denied parole.
- What will become of Katie now? This is a hard one to answer. After farming the girl out to virtual strangers (a "godmother" whose husband is questionable), then relinquishing her custody to the County, Mom suddenly wants her back. Is she motivated by love or greed? Sleaze TV programs are now prepared to pay big bucks for Katie's story. On the other hand, wrenching this poor kid away from the only relatives she has known, may not be in her best interest.

A Judge will have to have the wisdom of Solomon to decide on Katie's future. Please God that he or she may have that wisdom!

A year in review

By Jason Zappe
Copley News Service

As far as children's books go in 1992, the year showed some definite trends and, above all, a plethora of publishing.

Well-known writers turned their finely-honed skills for younger audiences and fared pretty well. The year also saw quite a few coffee-table books for kids and plenty of informational and encyclopedialike books to bolster knowledge of the world.

The following are some of the books I reviewed over the year that I found to be stand outs.

INFORMATION

"First Encyclopedia" by Brian and Brenda Williams; Random House; $18; 189 pages.

Trying to flip through this book is impossible. Something always catches the eye and calls for a close look. For a first encyclopedia, this one overflows with useful information.

Some of the text is basic, but there are thousands of themes covered. From science and technology to history and to nature, hungry minds will fill up fast. And just enough information is provided to spark an interest to learn more.

The authors amply mix full-color illustrations with photographs, maps and text.

"The Young People's Atlas of the United States" by James Harrison and Eleanor Van Zandt; Kingfisher Books; $16.95; 128 pages.

Here is another jam-packed reference book for young learners. Even with small space (two pages for each state), the authors have assembled a concise history of all the United States and still provide little tidbits on each state.

Each state receives a brief historical overview surrounded by color photographs, illustrations and pertinent data. Readers see a map of the state and where the state sits in relation to its neighbors.

The text is worded in a sophisticated manner and offers information to be learned rather than regurgitated. From Dixieland jazz in Louisiana to Niagara Falls, little armchair travelers will become experts on the United States.

"The Aztecs" by Tim Wood; Viking; $15; 48 pages.

From the grand temples of Montezuma to the houses of commoners, Wood displays the empire of the Aztecs. With bold color illustrations highlighted with "see-through scenes," this look at the great Aztec civilization is hard to put down.

The "see-through scenes" are color transparencies that help exhibit buildings and palaces for a better look-see. This added feature makes gazing at the pictures seem like magic.

In addition to the lavish illustrations, Wood includes photographs of relics, the symbols used by the Aztecs and detailed descriptions of rituals, daily practices, social organization and warfare.

"Ancient Rome" by Simon James; Viking; $15; 48 pages.

With the same format as "The Aztecs," "Ancient Rome" takes readers from the beginnings of the empire to its ruin.

Filled with blazing, colorful illustrations, the "see-through scenes" highlight this look at gladiators, senators and Romans.

The "see-through scenes" give readers up-close glances at a bathhouse, a soldier's barracks, a mansion and the Theater.

James breathes a little fresh air into an old subject. And keep a lookout for the graffiti.

"The Reader's Digest Children's World Atlas" Reader's Digest; $20; 128 pages.

This atlas makes the perfect addition to any kid's home library. This up-to-date atlas even contains maps and information in a chapter titled "Former Soviet Union."

Information included is tight and flanked by full-color illustrations, maps and photographs. All major aspects of each region of the world are covered. From animals to languages to history and religions, everything a young student wants to know can be found among the pages.

This atlas stands out as one of the finer books to offer the world in its pages.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM

"The Kingfisher Illustrated Encyclopedia of Animals" by Michael Chinery; Kingfisher Books; $19.95; 379 pages.

With the help of a team of experts, Chinery's encyclopedia blankets the animal world with reams of information. From lapwings to puffins to click beetles, "Animals" exposes more than 2,000 animals of all types.

This encyclopedia explodes with full-color photographs, full-color illustrations and enough quality information to wow a biologist. All the information is accurate, exciting and doesn't talk down to young readers.

Aside from providing information about the animals, subject descriptions are included. For example, under "Camouflage," readers discover how certain species use plants to hide from predators. Also included are animal languages, courtship and mating, migration and balance of nature.

Simply flipping pages through this treasure trove provides a rewarding experience.

"1,000 Facts About Wild Animals" by Moira Butterfield; Kingfisher Books; $3.95; 48 pages.

Full-color illustrations highlight this journey into the amazing world of animal facts.

Its pages bark and buzz with facts, illustrations and herds of fun. Information found among the pages and feathers include:

- Vultures sometimes eat too much and can't fly.

- Sloths let green algae grow on their fur for camouflage.

- Crocodiles sometimes climb trees.

- The hummingbird is the only bird that can fly backward.

The facts found in this book will amaze and shock. The shocking facts come from the sections on endangered and extinct animal life. With care and education learned from this book, maybe not all life will suffer the same consequences as the dodo bird.

"Tigers" by Jean-Pierre Zwaenepoel; Chronicle Books; $12.95; 80 pages.

A little heavy in text for children, but the full-color pictures will astound little eyes. The collection of photos was taken of the Indian tiger in India's Bandhavgarh National Park.

The pictures cover a two-year period and are of Barkha, Sita, Nar Bachha, Hardia, Dao, Balram and Safeda. From playtime to hunting to fighting with each other, this pictorial chronicle of these magnificent beasts is breathtaking.

One set of pictures may be too much for younger lookers-on. Barkha suffers a severe wound to his cheek during a fight. It is exposed and park officials must act to save his life.

Zwaenepoel presents a sensitive tale of how life in the wild should be.

"Nature's Deadly Creatures" by Frances Jones; Dial Books; $15; 13 pages.

Beware of this book. Inside the pop-up pages lie the world's most deadly creatures. And a few of them will give readers quite a scare, especially the cobra.

This book is not for the timid youngster, because the pop-ups work better than most. This helps increase the fear factor as a slithering Gila monster jumps out of the book into a reader's face.

Not only is the book scary, but it contains valuable information about each of the six deadly creatures. Included are the scorpion fish, black widow, scorpion, king cobra, Gila monster and blue-ringed octopus. All of them are deadly, due to their poison and not their strength.

Pages contain the frightening pop-ups, illustrations, photographs and ample text. With a flip through these pages, any youngster will be an expert on these deadly creatures.

"Animals Around the World" by Robin Kerrod; Prentice Hall; $15; 95 pages.

Kerrod overflows the book with full-color photos and illustrations, maps, charts, diagrams and plenty of information on the present and future status of some of the world's animals.

Kerrod divides the book by geographic area and includes the animals and their habitats. From boreal forest to scrubland, the animal kingdom comes to life. If you don't know that monkeys live in mangroves or that spiders can live in rivers, this is the perfect book to see animals where they live.

What I Will Be When I Grow Up?

Career Day at Fork Lane: Second grade students explored a variety of career options for their special project. They researched a career, collected pictures related to the profession, wrote a report and in a culminating activity dressed up as a member of the profession. The students shared their costumes and aspirations with their classmates as they attempted to identify costumes with professions.
