Parenting Workshop

Parenting and Prevention: A workshop to assist the parents of Middle and High School students understand adolescent behavior, was presented by Dr. John Imhof, Administrative Director of Mental Health Services at the North Shore University Hospital, on March 16, at 7:30 p.m. to an audience of fifty parents of Hicksville students.

A former classroom teacher and director of a drug education program, Dr. Imhof is also the editor of North Shore University Hospital's substance abuse newsletter. His experiences in drug and alcohol prevention and intervention program development provided parents with a perspective from the parent and student points of view.

Dr. Imhof encouraged parents to view advertising and media messages through the eyes of their children, who are impressionable and vulnerable to influences. He discussed adolescent needs for acceptance and how peer pressure impacts upon all youngsters. For many youngsters, their "image" in front of their peers is most important and for some, drugs and alcohol can fill the "gap" that they feel may be missing.

The speaker stressed the importance of communication and involvement as key to developing and maintaining a healthy relationship with children. Knowing your child well.

his/her habits, mood swings, behaviors and friends will always clue you into what is going on in their lives.

The workshop was sponsored by the Hicksville Public Schools Office of Pupil Personnel Services and the High School and Middle School PTSA's.

Martial Arts For Road Runners

Liz Kennedy delivers her message to the Road Runners Club.

Emphasizing the need for self-confidence and training in self-defense, martial arts instructor Liz Kennedy captivated the audience of more than 125 people at the March meeting of the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club.

The diminutive Black Belt holder, who is associated with the Modern Warrior School of Martial Arts in Lindenhurst and the American Women's Self Defense Association, demonstrated some relatively easy self defense "strategies" that would be particularly useful for runners accosted while out on the roads, and showed how a key chain could prove to be an effective tool for self defense. She repeatedly reminded the audience "to act like an opponent, not like a victim" in order to discourage would-be assailants.

"This was a very useful session," noted POBRRC's Sylvia Zinn. "I learned quite a bit, and I'm sure that most everyone else did also."

Bungle Night at East Woods

From belly dancing to bagpipes, the families and faculty of East Woods School in Oyster Bay participated in a fun-filled evening on February 5. Bungle Night, a family variety show, has been an annual highlight for ten years, according to producers and East Woods' parents Robin Senior and Jamie Deming.

It is an evening in which children (from Nursery to Ninth Grade), parents, and faculty are center stage doing skits, lip-syncing, and dance. Standing Room Only is the order for the night for this most popular event.

The crowd pleasing audience participation number is the highlight of the evening, according to Music Director and M.C. for the night Paul Oechalini.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

Looking at a Dennis the Menace comic, grandpa was in the attic showing an old phonograph to Dennis. "Wow, no wires or Nothin'" said Dennis. He also saw an old comic book with Mutt & Jeff, Maggie and Jiggs plus Krazy Kat, all new to Dennis.

Hearing on the radio about Helen Hayes brought me back to the 60's. My wife, Eleanor, and I were walking across Times Square and Helen Hayes was walking towards us crossing, as they passed each other Helen Hayes said, Good afternoon, to Eleanor with a smile and Eleanor returned a greeting. After a heavy snow, do you remember how Broadway was cleared of snow from curb to curb including the sidewalks, all done before store hours. If necessary the snow was carted away. That was before the State took over the area when they widened the road.

When last did you break off a nice clean, cool icicle to suck on as a frozen pop? I never could save any for the hot summer days not even the snowballs. Seeing a T.V. outside a shop just before the snow storm, I wondered did it malfunction getting excess snow causing our storm. My TV just gets a little snow on some channels.

Avoid swindlers and financial scams

By R.J. Ignelzi

Some economists say the worst of the recession is over. However, judging from the number of rip-offs reported to the Better Business Bureau, nobody has bothered to tell the scam artists.

Some swindlers are tailoring their scams to people facing financial hardship. Here are some rip-offs to watch for:

- Advance fee loans: If you need to borrow money, beware of the company that charges you in advance for the promise of easily available, low-cost loans, often through foreign sources. Also, be cautious of advertisements offering loans of large amounts regardless of your credit history or collateral. Brokers of the advance-fee loans are acting as money finders for you but your payment usually goes into their pockets — and they don't bother to look for a loan for you.

- Business opportunities: Don't jump hastily into a business opportunity without investigating it thoroughly. Pyramid schemes — chain recruitment plans that sell a product or service to new recruits, who, in turn, recruit others — are the kind of fraudulent business "opportunity" that leaves investors broke.

Look for legitimate multilevel marketing businesses that emphasize a solid, reliable product or service and do not rely exclusively on the recruitment of others to gain a profit.

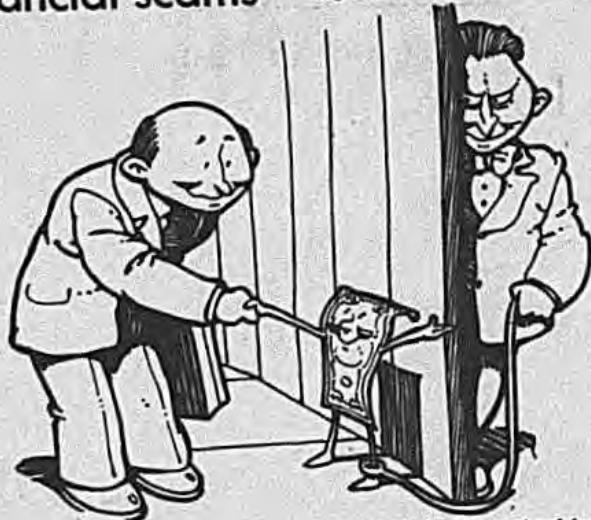

- Credit repair: If you've filed bankruptcy or had problems paying bills and your credit record needs help, ads for quick credit relief may be tempting. Try to resist. You can save yourself a hefty fee by challenging your credit report and having inaccurate negative information removed from your credit record at no cost. However, when it comes to accurate negative information, only time can erase that — usually seven to 10 years. No credit repair clinic, no matter what their promises or their price, can help remove your bad credit history.

If you are unable to pay bills on time and are worried about your credit record, contact your creditors immediately. Most will try to work out a payment schedule with you.

- Job listing services: Beware of these employment services that advertise they have "secret" or "unlisted" job information they will sell to you for several hundred dollars. Often the only thing they have to sell are stale, worthless job ads they've copied from old newspapers and trade magazines. You can find authentic, up-to-date job ads and information for the price of a newspaper.

- Work-at-home schemes: The promise of hundreds of dollars for a few hours at home stuffing envelopes, assembling toys or breeding small animals may sound like the perfect working situation. However, the Better Business Bureau has found that too often these offers are only come-ons to get you to buy information on how to set up a business.

mail from local or regional fund-raisers or businesses.

To register, send your name and address, plus all name variations under which you and members of your household receive mail, to Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 3881, New York, NY 10163-3881.

Be patient. The service sends an updated mailing list to participating businesses and organizations only four times a year, so you may not see results immediately.

As long as you are contacting the Direct Marketing Association, you also may want to register with the Telephone Preference Service. The association will put your name and phone number on a list distributed to participating members so you will not receive unsolicited sales calls from them.

To register, send your name, address, area code and telephone number to Telephone Preference Service, at the Direct Marketing Association address listed above.

You are probably on an in-house mailing list if you are a member of an organization, have bought merchandise from a mail-order company or if someone has given you a mail-order gift. Contact these companies and tell them to remove your name from their in-house list. Be sure to specify that either you want all mailings from them stopped or your want to continue to receive their materials but want your name removed from lists they rent or trade.

Your goal is to limit the use of your name so fewer people will trade and rent it. Here are a few ways to do that.

You can reduce national advertising mail by at least 75 percent by registering with the Mail Preference Service. This mail-cancellation service is offered free by the Direct Marketing Association, a trade group representing more than 3,500 organizations and businesses, including publishers, catalog firms, list brokers, advertising agencies and other groups that use direct marketing.

By registering with this service, your name will be removed from major U.S. mailing lists for five years. Most national direct-mail firms, including giants such as L.L. Bean, Lands' End and the National Wildlife Federation, all use this service. Registering with this service, however, does not affect first contact national companies and organizations, which give out your name more frequently, then contact regional, state and local businesses and groups.

You can cut down on the number of catalogs you get in the mail by specifying how many you want per year. A growing number of catalog companies are letting consumers set the limit. Simply complete and return the card inserted in most catalogs.

If you get mail from a company or organization with which you do not do business, the group has probably rented or traded for your name. Write to them or call their toll-free number and tell them you do not wish to receive their mailings.

Give out your name and address only when it is absolutely necessary, and then request that it not be given to anyone else.

ACCESSIBLE INVESTMENTS

You're never too busy to invest wisely

By Jason Zappe

Everywhere you turn people are telling you to save, save, save. But how can you spend the time investigating investment ideas if you're part of a fast-track, dual-career family with only enough free time for a couple of smooches and howdy-dos?

According to tax attorney-turned-investment-guru-author Mary L. Sprouse, there are plenty of ways to invest your hard earned money without having to invest your hard earned spare time.

She outlines her investment guide for two-earners with no time for investing in her book "Spouse's Two-Earner Money Book" (Viking).

And it doesn't take long to breeze through the "seven speedy investments" she lists.

• EE savings bonds. Sprouse says these bonds, once sold for patriotism, are now designed for the sophisticated investor and offer competitive, variable rates.

But she says that's not the real reason they're a great catch. It's because of their safety and simplicity factor. They're backed by the federal government and are sold at 50 percent face value. A $1,000 bond sells for $500.

The bonds pay a variable interest rate adjusted every six months to keep in step with inflation. And the interest is exempt from state and federal taxes until you cash them in.

To find out more about the series EE bonds contact your bank or credit union.

• Certificates of deposit. This is low-maintenance investing. Many institutions offer CDs with variable interest rates and length of deposit and minimum opening balances.

When you're notified your CD is about to expire, you can simply tell the bank to roll it over and you're off investing again.

• Money market mutual funds. According to Sprouse, this is the spot for your money if your interested in yield, liquidity and safety.

She recommends when shopping for a money fund, look at its yield over the past 12 months.

The minimum initial investment usually is about $1,000. You can add to this at anytime without penalty. And you can conduct all transactions by mail or phone.

- U.S. Treasury bonds. Here's another risk-free investment like the EE Bonds. With Treasury bonds you can invest $1,000 for bonds that will mature from one to 10 years and pay a fixed interest rate twice a year.

The length of maturity determines the interest rate. The longer the maturity, the higher the interest rate.

- Blue-chip stocks. Sprouse calls these the "aristocracy of stocks."

The reputation comes from their trustworthiness and proven earnings records. But they aren't cheap to get into.

Some of the more notable companies are Coca-Cola, AT&T, Bristol-Myers and General Motors. What makes them good catches is that they pay high dividends consistently.

If you have the cash these are great long-term buys. You receive good dividends quarterly and the chances are better than average that the price of the stock will go up.

However, you are playing the stock market, which takes time in the beginning to find the right stock. But once you've chosen, you can sit back and reap the divies.

- Stock mutual funds. Investing in this mode allows you to play the stock market but in a passive manner.

When you invest in one of these funds you place your money in a company that pools money from thousands of investors to buy and sell securities.

Sprouse says these are clear winners over individual stocks because of the diversification and minimum of effort required on your part outside of the investment.

She recommends holding the fund for at least five years to allow for rebounds and downturns.

- Single-premium life and universal life II insurance. Sprouse says these allow busy investors to build up tax-deferred earnings. Because these two are primarily investment vehicles, she advises you don't buy them to meet your life insurance needs.

They may be good, but she says the only real appeal is tax benefits because returns tend to be lower than with other investments.

AUDIT ADVICE

Avoiding, surviving the tax exam

By Sharon Achatz

No one knows for sure what triggers a tax audit, but one thing's for sure — no one wants to be involved when the IRS says "prove it."

Perhaps the best advice of how to avoid an audit comes from the book "The Price Waterhouse Personal Tax Adviser" (Pocket Books): "Fill out your returns as honestly and completely as you can. That way if an audit does come your way, you know your heart — and your Form 1040 — are pure."

AVOIDING AN AUDIT

To begin, check your return for mathematical accuracy. Inconsistent information is one red flag the IRS almost never ignores.

Have an accountant or attorney review the return after you have prepared it. This relatively inexpensive step can help you avoid major mistakes that could trigger an audit.

Include an explanation with your return of anything that seems unusual, says certified public accountant Tim Considine — such as a large number of exemptions or substantially less income than the previous year.

If you don't have enough time to accurately prepare your income tax return by April 15, file a form for extension of the filing deadline.

IRS RED FLAGS

Be aware, however, that requesting an extension or filing an amended tax return may also act as red flags attracting IRS scrutiny of your return.

Other factors that make it more likely a taxpayer will be audited include:

- Itemization of deductions.
- Payment or receipt of alimony.
- Investment in tax shelters.
- Home office deduction.
- Travel and entertainment expense deductions.
- Unusually large charitable contributions.
- High casualty losses.

PREPARE FOR AN AUDIT

Despite your best efforts to the contrary, if you are audited, prepare yourself in advance. Look over your return to refresh your memory. Examine the items the IRS questioned in its notice of audit, and organize your records and documentation accordingly.

You should have answers for all of the questions the IRS raises, as well as documentation to substantiate your answers — including receipts for all purchases and business expenses. To make this audit documentation easier, substantiate your records as much as possible during the course of the year. It helps to always think "What could I show the IRS if I am audited?"

Advisers recommend keeping records at least five years and tax returns forever.

No matter how much documentation you have available, however, be guided by this general rule: Provide only the information requested and answer only the questions asked. Don't raise issues the auditor hasn't raised, or the audit may extend into areas you aren't prepared to discuss.

TYPES OF AUDITS

Most audits are conducted at IRS offices. An office audit usually covers only a few specific issues that the IRS specifies in its notice to you. During field audits, however, the IRS representative visits your home or business site. Field audits generally involve business returns and self-employed individuals. They are more extensive and time-consuming than office audits.

FILING FINESSE Savvy strategies for taxing times

Special Family Finances Pages

By Sharon Achatz

Despite all claims to the contrary, it's more complicated than ever to file an income tax return. "Simplified" forms notwithstanding, tax time means it's time to stock up not only on scratch paper and calculator batteries, but also aspirin.

While folks with a mind for figures and relatively simple financial situations probably can complete the forms on their own, few people today actually plan and manage their tax situation alone.

People with any doubts whatsoever about their return — or ways to minimize their taxes — would be wise to seek the assistance of a qualified financial expert. A tax adviser can help maximize tax savings for last year; a financial planner can help plan for tax-saving opportunities in the future.

What follows are additional suggestions for taming the annual taxing ritual.

FILING FINESSE

- File as early as possible if you expect a refund. The earlier you send in your tax return, the sooner you'll get your money out of the government's coffers — where it earns nothing — and into your own savings account or investments.

- Consider taking the standard deduction occasionally if you have only modest write-offs. That way, you can bunch payment of deductible expenses into a subsequent year when it will be more to your advantage to itemize.

- If you're married, consider filing separate returns. Joint filers typically pay less tax, however, separate filing can save if one spouse has a much lower adjusted gross income than the other and a relatively large sum of deductions based on the size of the AGI, such as medical.

- If you're single or divorced and contribute to the support of a child who lives with the other parent, consider filing as head of household. You'll get a higher standard deduction and pay at a lower tax rate.

- File a return even if you owe no tax. The IRS cannot be sure whether taxes are due or not until the return has been prepared and filed. Also, a parent may be eligible for earned income credit, which means he actually may receive money even if no taxes are owed.

- Double check forms before mailing to the IRS — even forms prepared by a pro frequently contain costly errors. Also, check all documents, such as W-2 and 1099 forms, against your year-end pay stub and other records for accuracy.

TROUBLESHOOTING TOPICS

- If you can't pay in full the amount of taxes due, don't ignore the filing deadline. Double-search for ways to raise the funds, making sure you don't overlook assets such as savings bonds, stocks or loans taken out on a cash-value insurance policy, 401(k) plan or home-equity line of credit.

If you still come up short, pay what you can and the IRS will bill you for the rest. Penalties for failing to file are worse than for failing to pay, and borrowing to cover a tax shortfall will cost less than paying the IRS penalties.

- If you have a frustration to vent with the government, think twice before using your tax return to make your point. The law imposes strict penalties for filing a frivolous return.

- Not all tax preparers are honest. Red flags indicating that a tax preparer could be setting you up for an audit or ripping off your refund: asking you to sign either a blank form or a return filled out in pencil; requesting that the refund be sent directly to the preparer; promising a refund without having seen your financial information; taking as his fee a percentage of what he saves you by preparing your return.

- If, after filing your return, you find a mistake, file an amended return.

While the IRS generally can audit back only three years, most tax preparers advise keeping records for six to seven years.

YEAR-END TAX SLASHERS

No matter how much year-round planning is accomplished, year-end still will be time to think about grabbing as many deductions as possible before New Year's Day. Postponing income is another major way to cut down on a tax bill, as tax liability on that income will be pushed back for an entire year.

By Alison Ashton

Is there gold hidden in the back of your closets or the corner of your garage? Maybe.

Collectors and investors have long known that coins, stamps, jewelry, art and antiques are smart places to stash their cash. But those with an eye to the future know that today's junk could be tomorrow's pot of gold.

How about a Popeye Pez dispenser for $30? Or a Cap'n Crunch cereal box for $50? These are just a couple of contemporary items that have increased in value in recent years. If you hate to throw anything away, you just might find that it pays to be a pack rat.

EDUCATE YOURSELF

But how does a novice learn to separate the junk from the treasure? Before you buy or sell, do some research by attending auctions and flea markets.

Then start reading. Most collectors have special-interest publications, and, of course, clubs.

Special-interest books also are a must. For a general rundown, pick up "Kovel's Antiques & Collectibles Price List" by Ralph and Terry Kovel (Crown) or "The Official Price Guide to Antiques and Collectibles" by David P. Lindquist (House of Collectibles).

For more specific interests, there are books like "Collecting Coins for Pleasure & Profit" by Barry Krause (Betterway Publications) and "Stamp Collecting: The Complete, Easy Guide to the World's Most Popular Hobby" by Charles F. Adams (Dell).

A little education will make you a savvier shopper when you visit flea markets, auctions and garage sales. When you need more guidance, consult an expert who specializes in your area of interest. For example, if you collect antique garden accessories, find a dealer who specializes in that.

COLLECT FOR LOVE

Chances are, a special interest has sparked your desire to collect. One man in San Diego has the biggest collection of Barbie dolls in the world; experts speculate that his horde is worth more than $1 million.

But can you afford to indulge your desire? If you love baseball, maybe not. Last year, Lou Gehrig's 1938 Yankees jersey was auctioned for $220,000. Baseball cards can command upward of $100,000.

Of course, movie buffs will pay top dollar for anything from Madonna's bustier to the red shoes from "The Wizard of Oz." Movie posters have real cache — a fine-quality poster for "Casablanca" brings $6,000 to $7,500. Horror-movie buffs will have to plunk down at least $15,000 for a poster from the 1931 version of "Dracula" starring Bela Lugosi.

If your checkbook doesn't stretch to those limits, look to more contemporary items. Political memorabilia is a popular collectible, and one that's relatively affordable. Calvin Coolidge pins start at about $100. Interestingly, according to Robb Report, objects for losing candidates command more than the winners.

Keeping an eye on headlines also helps predict what contemporary items will increase in value. Smart collectors of political paraphernalia saved their Ross Perot pins, posters and bumper stickers. Prices for Pee-wee Herman dolls shot up after Paul Reubens' scandal last year.

HOME EQUITY LINE OF CREDIT

BELow PRIME-5.75% APR

FIRST YEAR'S INTEREST 1/4% BELOW PRIME! 5.75%*

This is a Discounted Initial Rate guaranteed for 12 months from the day the line of credit account is established and subject to adjustment up or down each month based on the Prime Rate as published in "The Wall Street Journal" on the last business day of the preceding month, rounded to the highest 1/16th.

Using the current Prime Rate of 6.00% as the end of the month published rate, this would result in a 5.75% APR.

...THEN, JUST 3 1/4% ABOVE PRIME.

Therefore, the rate will be .75% above the Prime Rate as published in "The Wall Street Journal" on the last business day of each month, rounded to the highest 1/16th%. Currently, with Prime Rate at 6.00%, this would result in a 6.75%APR.

LOW LIFETIME CAP. NO POINTS.

No matter how high interest rates may climb in the future, you'll never have to pay a rate higher than 14.75%. Reliance charges no origination fee (points), no fees on your up-front costs, too.

10 YEARS INTEREST ONLY. 20 YEARS TO REPAY.

There are no payments unless and until you use your line of credit. You can pay interest only for the first 10 years and still have 20 additional years to repay the principal. WHAT'S MORE, THE CURRENT INCOME TAX LAWS MAY PERMIT YOU TO DEDUCT YOUR INTEREST PAYMENTS. Check with your tax advisor.

INSTANT ACCESS BY CHECK.

Apply once for 10 years of quick and easy access to the equity in your home, up to as much as $200,000, not to exceed 70% of the appraised value less your first mortgage balance (if any). You just write a check for the amount you need as the need arises.

REASONABLE COSTS - NO ORIGINATIOn FEE (Points).

Balance changes no origination fee (points). Other costs payable to third parties normally associated with mortgages closing will apply, such as appraisal, legal, title insurance, mortgage tax and recording fees. Closing costs for a $10,000 line of credit will total approximately $200. These costs can be charged as a loan advance against your line of credit. A Home Equity Line of Credit is a mortgage secured by the borrower's house or condominium and is not available on cooperatives.

PLUS TWO MINI HOME EQUITY LOANS

1 year term between $5,000 and $50,000. Mini Home Equity financing from Reliance is the FAST, LOW-COST ALTERNATIVE. You can select a revolving line of credit with variable rate, or a fixed amount with a fixed rate. Homeowners won't find a better way to borrow. You can use our Mini Home Equity Loans for home improvements, to buy a car, to pay off other high rate loans and credit cards or for any other worthwhile purpose. You pay NO POINTS, NO APPLICATION FEE, NO PREPAYMENT PENALTIES + LOW CLOSING COSTS. * Best of all, your interest payments may be 100% tax deductible! See your accountant or tax advisor about the tax-saving opportunities.

1. MINI HOME EQUITY LINE OF CREDIT LOAN

A variable rate revolving line of credit. Just write a check for the amount you need as the need arises. Pay interest only on the amount you borrow and only when you use the line. Repayments replenish the line. You can pay only interest for the first 5 years, and have an additional 10 years to repay the balance. LOW LIFETIME CAP OF 12%.

FIRST 6 MONTHS INTEREST AT PRIME! 6.00%.

This is a Discounted Initial Rate guaranteed for 6 months from the day the line of credit account is established and subject to adjustment up or down each month based on the Prime Rate as published in "The Wall Street Journal" on the last business day of the preceding month, rounded to the highest 1/16th%. Using the current Prime Rate of 6.00% as the end of the month published rate, this would result in a 6.00%APR.

...THEN, JUST 1 1/4% ABOVE PRIME.

Therefore, the rate will be 1.25% above the Prime Rate as published in "The Wall Street Journal" on the last business day of each month, rounded to the highest 1/16th%.

Currently, with Prime Rate at 6.00%, this would result in a 7.25%APR.

2. MINI HOME EQUITY/FIXED RATE LOAN

Fixed Rate, Fixed Term, Fixed Amounts. Monthly Payments Do Not Change Over the Life of the Loan.

8.50%	1-20 months/ from $5,000	9.00%	11-120 months/ from $10,000	10.00%	121-180 months/ from $15,000

P.O.W./M.I.A.
Chairman At
Lamb K. of C.

Paul Masi, P.O.W./M.I.A. chairman of the Nassau Chapter 82 Vietnam Veterans of America, was the featured speaker at the March social meeting of the Joseph F. Lamb Council No. 5723 Knights of Columbus, Hicksville-Plainview. The meeting was held on Thursday evening, March 16, in the school basement of Our Lady of Mercy in Hicksville.

Mr. Masi gave a very informative talk on the unresolved matters, relating to United States Servicemen, still missing and unaccounted for, from the Vietnam and Korean conflicts, and also the Laos area. He stated that there still are many questions remaining about the validity of reports on prisoners of war still missing in action. "Has Washington sources the right in saying that all M.I.A.s have been accounted for?" There are 2,260 American Servicemen, (M.I.A.s), unaccounted for! Assuming that one half were killed - there still remains 1,130 about which nothing is known. Questions certainly still remain!

Mr. Masi informed the very large turnout of Joe Lamb members, that Congressman Peter King has submitted a resolution, (H. RES. 122), in the House of Representatives to establish a select committee on P.O.W. & M.I.A. Affairs. This resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules. H. RES. 122 was submitted on March 9, 1993. Mr. Masi requested the audience to inform their neighbors about the M.I.A. situation and to request them to contact their representatives in Washington, to support this bill. He was warmly applauded by those on hand and was thanked for his illuminating talk by P.F.N., F.D.D., Grand Knight Peter Volpe video cassettes pertaining to P.O.W./M.I.A.s were also shown.

Paul Masi resides in Bethpage with his wife and two children. He is very active in the affairs of the Nassau Chapter 82 of the Vietnam Veterans of America, and gives talks about the P.O.W./M.I.A.s on many occasions. He served in Vietnam in 1966/1967 as a member of the 1st Marine Corp.

We of Joe Lamb K. of C. certainly commend him for his efforts!

NOTICE
HAVE YOU A HIDDEN TALENT that has yet to be discovered in print?

If you want to be published and be part of an issue of Discovery, you may submit your article to: Limer Publications, 81 East Barclay Street, Hicksville, N.Y. 11801.

Library Staff "Goodbye" Party

The Hicksville Public Library staff bid adieu to an esteemed friend and colleague this past week, at the Westbury Manor. Departing from her position as Senior Library Clerk and head of the Circulation Department was Mrs. Joyce Grant. She was a most efficient administrator of the second-language library book collection in Nassau County and had served well previously in various capacities. Mrs. Grant and her retired husband, Edward, will be taking up a new life in northern Pennsylvania's farm country.

Joyce Grant enjoys her "Goodbye" party at the Westbury Manor. With the Hicksville Public Library senior clerk is her happy husband, Edward.

Admiring a Town of Oyster Bay scroll testifying to her outstanding public service is Mrs. Joyce Grant and Marc Herbst, Library Board President, and representative for Town Supervisor Lewis Yevoli and the Town Board.

Holding a beautiful scarf presented by her many colleagues of the Hicksville Library staff is Joyce Grant. Looking on is her husband, Edward.

Some of many co-workers from the public library staff on hand to salute Joyce Grant (seated, right) start the party off hilariously.

Mixed Ideas On Tuition For Community Service

There is a difference of opinion on whether community service to pay off college loans would work in answer to this question: "What do you think of President Clinton's proposal to allow students to borrow from the government for college tuition and to repay by performing community service?" Here are some of the answers:

GOOD BUT POOR

Clinton's proposal to allow students to borrow college tuition to be repaid with community service is a perfect example of a good concept which will be ruined by poor execution. Students will borrow thousands of dollars and then find all sorts of heart wrenching reasons not to perform community service. Look at the past different federal loans programs where the government lost many billions of dollars because students did not repay the loans. The Congressional hearing a few years back was a real eye-opener of the massive fraud going on in the student loan program. R.B.

NOT A DREAM

Being able to attend a college of your choice is an opportunity that should not be restricted to the privileged few. For those who are unable to pay their entire tuition there are many scholarships available if the students seek them. I do not think the government should be the only source of aid. Pres. Clinton's proposal is a good one if community service is performed now not later in schools libraries, hospitals or government offices on a part-time basis during the summer. Being a college graduate can be an obtainable goal not an impossible dream. C.P.

SURPRISED IF IT WORKS

The problem with Pres. Clinton's plan to allow college students to do community service for loans to college is that it will probably turn out like so many government boondoggles in which the so-called community service will be of little value to anyone and the government will not supervise the program enough to get its money back. Otherwise the idea is a good one but like so many government ideas we will be surprised if it works. Q.F.

MEIGHT WORK

With the cost of a college education escalating there will have to be some way to allow people with little money to go to college. Otherwise the American dream will be one that will not include most of the people. If Pres. Clinton really works out a good program of worthwhile community service to be performed the idea will be a good one and could benefit the student and the community while giving an education. J.F.

APPRECIATION

I believe in the idea of asking for community service instead of just opening up more free colleges. Students who have to do something to earn their education will value it more highly and we will avoid the possibility that colleges will simply go the way of many public high schools, that is, unappreciated schools by a number of the students who do not see what the taxpayer is giving to them. B.D.

MAKE A PROGRAM

The trouble with evaluating the idea of community service in return for a college education is that it is a broad concept that will have to be refined into a program before it can be told if it is a good idea. There will also have to be some way to force repayment of the loans by those who do not follow through and give community service. all of these things can be done and if they are I think Clinton has a good idea. J.S.

LAST RESORT

There may not be as great a need for the community service idea as it would seem. The cost of college education is going up and is already out of reach for many families but counteracting this is the fact that better students will be given scholarships through many colleges and will not have to forgo an education because of finances. In addition there are places to work and earn money for students. But if all else fails then the community service government loan should be a possibility. M.V.

NOT GOOD IDEA

Quite frankly, I don't think much of the idea of students borrowing from the government for college tuition and making repayment by performing community service. I may be misinformed but I believe that this practice already exists at least in a similar form and I have been informed that it is not uncommon for such loans to be neglected from the standpoint of repayment and often deliberately so. At a time when we are trying to devote our most serious attention to a resolution of our National debt, I believe it would be far too risky to commit millions of dollars to a suggested prospect of this kind while at the same time giving serious thought to increasing taxes with Social Security at great risk. I hate to even think about the possibility of failure to meet such commitments and I believe that the alternative of performing community service would create more problems than it would solve. Musical Memories

By Dorothy R. Brown

When I graduated from High School, I went to work in New York City. In those days, a workweek consisted of 5½ days. I did not mind going to work on a Saturday for a half day because there was so much to do in the afternoon. There was the Paramount Theatre where all the well-known musical stars performed. One of our favorites was Frank Sinatra. All the bobby-sockers attended his shows. A bobby-socker was a young lady who wore ankle socks and saddle shoes and who screamed and swooned when Frankie sang. Since my friends and I were working gals, we had to wear high heels and stockings, but we did our share of screaming and swooning.

The 1939 World's Fair was in Flushing Meadow and we went there after work too. Sometimes our boyfriends accompanied us there. The Big Bands were the hits of that time. They played at the Fair, in New York City Hotels, in Casinos all around the country and in Music Halls. We were lucky to have been able to dance to the music of Glen Miller's Orchestra at this World Fair.

Since the hotels in the City had a cover charge, none of us were able to dance to the Big Bands at these hotels until WWII when the servicemen were admitted to the hotels without having to pay the cover charge. When my friend, Walter, was on leave, we danced to the music of Guy Lombardo's Band at the Hotel Roosevelt. I was in heaven dancing with this handsome GI to that beautiful music.

Many of the Big Bands played at the Army camps all over the United States and the world. Letters from our GIs told how happy they were when one of the Big Bands played at their camp.

When a new show opened on Broadway, we went to the Saturday matinee. I remember seeing Pal Joey, Oklahoma, Ziegfeld Follies, This is the Army, Carousel, Annie Get Your Gun, South Pacific, Guys and Dolls, and many, many more.

My dad worked for a music publisher in New York City and he knew many celebrities, one of whom was Dick Liebert, the organist of Radio City Music Hall. Mr. Liebert gave my father a permanent pass for two for these shows which consisted of a newsreel, a movie and stage show. I'd meet my dad at the Automat for dinner after which we went to the Music Hall. Many evenings, as we walked along 49th Street, my father would greet the stars of the musical world whom he knew. One evening, he told me to follow him across the street. I was surprised when he said,

"Ted, I'd like you to meet my daughter, Dorothy. Dot, this is Ted Mack." His amateur show was one of our favorites. I was so excited, I forgot to ask him for his autograph.

When we had relatives or friends from out-of-town, we would attend the Perry Como Show as well as many others that my dad would get us passes for.

My father was an accomplished musician. When we moved to Hicksville in 1922, he played the organ at St. Ignatius Church. When they hired a permanent organist, my dad played for the second Mid-Night Christmas Eve Mass in the auditorium. My sister, friends and I sang at this Mass. We had so much fun practicing for this celebration. During WWII, we became members of the St. Ignatius Choir.

My dad was also accompanist for the Hicksville Musical Group and also for a Choral organization in New York City.

My brother worked for music publishers in Long Island City and he would bring home complimentary popular music sheets. These were given to the stars and they contained the music only; there were no covers on them. After dinner, my father would play the songs and we'd sing them. We were good at predicting which ones would make the Hit Parade which was first on radio and then on television. This show was another of our favorites.

When friends and relatives came to our house, singing around the piano was an important pastime.

When my dad died in 1976, my mother gave me his piano. It is in my living room and many of the songs we used to sing are on the music stand. As I walk past the piano, I stop and look at the music and think how lucky I am to have such wonderful musical memories.

Q. Is it proper to apply lipstick at the dinner table? W.C.

A. You don't do it in anyone's home. You may, however, apply lipstick and a dab of powder at a restaurant table. If you are traveling abroad, applying cosmetics at a restaurant table is often considered gauche. If you are with a party of Americans, on the other hand, you may wish to follow your own custom in the matter. It is wise to be discreet.

Q. I do not understand why American restaurants continue to use French wording on their menus. Not long ago I ate in a place where various dishes were described as "a l'Espagnole", "a la Grecque" and "a l'Anglaise." Telling diners that the foods were prepared in the Spanish or Greek or English manner was not very helpful!

A. French cuisine is considered by many people to be the best in the world so it is not surprising that many terms dealing with food preparations are derived from the French!

Your waiter would have been pleased to inform you that a dish served "a l'Espagnole" is combined with tomatoes, onions and olives. One which is "a la Grecque" has a sauce of olive oil, lemon, spices and peppercorns. Anything served "a l'Anglaise" is boiled.

-Don't be intimidated by French (or Italian, German etc.) expressions in menus. Those terms are not difficult to master and after a time you will begin to see they are a useful "shorthand" for the diner, telling him about methods of food preparation and ingredients.

Q. My husband buries his head in the newspaper at breakfast and doesn't say a word to me throughout. He just reads me the second section. Shouldn't a husband be expected to carry on some conversation with his wife at breakfast? R.T.

A. No one should be expected to carry on a conversation at breakfast. Many people don't really wake up until later in the day. Enjoy that second section. This is not a new rule, by the way; it has always been so.

Q. What is the correct way to eat crackers in soup?

A. Small crackers, such as oyster crackers, may be added to the soup and eaten that way. However, large soda crackers should really not be crumbled into the soup. It is better to keep them on the plate and eat them along with the soup.

Q. I have been invited to a formal restaurant dinner later in the year. However, I am also on a strict diet for medical reasons. Do you think I should mention that to my hostess?

A. By all means, tell her. If she selects the menu for her guests, she will take your special diet into account. However, my own opinion is that where restaurant dinners are arranged it is better to allow guests to make their own food selections.

READER RATINGS

Q. On one or more occasions I have called your Reader Ratings to say that I disagreed with someone's assessment of a restaurant, but I never saw the call printed. Aren't you interested in any criticism? — P.H.

A. We certainly do want to hear all sides about restaurants that are featured here. We carefully look over all points of view. When something involves service or food we take the criticism on to the restaurant. If criticisms mount, we spot visit the restaurant and on several occasions we have discontinued a restaurant. But not all complaints mean that the place is bad, it could mean that they had an off day and do better most of the time. We try to distinguish.

Q. The other day I went to a restaurant and the waitress said to me, "What are you drinking?" And I said "water". She and other people smiled because she meant an alcoholic beverage when in fact I do not drink. Shouldn't she ask the question differently. — T.W.

A. The answer is Yes. And you need not have felt sheepish about your answer, it was perfectly correct. To not be a drinker is surely nothing to be ashamed of. In fact the other side might have more to hide.

Q. I've noticed many restaurants are now doing away with white tablecloths in favor of colored cloths of beige, light pink, peach or light gold. What do you think of this trend?

A. I happen to like it. I find tablecloths of a soft light color are easy on the eyes and add to the relaxing atmosphere. But this is just a personal opinion. Of course, white cloths are always correct and probably will continue to be preferred in more formal restaurants.

Q. Not long ago I ate in one of the most expensive restaurants on Long Island. Everything was beautifully cooked and served, but ketchup was placed on the table in the original Heinz bottle. I was appalled!

A. Perhaps the restaurant was afraid diners would not recognize the ketchup if it was placed in anything except the familiar bottle. I agree, though, that a Heinz bottle was out of place in the setting you describe. A small crystal dish, with a word of explanation from the waiter, would have been more appropriate.

Q. What are the rules of etiquette for eating cakes or confections?

A. Large pieces of cake should be eaten with a fork, and so should large or small cakes that are sticky or messy. Tiny cakes served in a paper frill may be picked up by the fingers and eaten the same way as chocolates or bonbons.

Q. The term "smorgasbord" has been around a long time and everyone knows it means buffet. But I would like to know the derivation of this word.

A. Smorgasbord comes from the Swedish and it can be translated simply as "sandwich table".

Q. Recently my fiance and I ate in an expensive restaurant. The food was excellent and so was the service. However, our table was located quite near the door and we felt a terrible draft anytime someone entered or left the premises. We were both extremely annoyed and will certainly never return to that particular restaurant. What is your opinion?

A. You should have told the maitre d' politely but firmly about the problem. He would certainly have shown you to another table if one was available. Even at this late date, you should consider sending a letter to the restaurant owner. I'm sure he wants to please his customers and will take your complaint very seriously. It would make good business sense for him to eliminate the draft!

If Your Restaurant is First Rate, We have a message for you.

Each week Litmor Newspapers presents a select dining guide called Reader Ratings to its readers. The guide presents the messages of outstanding restaurants in this area and it also is a forum for readers to tell other readers about why they like certain restaurants.

Reader Ratings, although it is read by up to 100,000 readers is an inexpensive way to meet the public and have the public meet you. Throughout many years, Reader Ratings has helped build loyal followings for some of the best restaurants in the area.

If your restaurant qualifies as a leader in the area we want to talk to you about being included in our guide. The cost is nominal and the results can be great.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Desiree Vives

I recently underwent some pretty nasty dental surgery. It wasn't any fun at the time, and it was no picnic afterward, either. I couldn't eat any solid food for about a week. My oral surgeon, a nice man whom I hope never to see again, said I'd be restricted to bland, lukewarm, easy-to-chew foods — when I could chew again, that is.

For the first week or so, I lived mostly on canned soups and what I affectionately called "blender goo." Considering I was dopey from pain pills most of the time, I did pretty well for myself.

When I ran out of applesauce, I blended up a can of peaches with a little plain yogurt, a few frozen strawberries, half a banana and some honey. And it was good.

As always, I found my microwave to be a real help. For instance, when milk straight from the fridge proved too cold for my sensitive mouth, I warmed up a cup for 30 to 45 seconds at LOW/DEFROST (30 percent power setting) until it was just the right temperature. And since I definitely wasn't into cleaning up any messes, I appreciated my clean-cooking microwave more than ever.

After the first week, I graduated to solid food of the bland, easy-to-chew variety. No microwave popcorn, no nachos. I still didn't feel much like cooking anyway, so I got pretty good at microwaving a variety of quick, mushy foods. Scrambled eggs are extra tender when microwaved (see Micro-Tip, below), and I dined on these more than once.

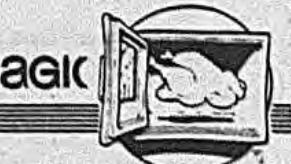

I quickly became fond of pureed vegetables. Any squash or root vegetable easily can be microwaved and then pureed. Try potatoes, carrots, turnips, parsnips, rutabagas, yams, acorn, Hubbard or butternut squash — alone or in any combination you like.

Peel vegetables, cut into $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch cubes, and microwave with about $\frac{1}{4}$ -cup water per cup of vegetables at HIGH (100 percent power) setting until tender. Add a little milk, plain yogurt, sour cream or cottage cheese and process in a blender until smooth, or simply mash with a fork.

This is a delicious way to enjoy vegetables when you can't chew, and it's popular with other family members, too. Winter Vegetable Puree or any vegetable puree can easily be transformed into a soup by simply adding more liquid (milk or broth).

Canned soups and broths are, of course, easiest to prepare, but if you're feeling up to it, you can make wonderful creamed vegetable soups in your microwave. Try Cream of Broccoli Soup or, to vary the recipe, substitute a 10-ounce package of some other frozen vegetable: cauliflower, zucchini, mixed vegetables.

I found quick-cooking pearl barley easy to microwave, soft and a pleasant change from rice. Combine $\frac{1}{4}$ cup barley with 1 cup water or chicken broth in a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 3 to 4 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes; check. Barley should be soft and ready to eat. If it's still too firm, microwave a minute or two longer.

WINTER VEGETABLE PUREE

1 medium carrot
1 medium parsnip or turnip
1 medium potato
1 cup water
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
Pinch salt
Pinch pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk
Yields about 1 to $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups.
Cooking time: 5 to 13 minutes (plus 5 minutes standing time).
Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Wash and peel all vegetables. Chop into uniform cubes (about $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick). Place in 1 1/2-quart microwave-safe casserole, add water; microwave 5 to 9 minutes until vegetables are just tender. Let stand 5 minutes.

Test vegetables with fork. If not quite tender, replace cover and microwave 2 to 4 minutes longer. Drain well.

Place vegetables in blender container; add butter or margarine, salt and pepper; cover and puree in blender. Add just enough milk to make vegetables smooth; puree again and serve.

CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP

1 (10-ounce) package frozen broccoli
2 cups hot water
1 1/2 tablespoons chicken bouillon granules
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup half-and-half
Dash pepper
Yields 5 to 6 servings.
Cooking time: 20 1/2 to 27 1/2 minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Place unopened broccoli package in oven and microwave about 5 minutes to thaw.

Measure hot water into 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Add bouillon granules and stir to dissolve. Add thawed broccoli, onion, and celery. Cover and microwave 9 to 13 minutes, or until vegetables are tender.

Turn mixture into blender container; cover and process (in several batches, as necessary) until smooth. Return mixture to casserole.

Place butter in small glass custard cup; microwave about 30 seconds to melt. Stir in half of flour. Add a little milk to thin, then blend in remaining flour. Add more milk to make a smooth paste; stir into soup along with all remaining ingredients.

Microwave, uncovered, 6 to 9 minutes longer, or until soup bubbles and thickens, stirring every 3 minutes.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham,
Ph.D.

Great radio programs

Dr. Abraham: I've been meaning to write and tell you (and hope to get to other teens that way) about some terrific radio programs I heard not long ago. They were on Black History Month in February. A lot of kids might have missed them, and that would be too bad, especially if they are black. But don't get me wrong. Others also might enjoy them, and learn something, too.

I remember the exact title of one, but not the others. It was called "Ain't Gonna Be Treated This Way."

Can you track down the others and maybe how they could still be heard? Thank you. — Radio Fan

Radio Fan: A little digging brought out the information about these programs and how they might become available again.

There are three titles, the one you mentioned, which was about black American life during the 1930s' Great Depression, and two others.

One of them is called "Journey's End: The Memories and Traditions of Daisy Turner," which presents the stories and traditions of a black family recalled by a 100-year-old woman. The other celebrates the life and art of one of modern jazz's popular figures, and his contributions to 20th century music. Its title is "Thelonious Monk: Inner Views."

The best source to check on their possible availability is through local public radio stations. These programs were released by National Public Radio (NPR).

Thanks very much, Radio Fan, for bringing these radio offerings to my attention so I could pass them on to teen readers of this column.

Dr. Abraham: I go to a dentist regularly, and I guess I got this good habit from my parents. It's really strange to me because they, as well as my little brother, are scared to death when they even think about going to the dentist.

I'm not, though, because the man I go to is gentle, explains things, and I've never had a problem.

Other kids tell me they are scared, too. I just don't understand this. Do you? — Dental Fears Dental Fears: Being afraid relates to a dentist's manner, personality and sensitivity, and what people have heard from family members or others. Perhaps you also were exposed to such scare tactics, but were sensible enough to discount them and concentrate on facts related to your own dental experiences.

You're not alone with your calm attitude. A study of 1,800 young people in six countries, including the United States, was conducted by researchers in four universities. Each person was asked to rate 20 potentially stressful situations.

Going to the dentist ranked 18th, after experiences such as being sent to the principal, transferring to a new school, getting picked last for a team and receiving poor grades.

Paul Stephens, D.D.S., president of the Academy of General Dentistry, said, "This is wonderful news for kids and dentists alike."

You might want to share the results of the study mentioned earlier and Dr. Stephens' comments with your parents and brother. They came from the September 1992 issue of Dental Notes published by the Academy of General Dentistry.

Dental practices have changed tremendously during recent years.

By the way, why aren't they going to your dentist?

Dear Teens: Many of you have written to me about different worries you have. One of the topics that comes up more and more is your fear of violence. You often relate that worry to prejudices that you personally feel or felt against you or that you hear about from your friends.

"Why don't people look at and appreciate the real person instead of having prejudices because of the color of one's skin, religion or other differences?"

"What can a person do to help cut down on racial tensions in neighborhoods and schools?"

A long time ago I read about some research related to the first question. One of its interesting findings was that prejudice often was strongest against individuals who don't even live or perhaps have never lived in the communities studied. Fear of the unknown was the conclusion at which such researchers arrived.

What can be done by teens about racial tensions was hit head on in an article in the October 1992, issue of The New Era, a magazine for teens.

• Talk about these problems with parents, teachers, religious leaders, and friends. If discussions on this subject aren't going on in your area, suggest to teachers or community leaders that some be developed.

• Broaden your horizons. Take classes, try new foods, learn a different language and make friends with people of other cultures. We often are more like other people than we are different from them. Reading about them and in publications written by members of their cultures can provide a refreshing opening to a new view of the world in which we live.

• Get involved in your community. Write to public officials and join in petitions to help reduce tensions. If you have felt prejudiced against, try to put your own negative feelings to good use by resolving to be compassionate and understanding of others.

• Treat other people with respect. The "Golden Rule" is still an excellent guide to better relationships. If you don't remember or don't know what it is, your community or school librarian will be glad to help you.

• Listen to others and try to understand their frustrations. Being a good listener could help someone vent their anger, hostility, and strong feelings, and help prevent violence or irrational behavior.

Italy offers the best of cheese

By Charles Britton

Among cheeses, none are bigger these days than those we use for grating — Parmesan and Romano, to use the usual expressions or, as the cognoscenti would insist, Parmigiano-Reggiano and Pecorino Romano.

They go into all sorts of dishes, from pasta to salad (Hail, Caesar!). And if we picked up yet another custom of Italian dining, we might eat them for dessert, too.

Here's what you need to know about these recently adopted staples in the American larder:

PARMIGIANO-REGGIANO

The great cheese, made in a defined area around Parma and Reggio in the central Italian region of Emilia-Romagna, has a number of superlatives going for it:

Parmigiano-Reggiano is in the running for the cheese that has been made for the longest period of time; the records go back 700 years. A wheel, at around 80 pounds, is larger than virtually any other cheese. And any given example has been aged longer before it gets to you, probably about two years.

Unfortunately, Parmigiano-Reggiano is also among the most expensive. With a puny dollar and rising world demand, it currently fetches $14 to $16 per pound in many markets.

Nevertheless, there's no substitute for it, insist all the experts, including Lynne Rossetto Kasper, author of "The Splendid Table" (Morrow), the new compendium of cooking from Emilia-Romagna.

"The problem is," she said, "a lot of people use 'Parmesan' as a generic term for grating cheese."

"Parmesan" is made in a number of countries, including the United States, but none measures up to the original.

"Parmigiano-Reggiano is the product of rich land, productive cows and the right climate," Kasper said. "It hasn't been reproduced elsewhere."

Buyers of Parmigiano-Reggiano should get acquainted with the shopkeeper, Kasper advised.

"That way, you can ask to see the cheese when it arrives in a big chunk or even a whole wheel," Kasper said. "You can tell a lot from the rind."

For one thing, the true article will have the words "Parmigiano-Reggiano" stenciled all over it. Next, the knowledgeable customer will note the thickness of the rind.

"There should be only $\frac{1}{4}$ inch to $\frac{1}{2}$ inch of dry section next to the rind. If there is more, the cheese hasn't been properly stored," Kasper said.

Then, if you have an opportunity to examine the whole wheel, you will find the section where the rind was embossed with the maker's name and the month and year of origin. The cheese is considered optimum at about two years, although older examples can be excellent.

"In New York recently, I tasted a 3-year-old cheese that was magnificent," Kasper said. "These are made by artisans, so there are always exceptions."

And that brings up another major point: Always try to taste the cheese before buying. That's the sure test of quality. There are grades among wheels of Parmigiano-Reggiano, Kasper said, but only those in the trade are likely to understand which is which.

"The flavor should not be sharp, salty or bitter," Kasper said. "It can be fruity, rich, creamy and cracking from the amino-acid grains, yet at the same time velvety.

"Most important, after you swallow, count to three slowly. The aftertaste should be so appealing, you want more cheese. Many off-flavors show up in the aftertaste."

There are two types of Parmigiano-Reggiano, depending on the time of year it is made.

"Before '84, Parmigiano-Reggiano was made only between April and November," Kasper said. "Now it's made all year-round. The winter cheese — look for 'Nov,' 'Dec,' 'Gen' (for January), 'Feb' or 'Mar' on the rind — is made when the cows eat only dried food, hay and grain."

The effect is to make the cheese more concentrated and richer, contrary to what one might think.

"Summer cheese is more herbal and flowery in flavor, more delicate."

Kasper has sampled so much Parmigiano-Reggiano, she believes she can taste the difference.

Besides the abbreviations that are the same in English, summer cheese will be labeled "Mag" for May, "Giu" for June or "Lug" for July.

In Italy, a great deal of Parmigiano-Reggiano is eaten as is, in small chunks.

"It's wonderful with fruit," she said. "Also, try it seasoned lightly with a few drops of the very best balsamic vinegar, the aceto balsamico tradizionale."

What if you can't get true Parmigiano-Reggiano or balk at the price?

After saying that there's nothing to take its place, Kasper suggested that buyers taste around to find a good Grana Padano.

"Grana" is the generic Italian term for a grating cheese, and "Padano" refers to the Po River Valley of Emilia-Romagna.

Many fine cheeses are made in this region, and they generally sell for a considerable discount compared to Parmigiano-Reggiano.

Most devotees of fine Italian cooking, however, will sigh and pay the price for the one and only.

PECORINO ROMANO

Just as "Parmesan" cheese is characteristic of central Italy, "Romano" typifies the more southerly provinces. It's sharper and saltier than Parmigiano-Reggiano, and here, too, there's the real thing — Pecorino Romano — and a host of imitators.

The Consorzio Pecorino Romano currently is trying to build up identity for itself, pointing out that to be the authentic article, the cheese has to come from a delimited area around Rome and on Sardinia. Furthermore, it has to be made of sheep's milk.

"Pecorino" means "from sheep's milk" — an origin shared by such famous products as Roquefort of France and Manchego of Spain. Lots of pecorinos are made in Italy, but the Roman product is the one that has become known outside of its homeland.

"Romano" cheeses from other locales usually are made of cow's milk; to produce the characteristic flavor, the makers add enzymes.

Pecorino Romano is used in much the same way as Parmigiano-Reggiano: grated on pasta, sprinkled on soups and eaten by the slice, typically with fruit. Using one or the other is a matter of local tradition and individual taste.

Then there's the price advantage — Pecorino Romano usually sells for $6 to $8 per pound, about half that of Parmigiano-Reggiano.

The process of making it begins with the milking of ewes. The milk is gathered into large batches, pasteurized and then mixed with yeast cultures and rennet, a natural coagulating agent. The curds, separated from the whey, are heated to form a paste, which is formed into cylinders about a foot high.

After the cheese sets, it is cured in brine for two months and then aged for another six months.

Pecorino Romano comes into its own when added to any of the famed dishes of Rome and the provinces farther south. Its sharpness goes particularly well with Roma tomatoes — peeled, seeded and chopped, and lightly cooked in a little olive oil with garlic and basil. Toss that with pasta and sprinkle on the cheese.

CHEESE TIPS

* For best results in a grated cheese, choose true Parmigiano-Reggiano or Pecorino Romano, according to taste. Some Italians like to use a hard provolone, the sharpness of which is similar to Romano. Kafilothiri is a traditional Greek type, again similar to Romano.

* Cheese should be grated immediately before use. Otherwise, it dries out and loses flavor. The all-too-familiar cylindrical boxes of "Parmesan" cheese are beneath contempt; the gratings inside are like sawdust.

Sealed containers of shredded cheeses available in deli cases are somewhat better, allowing for the fact that the makers start out with the less desirable domestic imitations of the authentic cheeses.

* If you must keep cheese in the grated form, refrigerate it in tightly sealed containers and use as soon as possible.

* For table service, cheese can be grated immediately beforehand and passed in a bowl. An even better way is to use the rotary hand graters available in cookware departments. These are easy to use and save scraped knuckles.

* For grating cheese in quantity, some food processors have a specific grating attachment. This is superior to using the steel knife, which chops the cheese into a fine meal that has the wrong texture.

* For maximum flavor, buy grating cheese in as large a chunk as you will use over several weeks and keep it in a tightly closed plastic bag in the vegetable crisper or other not-too-cold part of the refrigerator. Extreme cold causes changes in the flavor and texture, and so the cheese should not be frozen.

* Grating cheeses are diet-friendly. They tend to be moderate (as cheeses go) in fat content, and a little will add welcome flavor to dishes that might otherwise lack interest.

For a simple but elegant dessert, try a bit of Parmigiano-Romano or Pecorino Romano with apples or pears. The following arrangement is a bit more elaborate and can be used as an appetizer, a light lunch or even a dessert. The fruit content can vary depending on what's in the market.

ITALIAN FRUIT AND CHEESE PLATE

- 1 small ripe honeydew or other melon
 - 12 thin slices prosciutto or other highly cured ham, or dry-cured salami
 - 6 figs (fresh if available, or try dried)
 - 1 small bunch red seedless grapes (or other variety)
 - 1 small bunch green seedless grapes (or other variety)
 - Pecorino Romano or Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, in large shavings
 - Walnut halves
 - 2 limes
 - Yields 4 servings.
- Cut melon into thin slices, allowing 3 per person. Trim off rind. Arrange on plate with prosciutto draped over slices. Arrange other fruit on plate. Top with shavings of cheese. Add a few walnut halves. Cut limes into wedges, to be squeezed on according to the taste of each guest.

Variation: Instead of melon, try apple or pear wedges. Sliced oranges and kiwi also may be used, as may strawberries in season.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

The key to good production of garden plants indoors is to begin with a very good soil mix. The potting medium should have adequate drainage, good water-holding ability, ample fertility and should be sterile so that it is free of possible disease, seeds or insects.

You can buy very good medium mixes — everything is prepared for you and ready to go into containers.

Starting houseplants from seed isn't any different from starting garden plants. Provide ample light and moisture, as well as correct temperature, and you will have very few problems with your baby seeds.

Most seeds sown as houseplants can be started at any time of the year. However, you'll get best germination results when you start during the spring. The effect of the natural lengthening of the day aids the germination process.

Some common houseplants can be purchased as seeds from catalogs, including many cactus and cactus mixes, African violets, geraniums, impatiens and begonias, to name a few. Many of these are annual plants, which will eventually fade.

Good care and periodic pruning will help extend the life span of these garden houseplants. Seeds from these plants can be bought through garden catalogs and on seed packet racks in garden centers.

Of course, the pride one feels when admiring a well-cared-for plant is doubled when that gardener remembers that it was once a tiny seed in the palm of her hand!

LASTING BOUQUETS

The most effective way to prolong the life of cut flowers is to arrange them in a clean vase (in lukewarm water) that has been disinfected with household bleach.

After the vase has been washed and all soapy residue rinsed off, pour bleach to an inch or two in depth and fill the vase with water. Allow it to stand for several minutes, rinse again, and you'll have a fabulously clean, bacteria-free vase ready to be filled with a fresh bouquet of flowers.

The proper care of flowers freshly picked from the garden begins at the moment you pick them. It's best to pick flowers early in the morning, later afternoon or early evening.

Bring a container of water with you into the garden and place the flowers immediately into the water after cutting them. The cut flowers should be allowed to stand several hours in deep water in a cool spot before you arrange them.

All leaves that will be below the water line should be stripped from the stems because they decay quickly under water. As a general rule, recut the stems (on a slant) each time you change the water to ensure a steady flow of water into the stems.

Our Children

Creating the ideal medical home

Q. We are always interested in how we can keep our family as healthy and secure as possible. What we mean mainly is this: What can we do to keep our children healthy in a medical way?

So far, we have either been lucky or smart because, except for a few of the usual childhood illnesses, our youngsters have been just fine. We can easily live with some aches and pains and somewhat higher temperatures, but more than that would be a heavy burden. After all, with five children in our family (ages from 2 to 14), I hope you can see where I'm coming from.

Thank you for whatever suggestions you can offer us.

A. Because I am not a medical professional, I went to a competent source in the area of child health care and will share some information from them with you.

It was in an article in a recent issue of Pediatrics, the magazine of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

They believe "the ideal medical home" should encompass these considerations:

- Preventive care, including but not restricted to immunizations, growth and development assessments, appropriate screening, health-care supervision and patient and parental counseling about health and psychosocial issues.

- Assurance of ambulatory and inpatient care for acute illnesses, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, during the working day, after hours, on weekends, 52 weeks of the year.

- Care over an extended period of time to assure continuity.

- Identifying the need for subspecialty consultation and referrals and knowing from whom and where these can be obtained, plus provision of medical information about the patient to the consultant.

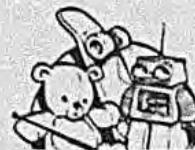

- Interaction with school and community agencies to be certain that special health needs of the individual child are addressed.

- Maintenance of a central record and data base containing all pertinent medical information about the child, including hospitalizations.

Here is a summary statement directly from the Academy's material:

"We should strive to attain a 'medical home' for all of our children. According to the 'medical home' concept, the medical care of infants, children, and adolescents should be accessible, continuous, comprehensive, family centered, coordinated and compassionate. It should be delivered or directed by well-trained physicians who are able to manage or facilitate essentially all aspects of pediatric care."

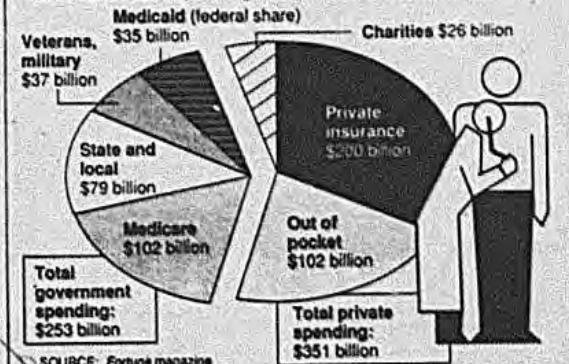

Let me add one personal note: If there is any part of these suggestions not totally clear to you, feel free to seek explanations from your own pediatrician or family physician.

Shaping up with the queen of hip-hop

CHICAGO — Victoria Johnson drops to the floor of the genteel hotel tearoom to demonstrate the basic stomach crunch.

"Keep the lower back neutral. Exhale through the mouth. Keep abdominals contracted at all time," she instructs, oblivious to rattling teacups and wrinkles threatening her chic size 3 jumpsuit.

Call her irrepressible, call her ambitious. The 5-foot-3-inch, 110-pound Johnson, who once weighed a hefty 170 pounds, doesn't care as long as people — especially African-Americans — answer her call to work out. The svelte bodybuilder yearns to be the black Jane Fonda, whipping chubbies into shape with hip-hop dance moves set to funk and rap.

"Jane Fonda was my inspiration to make videos," says Johnson, who has been teaching aerobics for half of her thirtysomething years and runs her own consulting firm out of Portland, Ore.

"I love Jane Fonda. I love Richard Simmons, too. He's committed to helping people of all sizes."

The aspiring video celebrity, possibly the first black woman to market her own exercise tapes, begins workouts by shouting "Let's party," producing a boom box and leading students through MTV-style dance routines. She grew bored with "little jumpy things" (traditional exercises) years ago and designed "Technifunk" workouts to appeal to both herself and other African-Americans.

"I come from a black family. We dance," says Johnson, now back in her chair and brushing her perfectly manicured nails through her long black hair. "We listen to funk. We listen to Motown ... That's a broad statement, I know."

Her work is cut out for her because fitness, the Washington State native maintains, is not a priority for African-Americans.

"Did my mom go to the gym? My mom had to take care of 11 children and to survive," she asserts.

"Slavery," she adds, her eyes dancing. "We were forced to exercise then! You had the whip out there. We had to!"

The queen of the hip-hop has produced 14 exercise videos to date, just two less than Fonda. Dance steps have names like "Funky Grapevine" and "Sexy Walk." (Videos can be ordered by calling Metro Fitness Inc. at 800-635-3893.)

She also has followed her role model into publishing, with a no-nonsense fitness guide titled "Victoria Johnson's Attitude" (Penguin Books).

A former dancer, Johnson wasn't always so trim. Thanks to the rich farm meals of her childhood, she once ballooned to 170 pounds as a teen-ager. She battled bulimia and obesity throughout her adolescence until a brush with diabetes forced her to re-examine her eating habits.

She replaced candy bars with barbells, becoming a competitive bodybuilder, and is today certified through the American Council on Exercise and the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America.

African-American women are in need of fitness-minded role models, asserts Johnson, hired as an L.A. Gear spokeswoman last year, and she's ready to fill the bill.

"Young men have role models. I want to be like (Michael) Jordan, the Shaq (NBA rookie Shaquille O'Neal), Scottie Pippen. Who have women got?" she asks. "Where is Jackie Joyner-Kersee? We don't have enough role models for black women. Hopefully I can start a trail for women to follow."

HEALTH WATCH

Heart disease No. 1 cause of death

Lifestyle may contribute to the risk of developing heart disease.

Nine factors that add to risk of getting heart disease

1. Age: The older you are, the greater the risk.
2. Sex: Pre-menopausal women are less at risk.
3. Cigarette smoking: Don't.
4. High cholesterol: Early warning sign.
5. High blood pressure: Get blood pressure below 140/90.
6. High-fat diet: Eat a low-fat diet rich in vegetables and grains.
7. Lack of exercise: Just do it.
8. Obesity: Overweight makes the heart work harder.
9. Diabetes: Another risk factor.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. I used a plastic place mat underneath a serving dish on my wood dining room table. When I removed it, I found that it had left ugly stains on the wood surface.

Do you know of any way to remove these stains?

A. Plastic items contain ingredients to keep them soft and pliable that can react with finishes. This reaction is called "plasticizer migration," which occurs whether or not the furniture is polished.

If the stain is not too severe, using the following rub-it-out method recommended by the makers of Pledge may remove it.

Using a very gentle abrasive and lubricant, rub the damaged area with the grain, until the blemished area blends with the surrounding undamaged area. Be sure and rub very gently to make sure you don't rub through the finish, and stop frequently to wipe away the abrasive and lubricant, checking on how the spot compares with the surrounding area.

Most abrasives and lubricants used for this method can be found at paint or hardware stores. One of the most gentle is No. 0000 steel wool dipped in paste wax, followed by buffing with a clean, dry cloth.

Powdered abrasives, rottenstone or pumice can be used with mineral or salad oil. A few drops of oil should be applied to the stained area. Then shake on abrasive powder to make a paste and rub gently, using a clean, soft cloth.

Another paste abrasive you can use is automotive polishing compound, applied with a soft, clean cloth. If the stain is severe, the tabletop will probably have to be refinished.

Q. Is there some way I can renew an old coffee table, which is structurally sound but has a badly marred top? The surface has many scratches and several gouges in it.

The original wood had a beautiful grain and, although light, it is perhaps a medium shade, not dark. I do not know what kind of wood it is.

A. It is doubtful that refinishing the surface would be successful. Sanding would not correct deep gouges, and any attempt to fill them would probably show. It would be almost impossible to obtain a good enough match in patching materials to prevent the marred places from being conspicuous.

If the tabletop is veneer, the amount of sanding necessary to make it smooth would likely go right through the veneer. Your best bet would probably be to apply a new surface to the top of the table.

This could be any of a number of materials, such as plastic-surfaced hardboard, which is available in various wood grains and colors, as well as pastel colors or marble patterns. You won't need to treat the gouges in the old top before applying wallboard mastic and fitting the cut-to-size hardboard into place.

You also could use a thin piece of real wood or wood veneer, although the latter is somewhat harder to fit and apply. If you do glue on a new panel, be sure to weight it down with heavy books for at least 24 hours to assure a good bond.

'Lowering' ceilings

Q. We are finally redoing the kitchen in our old house. It has always been so dark and gloomy with never enough work surfaces.

The ceilings are quite high (12 feet), and I'm thinking of having them lowered. What do you think? — P.C.

I think you can "lower" the ceilings with craft, not carpentry, and put the space to work for you.

The kitchen we show here, in fact, also has high ceilings and used to be dark and gloomy, too. Designer Margot Gunther, ASID, relied on craft to change all that: She gave the cabinets a face-lift with white paint and panels of wall covering to match the walls.

Then she framed the walls with a coordinated border and even wallpapered the ceiling (all wall coverings come from Sunworthy's "Cottage" collection).

Finally, Gunther put the ceiling itself to work, holding a brace of pots and pans that are as decorative as they are useful.

Suspended within easy reach over an old wood-topped work table, they free up storage space sufficiently that the designer could devote the end wall to the charming old pine chest that adds considerably to the old-fashioned charms of the kitchen.

Q. We need extra seating in our living room. It's so small we even had to use a love seat instead of a full-size sofa, but I don't see how I can fit more than the two chairs we already have. Any ideas? — L.M.

A. Consider adding stools to your furniture repertory. A pair of them will tuck conveniently under a table or could even team up as a stand-in cocktail table in front of the love seat until they're needed for extra guests.

A large ottoman will perform the same role, or you could take a leaf from the Shakers' book: They mounted pegs around the wall and simply hung their extra chairs up and out of the way.

Q. My husband's 6-year-old son from his first marriage is coming to live with us, which will make for a lot of changes in the house. One thing you might be able to help me with is the bathroom.

As a child, I burned myself badly in the shower, and would feel a lot better if there's some way to be sure it won't happen to him. (I've never had children of my own, so maybe I'm just being overly protective.) — G.B.

A. Not at all. Children aren't the only people who can get themselves in hot water, a fact that hasn't been lost on the manufacturers of bath fixtures in the United States.

A number of them now offer a special safety valve that lets you select the water temperature you want in advance. Every time you turn on the shower, it will automatically adjust to that temperature — no colder, no hotter — which should give you peace of mind about your stepson.

EXPANDED OUTLOOK — Retro remodeling takes advantage of high ceilings and cheery wallcoverings in a once dark kitchen.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

Never known to fail. Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (XO). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (XO). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

The world's greatest ice cream sandwiches

By Rena Coyle

Ice cream sandwiches have always come in a white paper wrapper and were found in the depths of a frosted freezer.

The thought of making your own sandwiches didn't really enter many people's minds until the advent of the chocolate-chip ice cream sandwich. Since then, every sweet concoction has been used to create the richest sandwich or most embellished ice cream smear.

There is no end to the imagination when coming up with interesting ice cream sandwiches. Encourage your children to design their own fillings, using their favorite ice cream mixed with crushed cookies and candies. For the outside, try moist cakes, cookies or brownies.

Try any of these three recipes, they will spark your child's imagination. All of the recipes can be prepared by young children with guidance, while your older children might like to tackle making them on their own.

As for the filling, let your kids come up with their own. If making your own ice cream sandwiches is a party activity, have bowls of sprinkles, chocolate chips, crushed cookies or candies for mixing with ice cream.

If this is a last-minute thought for a snack, use whatever is in the refrigerator.

Making your own ice cream sandwiches puts a smile on everyone's day.

ALMOND CHOCOLATE MACAROON SANDWICHES

1 tablespoon butter
6 ounces bittersweet chocolate
1 egg yolk
3 tablespoons flour
3 egg whites
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup ground almonds
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoon heavy cream
Coating:
4 ounces bittersweet chocolate
6 tablespoons unsalted butter
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons heavy cream
1 quart ice cream
Yields 10 sandwiches.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Baking time: 5 minutes.

Utensils: Paper towel, 3 baking sheets, double boiler, mixing bowl, electric mixer, pastry bag or table spoon, measuring cups and spoons, oven mitts, cooling rack.

Daub paper towel with some butter and rub it evenly over baking sheets, set aside. Preheat oven to 400 F.

Melt chocolate in top half of double boiler. Once it melts, turn heat off and move pot to cool burner.

Put egg whites in mixing bowl and beat with mixer until they begin to froth. Begin adding sugar, two tablespoons at time until completely incorporated. Add egg yolk and flour and blend.

Fold in almonds and chocolate mixture, blend until smooth. Add heavy cream and blend.

Using pastry bag or tablespoon, spoon mixture onto cookie sheets, making $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch mound and keeping them an inch apart. Put your oven mitts on and carefully place cookies in oven and bake for 5 minutes. Remove pans and set them on cooling rack while you prepare coating.

To prepare coating: Melt chocolate and butter in top half of double boiler. Once melted, add heavy cream and blend. Set aside to cool before spreading on cookies.

To assemble sandwiches: Spread chocolate coating over bottom of macaroons. Spoon scoop of ice cream in middle of cookie and sandwich it with another.

CHUNKY CHOCOLATE CHIP SANDWICHES

$2\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup butter
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup solid vegetable shortening
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups semisweet chocolate morsels
1 cup walnuts
1 quart ice cream
Yields 10 sandwiches.

Preparation time: 30 minutes.
Baking time: 10 minutes.

Utensils: 2 cookie sheets, aluminum foil, measuring cups and spoons, medium-size mixing bowl, fork, large mixing bowl, electric mixer, rubber scraper, teaspoon, oven mitts.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Line cookie sheets with foil.

Combine flour and baking soda in bowl and toss together with fork, set aside.

Combine butter, shortening, white and brown sugar in bowl. Blend with mixer on medium speed. When creamy, scrape sides clean with rubber scraper. Add egg and vanilla, blend.

Add half the flour mixture and blend, then add remaining flour and blend smooth.

Add chocolate chips and walnuts. Incorporate throughout batter on low speed.

Spoon large mounds of cookie dough onto cookie sheet. Flatten them slightly. With mitts on, place them in oven to bake for 10 minutes. When baked, turn heat off and remove cookie sheets. Allow cookies to cool completely before assembly.

To assemble: Scoop spoonful of ice cream between two cookies.

RICHLY CHOCOLATE BROWNIE SANDWICH

$1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon butter, at room temperature
4 ounces unsweetened chocolate

$\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter
3 eggs
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup flour
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 quart ice cream
Yields 10 sandwiches.
Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Baking time: 30 minutes.

Utensils: Paper towels, 12x8 baking pan, double boiler, pot holder, wooden spoon, measuring cups and spoons, mixing bowl, measuring cups, electric mixer, rubber scraper, oven mitts, knife.

Preheat oven to 325 F. Daub paper towel with $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons butter and rub it evenly over sides and bottom of baking pan.

Combine chocolate and butter in top half of double boiler. Stir with wooden spoon until blended.

Set aside.

Combine eggs, sugar and vanilla in mixing bowl. Beat with electric mixer until light and creamy, about 2 minutes. Add melted chocolate and blend smooth. Add half the flour and blend. Add remaining flour and walnuts, blend smooth.

Pour batter into pan, scraping sides of bowl clean.

With mitted hands, place baking pan in oven to bake for 30 minutes. Once baked, turn oven off and remove pan to cool. Cut into 10 squares and cool completely before assembling sandwiches.

To assemble cut each square in half through center. Spoon scoop of ice cream in center and sandwich it with top piece.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Sterling-silver fish knife and fork

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a sterling-silver knife and fork. Can you tell me what purpose they served? I would also like to know when they were made and their value.

A. These are individual fish knife and fork. They were popular about 1900 when silversmiths got carried away with their creativity and produced an endless variety of specialized pieces.

The two pieces would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of a vase. It is 6 inches tall and 4 inches in diameter. It is pear shaped with a flared rim. The glaze is semigloss over a deep-blue base.

I would like to know the name of the maker, its vintage and value.

A. This vase was made by the Marblehead Pottery in Massachusetts between 1915 and 1935. It would probably sell for about $275 to $300.

Q. What can you tell me about my antique vase? It is 12 inches tall and has two handles. It is brown with a picture of a lady's head and shoulders.

The markings on the bottom are as follows, "IOGA" over the head of a knight and under that is "WARWICK."

A. Your vase was made in Wheeling, W.Va., about 1900 by Warwick China Co. It might sell in the $125 to $135 range.

Q. I have five Delft plates. They have scenes of a man and woman in various activities with a floral border — all in blue or white. They are marked "Royal Sphinx," a picture of a lion, "P. Regout — Made in Holland — Maastricht — Delft."

Please tell me how old they are and their value.

A. Your plates were made in Maastricht, Holland, by Petrus Regout in the early 20th century. "Delft" is the name of the style; they are not genuine Delft plates.

The value would be about $25 to $35 each.

Q. I bought a vase at an auction about 35 years ago. I would like to know something about it, including its value. It is 13 inches tall and 10 inches in diameter.

It is trimmed with gold with a background of blue and white. On the base is "Boch Freres — Keramis — Made in Belgium."

A. Your vase was made by the Boch Brothers in La Louviere, Belgium, during the early 20th century. It would probably sell for $75 to $85.

The company was founded in 1841 by Victor and Eugene Boch and is still in business.

BOOK REVIEW

"The Beswick Price Guide" by Harvey May, published by Kevin Francis Ltd., and distributed by the Chilton Book Co.

This book provides reliable information about the entire output of Beswick Pottery. All items are priced and most are illustrated.

This is an ideal field for the beginning collector. Beswick figurines are well marked and the prices are moderate — most items sell in the $25 to $500 range.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 6-month-old dachshund has a small reddish patch without hair on her nose. The patch does not seem to bother her. Is it possible that the patch is mange?

A. Without actually examining your dog, it is impossible to say whether the patch that you are concerned about is mange. However, it is possible that the patch is mange. Therefore, you should have your dog examined by a veterinarian.

Demodectic, or red, mange is a skin disease of young dogs that resembles superficial abrasions. Puppies acquire the demodex mite from their mother's skin during nursing. Older dogs with the disease usually have been infected since an early age.

There are two types of demodectic mange: localized and generalized. With localized demodectic mange, there are usually one to five patches of mild redness and partial hair loss. There is usually no noticeable scratching, and the areas are covered with fine, silvery scales. The face and forelegs are the most common sites affected. Many of these cases heal without any treatment.

Generalized demodectic mange is one of the most severe skin diseases in dogs. If not treated promptly, it can result in death. Generalized demodectic mange usually begins as a localized case. As time passes, the localized case worsens and numerous affected areas appear on the head, legs and body.

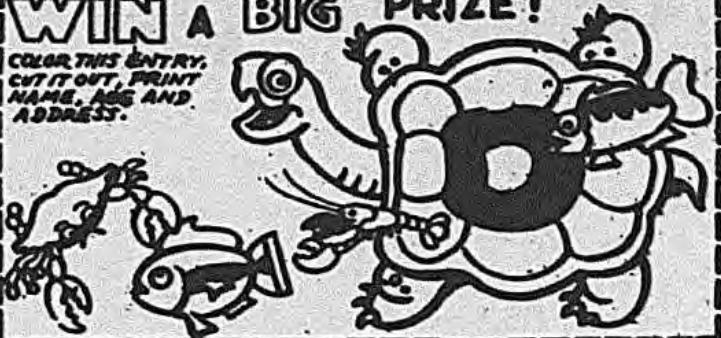

Each patch gradually enlarges, and some will eventually join each other. Generalized demodectic mange is likely to become secondarily infected with bacteria. Discharges containing pus develop, and after several months they develop into crusted patches on much of the body. Hypersensitivity to either the mites or the secondary bacteria causes the patches to itch.

Diagnosis of demodectic mange is usually made by examining skin scrapings and finding the demodectic mites. The mites reside in the hair follicles. Treatment often is spread over several weeks. Early diagnosis and prompt treatment are very important in overcoming this important disease.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Children, be on the lookout! There may still be huge mounds of snow lying on top of our lawns and gardens, but way down beneath those icebergs there are other surprises of nature. Where the recent fallen snow delighted us and peaked our imaginations, we will again be dazzled by the sight of delicate green sprouts rising up out of the ground.

It may not seem warm enough to us, but somehow many of those sprouts will open into flowers of lavender, pink, blue and yellow! It will be another kind of fairyland to behold!

All you have to do is look. But be careful not to step in the garden. You may be stepping on a flower trying hard to emerge from under the earth.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Medicare patient responsible for coinsurance

By William M. Acosta

Q. My doctor accepts assignments for Medicare. Does this mean that I don't have any out-of-pocket expenses? — A.B.

A. No. Medicare will pay 80 percent of the allowed amount. You are still responsible for the 20 percent that Medicare doesn't cover. This is known as the coinsurance amount.

Q. My husband died at age 44½. My youngest daughter is 15½ years old. She receives a check every month. I remarried in 1989 and, subsequently, my benefits stopped.

I am going through a divorce from my second husband now. Can I receive mother's benefits on my deceased husband's account when the divorce is final? — J.Z.

A. Yes. You are eligible to receive benefits on your deceased husband's account when the divorce is final. You can receive this benefit until your youngest child attains age 18.

Q. How much earned and unearned income can an individual have to qualify for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability or SSI at age 65? — M.L.

A. Generally, a person who has "unearned income" of less than $454 per month will qualify for a federal SSI payment. A couple generally can qualify with unearned income of less than $672.

Because a large portion of earned income is disregarded, a person who earns up to $953 per month ($1,389 for a couple), may receive a federal payment.

People who live in a state that supplements the federal payment can qualify for SSI with more income. Call (800) 772-1213 toll free to see if you qualify.

Q. I recently requested and received an estimate of my Social Security benefit amount when I retire in December 1994, at age 65. The letter mentioned that military service was not taken into account when the estimate was made.

I served on active duty in the Air Force from August 1947, to January 1961. Does my time count only for gaining eligibility for the 40 quarters and/or would my check be higher based on my military service? — W.J.D.

A. Your military service from 1957 is always used in figuring your benefit amount. The use of military service prior to 1957 is based on several different factors.

These factors are outlined in a factsheet called "Military Service and Social Security." You can get this form by calling the (800) 772-1213, toll-free telephone number.
