Town Creates 'Golden Age'

The Oyster Bay Town Board has approved the creation of a new "Golden Age" district, it was announced this week by Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig, who introduced the concept to the Board.

"One of the crying needs here on Long Island is for more affordable housing for senior citizens," Councilman Kunzig stated. "Seniors are the people who built and established our communities, and they have a right to be able to stay here close to their families and friends."

Councilman Kunzig noted that the many one and two-bedroom units that will be constructed under this new zone will be reasonably priced and will have smaller tax and utility bills than most average homes seniors now occupy. This new housing will be restricted to individuals and married couples with at least one spouse over the age of 62. Land placed into this zone must be approved by the Town Board after a public hearing to determine its suitability. Such approval will include an acceptable plan providing for maintenance, operation and administration of the new complex.

"There is no greater need than to reduce the high cost of living on Long Island," Councilman Kunzig commented, "and affordable housing for our seniors is a good place to start."

The Councilman added that a public hearing on the creation of the "Golden Age" district was held on November 17, 1992.

Council Hears Postmaster; Discusses G1 Rezoning

By Maureea Traxler

Unlike the many communities across Long Island, Hicksville is fortunate to have a major postal facility located in the heart of its sprawling commercial center. Newly-appointed Postmaster Henry Johnson, a guest at the June 3, Hicksville Community Council meeting, complimented the facility's large staff, including carriers, clerks and sorters, as people dedicated to giving "you," the resident, the best service possible.

Although Long Island has been ranked worst in mail delivery in the country, "Hicksville, itself," said Postmaster Johnson, "is not ranked among the worst areas in the country." Mr. Johnson proclaimed that there are improvements to be made, and he is setting a course to accomplish his goals.

Among the improvements already begun is a doubling of mail collections with most stations including an early and late afternoon pickup. Window service has been expanded to 24 hours a day, and in order to speed delivery, carriers are required to abide by U.S. policy to take shortest routes, including crossing customer lawns. Mr. Johnson explained that this is a cost-savings measure - 85% of the postal service's expenditure is on manpower - but if a customer objects to a carrier crossing the lawn, the objection will be honored and the carrier will refrain from crossing the lawn.

Mr. Johnson said that one of his top priorities is parking. He noted that the building was built in the traditional post office style, unfortunately though, only providing eleven customer parking spots. To help alleviate some of the problem, eight additional spots were created in the back of the building for meter and bulk mailing. The expansion of window hours was initiated in the hopes that this service would spread the demand for parking. Mr. Johnson noted that the Post Office rents the parking space directly across John Street from the main entrance, and that he is working on some creative solutions to the parking situation.

In that vein, Joe Van Berckelaer voiced the sentiments of many residents when he identified the quick drop now located on Barclay Street as "a dog." Mr. Johnson said that he is "very aware" of the situation and is addressing ways to correct it. The Postal Service is working with the Town of Oyster Bay and Nassau County to improve traffic flow on West John Street and possibly change the light sequence. Another area being pursued to return the drops to the front of the building would include paving the area to the right of the current exit and extending an exit out to Barclay Street.

Concerning mail dropoff, Mr. Johnson explained that customers are guaranteed next day delivery in Nassau and Suffolk if the mail is in the Post Office by 3 p.m. He added that residents should alert postal workers if they are mailing "local mail," Hicksville and Jericho zip code 11753, and that mail will be sorted and sent out from the Hicksville facility. All mail not in the local collection is routed through the central location in Melville. Plainview and Old Bethpage stations are extensions of Hicksville, and if noted, mail will go directly there.

The second half of the meeting agenda included a discussion of the re-zoning of Hicksville's business district led by Councilman Tom Clark and Steven Schneider, a member of the planning company hired by the Town of Oyster Bay to tackle the problems. Since the days of the raising of the Long Island Railroad tracks and the widening of Broadway, Hicksville has been left with a downtown area which is poorly planned and unpleasant to view. This area, basically bordered by West John Street on the north, Charlotte Street on the west, Old Country Road on the south, and the railroad tracks beyond Broadway on the east, is known by its zoning tag, G1.

"I can work and plan and come up with grandiose ideas," said Mr. Schneider, "but it's nothing. We need input from the people." Although Mr. Schneider, who has worked with the State Department of Transportation, Nassau County Department of Public Works, and a New York-New Jersey-Connecticut planning group, came looking for ideas, most of the audience seemed skeptical as to

Bd. Awards Various Bids; Accepts Fire Tourney

In personnel matters, the Board accepted the retirement/resignation of John Rager, Adult Education Director, and Vivian Basso, Clerk Typist, effective June 30. Frank Melone was appointed principal of the Bethpage Elementary Summer School Program for 1993, if such a program is then in effect. Typist Clerk Kathleen Bielo was placed on Civil Service Permanent Status.

In other matters, the Board accepted the donation of four flowering cherry trees to the JFK Middle School as part of an Earth Day celebration. Health services contracts were approved with the Jericho Union Free School District (2 students, for a total of $579.50) and the Island Trees Union Free School District (2 students, for a total of $24.98). In addition, the Board adopted a Tax Anticipation Note Resolution which authorized the issuance of up to $6,250,000 tax anticipation notes in anticipation of the receipt of taxes to be levied for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1994.

The Board awarded the bid for School District Publications to Avon Reproductions, the lowest responsible bidder meeting specifications. The Board also approved receiving bids for the sewer hookup at the maintenance garage, for oil burner replacement at JFK, for fuel tank replacements at the garage and High School pool, and for masonry repairs at Charles Campagne. Bid opening dates will be set following receipt of approval from the New York State Education Department.

The Board authorized the President to sign transportation contract extensions for the 1993-94, 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years with Tomfor Transportation and with We Transport, Inc., which provide transportation to various schools outside the District. The Board also authorized LAS Associates to proceed with LILCO-required engineering studies in conjunction with the District's application for cafeteria equipment replacement-related energy rebates.

The Board adopted a resolution which approved and adopted an Indemnification Agreement between the Bethpage Union Free School District and the Board of Fire Commissioners of the Bethpage Fire District, and the Bethpage Fire Department.

Following the completion of the agenda, Mr. Nydick made the following announcements:

- Lauren Moran was recently honored by the Bethpage Rotary Club for her academic excellence and community service. Lauren is Valedictorian for the Class of 1993 and plans to major in the biological sciences at Columbia University.
- Robert Isernia has received High Honors recognition from the Nassau Technology Vocational Program in Carpentry. In addition, Robert was recently awarded third place in a prepared speech regional competition on describing techniques of construction technology.
- Jaydeep Bhatt was named winner of the annual Bausch & Lomb Science Award. As winner of the award, Jaydeep is eligible to apply to become a University of Rochester Bausch & Lomb Scholar.
- Andrew Samnick has been accepted to the Syracuse University Summer Engineer Program. Andrew was selected from hundreds of applicants throughout the State.

Mr. Nydick then read a letter from Frank Meuschke, President of the Bethpage Senior Citizens, which was sent to Dr. MacLeod, thanking everyone who took part in the Senior Citizen Prom on May 9.

Vice President of the Board, Barry J. Albano, then provided a brief explanation regarding the agreement between the District and the Bethpage Fire Department which allows the Fire Department to hold a tournament on school grounds on July 9, 10, and 11. The Board worked with the Fire Department to ensure that both the School District and the Fire Department were properly protected. Mr. Albano thanked Mr. Orlan, the attorney for the District, for his diligence in this matter. He determined that the insurance policy held by the Fire Department excluded the planned activities.

Board member Harold Resnick read a letter from nurse Joan Pacheto complimenting the district on the HIV/AIDS Education Program. She was extremely impressed with the turnout for this program, and noted that Bethpage students were very well-informed in this area.

Mr. Harold Resnick then made a statement regarding the meeting which was held on May 17, about the group home. He explained that the District had received a request to use the auditorium only. No request was made for microphones, etc. The estimated attendance was listed as 100 people, whereas many times that number actually attended. Harold Resnick praised District employees who sought to remedy the situation, despite the fact that the District had had no advance requests for various equipment.

Mr. Bennett Resnick, a coach, made a statement regarding a regulation which requires coaches to be certified teachers. Several people made statements in support of Bennett Resnick's abilities as a coach. The Board indicated that it must study the regulation before making any decision. Any decision will be based on what the law requires.

Melissa Labelson, outgoing President of the Student Council, thanked the Board of Education for its support of Student Council activities throughout the year.

The next monthly Board of Education meeting will be held on June 29, at 8 p.m., in the Little Theater.

Town To Sponsor Bicycle Safety

Following last year's extremely successful "Bicycle Safety Week," the Town of Oyster Bay has designated July "Bicycle Safety Month" and will sponsor four Bicycle rodeos for children ages 7 through 14, according to Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark.

"Bicycles are not toys. They are a viable form of transportation used by children each and every day," Councilman Clark said. "They ride alongside cars and trucks on major roadways, and all too often our children have not learned the rules of the road so necessary to preserve their safety."

"Bicycle Rodeos are an excellent way to educate children about bicycle safety because they combine fun with safety instruction," Councilman Clark continued. "This year we've planned events such as skills tests where children are tested on their use of hand signals and their ability to maneuver on a bicycle. In addition, children will be able to put their bikes through a safety inspection to see that they are in good working order and have the proper safety equipment. Of course prizes and raffles will be awarded this year as well."

Councilman Clark added that as a result of last year's resounding success, the New York Auto Club has agreed to return "Mike the Talking Bike." "Mike," a well known favorite among children, teaches bicycle safety to children in a unique and riveting fashion.

The Town Bicycle Rodeos, which are being held as part of the Parks Department Summer Recreation Program, are scheduled for July 14 - Marjorie Post Park, Massapequa; July 16 - Bethpage Community Park, July 19 - Ellsworth Allen Park, Farmingdale; and July 23 - Syosset Woodbury Park.

"It's very important that we reach children about the importance of bicycle safety," Councilman Clark commented. "The Bicycle Rodeo concept is effective because it blends education with entertainment. Children thoroughly enjoy the rodeo while learning valuable information. The ultimate goal is to have each child leave the Bicycle Rodeo with a very clear understanding about bicycle safety and his or her responsibility as a bike rider."

Happy 100 Anniv. Hicksville F.D.

By Maureen Traxler

The Hicksville Historical Society just concluded its second annual Education Program. This year's subject focused on the Centennial Celebration of the Fire Department, and the contest was open to students attending the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. All local schools were invited to participate. The students were allowed to explore any aspect of the department's history, and compete in three categories - essay, poetry and art.

In order to highlight the significance of the 100th anniversary celebration, the Historical Society, in conjunction with the Fire Department and the Hicksville religious community, awarded two $100 cash prizes in each category. Honorable Mention certificates were also granted.

The lucky winners and the schools they represent are as follows: In the essay category: Winners - Michael Ciocciari (Holy Family School) and Stratia Christodoulou (Hicksville Middle School).

Honorable Mention - Vito Pagano and Michelle Kaszuba (Hicksville Middle School) and Theresa Carriero (Holy Family).

Poetry category: Winners - Jamie Johnson and Sandra Saint Victor (Holy Family).

Honorable Mention - Michael Conry and Jason Turner (Holy Family).

Art category: Winners - Robert Price, Jr. and John Frank (Holy Family).

Honorable Mention - Jody Durkin and Edward Fong (Hicksville Middle School), Ishi Malik, Emily Kraft, Danielle D'Amelio, Maureen Cardenas, Maureen Granados, Elizabeth Russell and Daniel Stack (Holy Family).

The Hicksville Historical Society would like to tell you the story of our Fire Department in the words of our program's entrants.

"The Hicksville Fire Department goes back to 1869, when the first fire company was organized with just one piece of equipment, a wagon." (Michael Ciocciari)

"It was used until 1890. Then the citizens of Hicksville contributed $700 for a land or horse drawn truck." (Leonard DeStefano)

"In 1893, a Board of Fire Commissioners was started to govern the department. Arnold G. Heitz was elected the department's first Chief...On January 2, 1932, our present fire house (E. Marie Street) was dedicated. The total cost of the house was $88,000. In 1941, the first motor driven apparatus was purchased, 2 Model-T Fords, a chemical truck and a hose wagon." (Michael Ciocciari).

The first fire after the department's formal organization "was at M.A. Lauks building on Broadway at about 11:40 in the morning. It took seven wells to put the blazing fire out...The first magnificent fire was in 1937. It cost over $150,000 in damage. It was a row of stores on Broadway. They were a bakery (Blydenberg's), a candy shop, an insurance company (Seaman & Elman), the Motor Vehicles office, and a department store (L.T. Granda 5 & 10)." (Christina Gentile)

"A Citizens Engine Company No. 3 was also formed, along with a Juvenile Hose Company (involving volunteer young people) that year (1893). Some citizens were opposed to expanding the fire protection service because of the tax increases. They petitioned the County Board of Supervisors to take it away. In the end, a majority of the residents of Hicksville wanted the Department, and it was permitted to continue its work...On February 7, 1912, the First Ladies Auxiliary was organized with 13 active members. It was headed by the late Mrs. Hannah Weis and she was elected their first president. The Auxiliary is open to any mother, wife, widow, sister or daughter of an active or exempt fireman." (Michelle Kaszuba)

"When Hicksville became industrial many hazardous materials were used. This presented a challenge for the men of the fire department. This meant that more volunteers were needed to keep up with all of the big industrial fires...In 1981 Nassau County established the Hazardous Material Team for gas leaks or chemical leaks." (Anthony Pisano)

"...each year there is an annual firemen's parade and tournament on Labor Day. It is here that our firefighters are recognized for their competition...In 1907 William Duffy was chief. Hicksville hosted their first tournament and in that same year won its first trophy." (Michael Ciocciari)

"In May of 1943, the department hosted a gathering for our troops that were overseas. The neighborhood sees over 1,000 citizens gather to support our involvement in the World War. The Department stopped all Labor Day Tournaments between 1942-1944, but still held a Parade and dancing, which was provided by the Grumman Band.

"The Fire Prevention Week in 1958 had the Rescue Squad displaying the newest life saving gear placed into service. The new device was a Batronic Resuscitator." (Theresa Carriero)

"In January 1990, the Hicksville Fire Department was called to the scene of the Avianca plane crash in Cove Neck. At 10:05 p.m., they were requested for their Chemical Foam truck, an ambulance and a heavy rescue truck. Hicksville firefighters were assigned to the forward cabin area and were able to free several adults, a child and the flight engineer. They also removed several dead bodies. Operations continued until 3:30 a.m. Hicksville had 50 firefighters and several units. Additional firefighters remained on stand-by. Chief Tony Wigdorski worked the command post and coordinated the task of getting the power tools to the rescuers and heavy equipment to the scene...Ex-Captain Philip LaNasa rescued a 4-year-old girl and an 18-month-old girl. Captain George Howard operated the "Jaws of Life" to rescue victims." (Michael Ciocciari)

"James Kershaw is proud to be a member of the Hicksville Fire Department...James is part of a firefighter family, dating back to 1928, when his dad Richard Kershaw joined the Protection Hook and Ladder Company #1. James was elected president of the Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association in 1987. He is currently Captain of the Department's Fire Police Squad." (Vito Pagano)

The people of Hicksville are very proud of the Hicksville Fire Department. The firemen are business men, craftsmen, professionals, office employees and factory workers. All of them work together in order to protect the lives and the property of every resident of Hicksville." (Stratia Christodoulou)

Other entrants in the Historical Society's program were: From Holy Family School - Christopher DeStefano, Kimberly McCrea, Melissa Bernier, Jason Graf, Daniel Dunleavy, Ryan Coyle, Rita Trautmann, Patricia Ianne, Edward Petrel, Theresa Lampert, Sheena Das, Jennifer Secko, Tara Cook, John Mulcahy, Jennifer DiGiacomo, Patrick Block, Kathleen Griffith, Bonnie Farago, Lisa Reichenberger, Adrian McGarry and Vanessa Parria. A Bit Of Disney Magic For Music Students

By Karen Bicker
and Diana DePalma

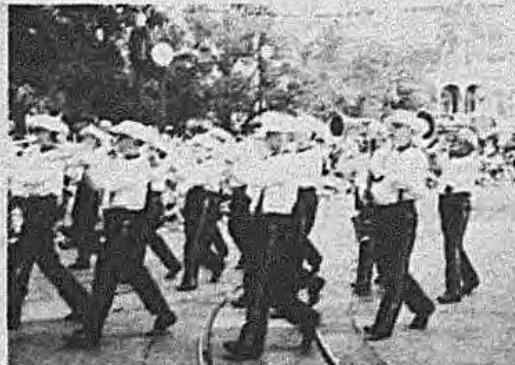

Three plane loads of excited Hicksville High School music students arrived in the land of balmy breezes and never-ending sunshine on May 21 to begin appearances in and around Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida. They represented Band, Orchestra and Chorus, and were joined by Principal Richard Hogan, some faculty members, chaperones... and a large delegation of parents. Many students had never travelled by airplane before and this was a golden moment for them; indeed, even for the most jaded traveler among us, for we were to perform at Disney World! And while this story is from a Band parent's viewpoint, remember that each and every student who went on this trip rehearsed many long hours to arrive at their destination.

On the first day, the pupils had an opportunity for free time at a water theme park, then enjoyed a delicious barbecue dinner on the premises, yet, their most challenging moments had nothing to do with exciting rides - read on. On the second day of their stay, an adjudication (Judging) took place at Winter Garden High School in the early morning through afternoon for String Ensemble, Symphony Orchestra, Symphonic Band and Chorus. The afternoon was spent at Universal Studios so the youngsters could unwind. And each day, the weather cooperated 100%.

On Day three, at 3 p.m., the Marching Band promenaded past huge throngs of delighted onlookers gathered five deep on Main Street in the Magic Kingdom. Our collective hearts swelled with pride as we watched these talented guys and girls march past. What a thrill! Hours later, the Chorus performed Dockside at Disney Village in Lake Buena Vista to a large audience and they, too, were sensational...as were all Hicksville groups participating in this special weekend.

Thanks were given to the multi-talented students for their perseverance and dedication, and to Band Directors Jim McRoy and Jennifer Boltz, Orchestra Director Amy Noll, and Chorus Director Daniel Kristoff for undertaking this wonderful event, and for their tremendous support and guidance, and to loyal parents, Joe Aversano and Andy Boukas, who drove down to Orlando with instruments and uniforms to insure that the equipment would arrive on time.

All good things come to an end and so it was back to reality when the various groups left the palm trees and broad boulevards of Orlando behind and boarded their return flights taking them back to Hicksville. But somewhere, hidden in a flute, or violin bow...or in the lilting voice of a soprano or tenor...they carried a bit of the magic of their exciting trip back with them in unforgettable Florida memories.

Marching band swings down main street, heading toward Frontierland.

PAGE SIX Bethpage's Science Research Program

Six years ago, Bethpage High School introduced a new program entitled "Science Research" in order to motivate students to conduct independent research in the field of science. Dr. MacLeod, the principal of Bethpage High School, was proud to announce four students who are involved in the high school science research program were accepted into prestigious science programs as a result of their efforts in the high school.

Subha Dhanaraj, who is graduating as the Salutatorian of her class, was accepted into the Brookhaven National Laboratory's summer research program. She was one of 24 students chosen out of 750 applicants. Subha will be working closely with a professional mentor at the laboratory and will be participating in current research in a specific scientific area.

Howard Schwartz, a junior, has been accepted into Polytechnic Institute's summer research program with a stipend of $600. He will be working with mentors in the area of medical engineering.

Andrew Samnick, a sophomore, was chosen to participate in Syracuse University's summer engineering research program and has been awarded a $700 scholarship. He also was chosen from hundreds of applicants throughout the state to participate in this very competitive and highly rewarding program. Andrew had also been a finalist in the regional Science Olympiad Team Competition held at Stony Brook earlier this year.

Another sophomore, Michelle Jerson, received honorable mention in this year's New York State Imagination Celebration Competition out of hundreds of entries from across the state. She was one of only six high school students recognized for outstanding creative ability. Her work will be published in booklet form and should be available in early June.

College Notes

Domenick J. Freda, a graduate of Hicksville High School, will continue his athletic and academic career at Alfred University next season, it was announced by head football coach Jim Moretti.

Freda, a 5-10, 215-pound fullback/inside linebacker hopes to make an impression on the Saxons, who finished 4-6 last season but are 50-29-2 in Moretti's eight seasons.

Freda was the Comets' Unsung Hero and the team's leading tackler in 1992 for coach Ron Quattrini.

Freda is the son of Domenick and Dorothy Freda of Hicksville and will major in English at Alfred University.

Alfred University, with an enrollment of 2,000 students, boasts over 50 athletic and academic All-Americans in the past decade.

Council Hears Postmaster; Discusses G1 Rezoning

what type of plan would succeed.

Councilman Clark, who has been spearheading action in this area on the Town Board, suggested a possible rezoning of the industrial section of West John Street and Duffy Avenue to accommodate a more pleasing environment. He suggested a setup such as Franklin Avenue in Garden City, with storefronts at the sidewalk and parking in the rear. He added that the Town would like to see the Twin County Asphalt Company move its operation to a site on the Town's Old Bethpage landfill. If that would be accomplished, the Town would like to see a senior citizens housing complex built to replace the old location on West John.

Richard Evers suggested that light industry might still be encouraged. He felt that this could provide employment for local residents.

Broadway property poses another dilemma. Under G1 zoning, prospective business people must accumulate 2 or 3 parcels before they build and must provide parking in ratio to the building size. Mr. Clark proposed using existing town parking spaces to aid new business starts. The Councilman added that he does not feel Hicksville should be the Town's parking lot, just because it is the home of a major railroad station.

Resident Carolyn Kelly questioned how Hicksville could support more stores, saying, "We have vacant property already." Mr. Schneider answered, "There are always people who want to invest."

Mr. Schneider expanded that the Town of Oyster Bay and Hicksville resident "have to go into a direction that is reasonable." He said that the right blend of activity must be found, and concluded, "We're trying to make a good plan for the area."

Councilman Clark invited any resident with an idea to jot it down on a postcard and mail it to him, personally, either at Town Hall or his home. All ideas will be accepted and reviewed.

This was the final meeting of the season for the Hicksville Community Council. President Marc Herbst invited all residents back when the Council resumes its schedule in the fall. On a final note, Mr. Herbst reminded residents that the Council will hold its annual dinner and awards ceremony on Thursday, October 7.

Former Grumman CEO John Bierwirth Is Still Taking Care of Business on Long Island

For 16 years, Jack Bierwirth ran the Grumman Corporation, Long Island's largest employer and a major economic force. In his "retirement," Jack is busier than ever, although every now and then he finds time to fish. He is deeply involved in a cause that is just as important as maintaining Long Island's economic well-being: restoring and preserving our unique environment.

Today Jack is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Long Island Chapter of The Nature Conservancy. For 40 years, The Nature Conservancy has been in the business of saving land all over the world — more than 6 million acres in the United States alone. And on Long Island we've protected more than 30,000 acres, including the 19-acre remnant of the Hempstead Plains.

We Long Islanders can still fish for trout; we can still walk in the woods, lie on the beaches, swim in the bays. But make no mistake, the quality of life here is under threat. We urge you to make it your business to help preserve Long Island's magnificent natural heritage by becoming a member of The Nature Conservancy. For further information, call (516) 367-3225, or write to us at our Long Island Headquarters, 250 Lawrence Hill Road, Cold Spring Harbor, NY 11724.

Please enroll me as a member of The Nature Conservancy. My $25.00 check is enclosed.

Retirement Dinner For Public Library Veteran

When the local history archives of Hicksville are studied, in the years to come, researchers will be grateful for albums of newspaper clippings carefully collected by Miss Kay Sarli. The veteran Hicksville Public Library worker has retired, but her efforts of the last ten years, gathering newspaper materials on Hicksville's bygone and contemporary history and life, were a contribution of particular pleasure to Kay.

Her library associates of many of her 38 years of part-time service were present recently at a congenial supper at Kenny's Restaurant. Among Miss Sarli's well-wishers were Library Director, Mrs. Celest Watman, and Assistant Director Mrs. Marilyn Kappenberg; former long-service director, Kenneth Barnes, and Library Trustee Anthony Prevote.

Kay Sarli's years at the Hicksville Public Library began with duty as an artist-clerk under Library Director, Miss Snedcor, in 1941. She served under succeeding directors, Mrs. Cecil and Miss Wheeler, until 1953. Some years as a free lance artist with a government printing office, the C. M. Johnson Company followed.

The talented long-time Hicksville resident (she came as a child to this farming area with her parents, Vincent and Vincenta Sarli in 1925), resumed her service at the Hicksville Public Library in 1970, doing art work and serving at the book checkout desk. In 1983,

Kay was encouraged by Library Director Kenneth Barnes to begin gathering Hicksville historical materials, a subject of much interest to Barnes, as a supplement to a large oral history tape program initiated in Bicentennial year and the library's 50th Anniversary.

Miss Sarli's newspaper gleanings these last five years were in close association with the ongoing professional archival work of Library Local Historian Richard Evers. Kay loved gathering Hicksville lore, past and current, and knows the people and events which were a major part of Hicksville's life, from a lifetime in this village.

Her many library and community friends wish her the best of retirement years.

At her retirement dinner at Kenny's, Kay Sarli stands with longtime Hicksville Public Library retired associates, Mrs. Katherine Frawley and former director, Kenneth Barnes.

K. Of C. Plainview Memorial Day Parade

A large group of brother Knights from the Joseph F. Lamb Council No. 5723 Knights of Columbus, Plainview/Hicksville, took part in the Plainview Memorial Day Parade, on Monday, May 31. Led by P.F.N., F.D.D., Grand Knight Peter Volpe, the Joe Lamb Council joined the many other organizations in the Parade.

The Joe Lamb Knights, in their colorful blue jackets and hats, were followed in the parade by a special Joe Lamb station wagon, pulling a horse cart, filled with balloons. Loudspeakers on the cart played music, for all to hear. Each Knight, as he marched along, also carried a large bundle of balloons, which were all given to the many young onlookers. This feature went over very well with the great number people watching the Parade. (Over 500 balloons with K. of C. insignia were given out.)

The Parade which included the Plainview V.F.W., the Plainview American Legion, the Fire Department, Boy Scouts, and various other organizations, proceeded east on Old Country Road, one block north on Main to Hill Road, then again east on Washington Avenue, ending at the Plainview/Old Bethpage Park. Many dignitaries were on hand for the ceremonies.

The Chairman for the Joe Lamb Parade Committee was P.G.K. John Lomba assisted by Co-Chairman brother Knight Robert Andruzz. The Joe Lamb K. of C. has always appeared in this parade throughout the years.

Local Issues At Meeting

Town of Oyster Bay Councilman Thomas L. Clark has announced that there will be a special Hicksville Community Meeting June 17, 8 p.m., at the Hicksville Public Library, to discuss recent issues such as graffiti, the re-zoning of Hicksville along Duffy Avenue and West John Street and recommendations for changes to the G-1 Zone. This will be a great opportunity for residents to give their input on these projects and problems in Hicksville that might affect an area, or that could be improved or eliminated by re-zoning.

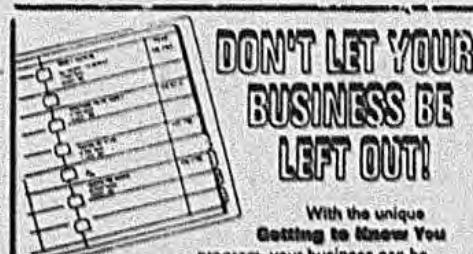

Councilman Clark has invited John J. O'Leary, Town of Oyster Bay Receiver of Taxes, to express his thoughts on Judge Leo McGinity's concern about the assessed evaluation of homes in Nassau County. Assemblyman Fred Parola will also be on hand to answer any questions concerning Hicksville. This meeting is open to the general public. Councilman Clark would like to have residents stop down to join in the discussion and offer their suggestions and views.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

June 1946 had Hunt's 3 Ring Circus at the circus grounds on N. Broadway. Also, that year the Playhouse movie theater had a double feature with Walk in the Sun with Dana Andrews and Huntz Hall, plus Col. Effingham's Raid with Chas. Coburn and Joan Bennet. All in one full size theater plus a cartoon and news. That year Bob Filler of the Cleveland Indians was paid $45,000. No, I didn't leave off any zeros.

My original candy box from Teddy's Hicksville Sweet Shop from 82 Broadway on the corner before the big fire of 1937.

Nicholai Grammar School around 1928. Some faces familiar - Ethel Kerbs, E. Eisemann, Me. Ruth Stoll, Frank Habenicht, just a few names.

Central Park Hist. Society News

The May meeting of the Central Park Historical Society was very well attended because Mr. Ed. Wilson was our guest. We are all interested in the history of the Beau Sejour and the many fascinating stories Mr. Wilson told about the Beau. This meeting prepared us for the beautiful float of the Beau Sejour that graced the Memorial Day Parade. A great job in designing and building this float by Lenny Mulqueen, George Hoban, Bob Albertson, Al Procida, Ernie Finamore and Carmine DeStefano. Float decorated by Mary Kuhlike. Thanks to Emils Nursery for their contribution of plantings to add the country look of the Beau. A truly great job done by all.

The Society will hold its last formal meeting of this season on June 16, at the Bethpage Public Library, Powell Ave., at 8 p.m.

With the rapid approach of the summer season, the national pastime of many of us is our garden and lawn. Frank Carmilingo of Emils Nursery will be our special guest to answer your landscaping and gardening questions. Not only is Frank available at Emils Nursery to assist with our gardening needs, but he is very community minded and is always there to help make Bethpage a more beautiful community.

The Society will conclude the season with a picnic in the park on July 29.

Over the summer months the Society will be busy planning for Bethpage Day, October 2 and will keep you informed.

Have a great summer!

ONE OF THE OLDEST AND LARGEST

If you haven't seen a GE washer & wringer that your parents may have used years ago, I did last week - my old Union skates with metal wheels and steel clamps with kate key. They are a far cry from today's plastic 4 wheel or blade skates. The other day I remembered Dilbert's grocery store was on W. Main Street where Big Ben had been located. Today it is a drug store and postal sub station.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you think President Clinton handled the Lani Guinier problem correctly?

Call 931-0027

HOURS

Ground Rules:
You are not limited
to the above
but may talk on any subject of interest to readers.

• One subject to a caller per week •

Simply dial 931-0027 - 24 Hours a Day and follow these simple rules:

1. Wait for the beep.
2. Confine your INPUT to one subject.
3. Limit your opinion to five minutes (make notes before calling).
4. Leave your name and telephone number, or simply use a pen name (your message can be anonymous).
5. Publishers reserve the right to edit, modify or omit any and all material.

Input Callers Have Advice For Graduates

Input callers came up with a variety of ideas for graduates in answer to this question: "In the light of the present economy what would your advice be to graduating students?" Here are some of the answers:

MAKE DO

I would advise graduating students to try to obtain the job that is the kind they want, but if they don't, to accept whatever job is available and not be ashamed of the job. Sometimes it can take a lifetime to make a dream come true. I wanted to be a nursery school teacher but I did not get my degree and I am still happy at my job. K.F.

MORE EDUCATION

Graduating seniors will have to have patience this year. There are some jobs around but few of them are first rate in that they will utilize all of the skills and information that has been given in schools and college. To those graduating from high school I would recommend that they consider going on with education or trade schools. To those graduating from college I would suggest that they go on at least part-time to graduate school and work part time. The reason is that the economy has not yet settled down, but it will do so. Use your time in getting better qualifications so that when the dam bursts you can be there to benefit. K.G.

WATCH INTERVIEWS

I would tell graduating students to have heart. If they are turned down from a job try to detect what went wrong. Try to see themselves as an interviewer would. What qualifications do they lack and what was sought? In that respect, it does not hurt to call back where a job was missed and try to find out what the person selected had or what was done wrong. It is going to be a tough time for interviews because there are several people applying for the same job. In past years recruiters used to come in great numbers to college campuses and often the applicant would turn down a job and get a better one. Today it is a time to carefully prepare for interviews and even profit from missed attempts. M.F.

TALK TO FRIENDS

I think there will be too much advice given to graduates by many who never had a tough fight to get a job. But what could be listened to is the advice of friends who are in the job market now and what they think will be important things to know. D.S.

SENIOR IDEAS

In the past I have had relatively little trouble coming up with a reply to fit your problem of the week. But this time, I'm sorry to admit a great deal of trouble wrestling with the conundrum. For one thing I am in my middle eighties, live alone and lack the day to day exposure my daughter has with her two children - a girl 16 and a boy just turned 17, and both in the early stages of high school. Based upon their performance, each in his own high school, and assuming they each continue their very positive grades and interest, I don't believe that either one should have any difficulty qualifying for a college entrance, hopefully with a scholarship. Both of them recognize the negative possibilities at the time they will have completed their high school courses. But, generally speaking it is clearly up to the parent as well as the grandmother and the grandfather to show a continuing interest in their performance. My granddaughter's immediate response to my query was that she would go to work at graduation to build up a fund for a college entrance at a later date. However, I believe that we discouraged that idea and encouraged positive thinking for the remaining periods of their pre-college education. P.G.S.

PAST ISSUES

POLITICAL LIES

Have we sunk so low that we prefer to lie to the straight truth? Lack of quality has become an admired quality. Birds fly and politicians lie. It is in the nature of each species to do so. We recognize and understand the reasons for flight and lies but why do we continue to allow politicians to affront us? They will tell us anything in order to be elected and their party will protect them both before and after. Yes, politicians always lied. Nothing new about that. In the past the lie was not so obvious. Not so easily discovered until long after the fact. Today in full media glare the politician is quickly exposed for what he or she is. The real question is what should we do about it? To what standard do we hold the politician? Higher or lower than our own? Do we, should we, just say "Oh well you know how they are, what can you do?" The politician has conditioned you to that response and while he knows that collectively the voter has the ability to correct the continuing deceit, he finds comfort in the knowledge the voter lacks the will to do so. E.J.H.

KEEP JOEY ON L.I.

No special privileges. The trial for Joey Buttafuoco should take place on L.I. This is where he said he did not have an affair with Fisher when she was under 17 years old. She said he did and he says no. So his lawyer wants the trial to be moved off L.I. claiming he would not get a fair trial here. Is this what Lawyer Kornberg thinks of the people on L.I.? It would be very convenient for him to do this. Suppose all lawyers did the same thing? Joe Buttafuoco proclaims his innocence, so why doesn't he take a lie detector test to prove his innocence. It might help him. If not he would get what he deserves. L.C.

It's A Grand Old Flag!

By Harry Schreiner

During the touch-and-go days of World War II, a young country music singer recorded a patriotic song, "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere" which became a battle cry, rocketing Elton Britt to international stardom.

Today, star spangled banners wave all over this nation as flag makers tell us that ever since the Desert Storm war they have never seen such an increase of sales.

"We sold a lot in World War II," a manufacturer said, "especially after Elton Britt's tribute, but remember that in those days we didn't have the dyes, materials and means of delivery we have now."

The United States flag as designed by Betsy Ross, is actually the oldest national standard in the world, even older than Britain's Union Jack. First authorized by Congress, June 14, 1777, the date was memorialized to celebrate the event in our history. A short while later, August 3, 1777, the new flag was flown proudly at Fort Stanwyx, the present site of the city of Rome, New York, and three days later it was under fire in the Battle of Oriskany as America sought independence.

During the planning for our flag, it was decided to make it a law that there should be a star and a stripe in the design to honor each state, a total of 13 for both.

The colors to be used in the flag design were decided thusly: Red for valor, zeal and enthusiasm; white for purity, hope, cleanliness of life and good conduct; blue to signify heaven in the skies, reverence to God, truth and loyalty.

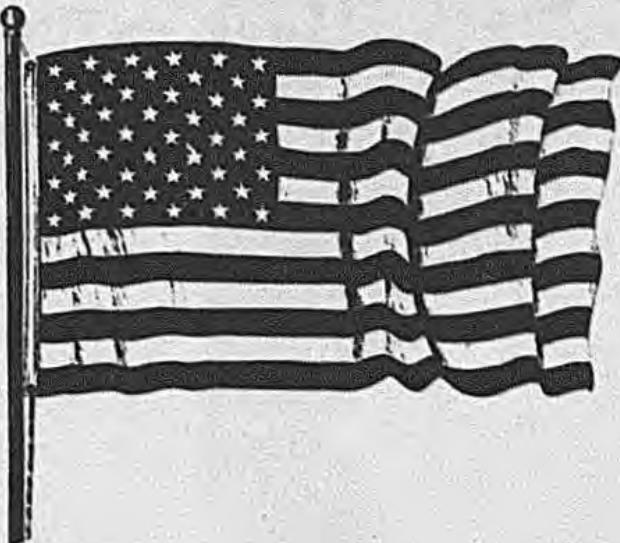

The stars were adopted from ancient good luck symbols as used in Egypt, India and Persia and they were meant to signify sovereignty and lofty ambitions. The gathering or constellation of stars was meant to convey that although each state is granted sovereignty, the exception is when it applies to rights delegated to them by the Federal Government.

When George Washington was once asked how he would describe the meanings of the colors and symbols of the flag as pertaining to our young nation, he replied, "We take the stars from heaven; the red from our mother country; separating it by white stripes, this showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

It wasn't long, however, before the permanency of the flag design was threatened. In 1791, Vermont was admitted to the Union and so the stars and stripes had to be increased to 15 to correspond. It was then the government realized that the flag design was due for some crowding as more states would be admitted to the Union. In 1818, Congress enacted a law keeping the number of stripes to 13 (representing the original states) while a star would be added for each succeeding state. That law has been in effect right to the present.

Flag Facts

- The nickname of our flag, "Old Glory" was given to it August 10, 1831, by Captain Williams Driver of the brig, "Charles Doggett" and it became immediately popular.
- The American flag was first carried in battle at the Brandywine on September 11, 1777. The first time it flew over foreign territory was January 18, 1778 at Nassau, Bahama Islands; Fort Nassau having been captured by American troops in the course of the war.
- The first foreign salute to our flag was given by French Admiral LaMotte Piquet, off Quiberon Bay, February 13, 1778.
- The American flag is like no other inasmuch as it symbolizes not only national independence, but the absence of a reigning family, royal house or individual. It is us. And that stands of course, for U.S. The flag means life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, plus a future we all pray, hope and work for in these United States.
- Floating from the pinnacle of American idealism, the flag has become a beacon of hope similar to the famous Bartholdi Statue of Liberty which tells the world we are a mixture of peoples from all nations who came here for help, and to help make this a better place to live in.
- Old Glory has inspired and lit the fires of patriotism where it flew at Saratoga at Yorktown, at Palo Alto, at Gettysburg, Manila Bay, Chateau-Thierry and other far-off battlegrounds.

How To Display The Flag

It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on stationary flagstaffs in the open or on buildings. It may, however, be flown at night for special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect in parades or for special events.

Flag holidays (when to display the flag): New Year's Day, January 1; Inauguration Day, January 20; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Easter Sunday, variable; Mother's Day, second Sunday in May; Armed Forces Day, third Saturday in May; Memorial Day, half-staff until noon, then full-staff, May 30; Flag Day, June 14; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Constitution Day, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Veterans Day, November 11; Thanksgiving Day, 4th Thursday in November; Christmas Day, December 25; and such other days proclaimed by the President of the United States.

The Law Of The Flag

No other flag, pennant or guidon should be placed above Old Glory or even on the same level.

The flag may be used in the ceremony of unveiling a statue, but it must never be used as a covering for a statue or monument.

State flags, regimental colors or organizational flags may be dipped as a mark of honor, but the American flag should never be dipped to any person or thing.

The only time a U.S. flag should be displayed union down, is as a signal of dire distress, at sea.

When displayed horizontally or vertically, the blue starred constellation must be on the left of the observer.

Old Glory should never touch the ground or floor under any circumstances. It also should not be used in any sort of advertising.

The flag should not be made into clothing. It is a sign of disrespect to wear it as a jacket, etc. Shoulder flag patches or pins are acceptable.

When the National Anthem is played, but the flag is not on display, all present should stand, facing toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the Anthem, retaining the position until the last note. All others should stand at attention and if wearing headgear, salute. If not, hold the right hand over the heart as the flag passes as in a parade.

Care And Use

To preserve the bright colors, never wash a flag. It can be cleaned safely by a dry cleaner. Some will clean your flag for free! In the event you have displayed the flag in inclement weather and it is wet, spread it out until it dries. Do not fold or roll up when damp.

Any flag not fitting as an emblem for display that is dirty or torn, should not be torn up or carelessly thrown away. It should be destroyed with dignity by burning.

When George M. Cohen wrote, "It's a Grand Old Flag" and said it was the emblem of the land we love, he spoke for Americans from the very first days of our fight for freedom to our honoring of our most famous citizens. None of us should forget our history lessons about the flag flying as a memorial over the poppy fields in Flanders, France, after World War I, or when it was erected on Mount Suribachi on the island of Iwo Jima by our troops in World War II, or in outposts in Korea, or the steaming hell of Vietnam, and the oil-soaked sands of Kuwait.

Ever since Francis Scott Key penned his tribute to the "Star Spangled Banner," in the heat of battle, our flag has been a reminder of a country that seeks peace but will fight when it has to.

Display your flag on June 14, Flag Day, and show your pride in being an American!

READER RATINGS

Q. I do not understand why American restaurants continue to use French wording on their menus. Not long ago I ate in a place where various dishes were described as "a l'Espagnole", "a la Grecque" and "a l'Anglaise." Telling diners that the foods were prepared in the Spanish or Greek or English manner was not very helpful!

A. French cuisine is considered by many people to be the best in the world so it is not surprising that many terms dealing with food preparations are derived from the French!

Your waiter would have been pleased to inform you that a dish served "a l'Espagnole" is combined with tomatoes, onions and olives. One which is "a la Grecque" has a sauce of olive oil, lemon, spices and peppercorns. Anything served "a l'Anglaise" is boiled.

Don't be intimidated by French (or Italian, German etc.) expressions in menus. Those terms are not difficult to master and after a time you will begin to see they are a useful "shorthand" for the diner, telling him about methods of food preparation and ingredients.

Fine fish stock.

For intense stock, don't cook the fish too long!

1. To intensify flavor, use a large quantity of fish parts.
2. Fish stock cooks quickly; don't let it simmer more than 20 minutes, or it will turn bitter.
3. Use stock in chowders, soups and stews.

READER RATINGS

Q. When I am on a diet, I find it difficult to find things at restaurants. What do you suggest? C.B.

A. The suggestion is that you check ads and call restaurants. Many of them have special diet plates that will be just what you are looking for. Some restaurants will allow substitutions and you can make your own plate but you cannot be sure of this unless you check the restaurant policy in advance.

Smart sage.

If you have a sage plant in your garden, it's easy to dry and powder for cooking.

1. Hose off sage bush and allow to dry for 1 to 2 hours.
2. Cut a few lengths and tie in bouquets.
3. Hang in an airy place until dry enough to crumble.
4. Put leaves (without stems) in blender and whirl.
5. Keep powdered sage in an airtight bottle.

READER RATINGS

Q. Will you please describe the correct procedure for introducing one couple to another (1) when the couples are approximately the same age (2) when one couple is older or more distinguished in station than the other? M.J.

A. When the couples are about the same age it doesn't matter whose names are mentioned first. When one couple is older or more distinguished - or perhaps guests in your town - you introduce the younger couple.

Q. When dining out I have often seen women wearing their coats to the table, then depositing them on the back of their chairs. However, I have never seen a man do the same thing with his overcoat. Is there really a difference in etiquette for men and women in regard to checking coats?

A. Yes, a man always checks his coat in a restaurant. But a woman has the option of checking her coat or bringing it to the table.

YOU CAN BE A RESTAURANT CRITIC - If you visit any of the restaurants selected for inclusion in this section - call 931-0027 at any hour and tell your ideas. We want you, the reader, to be our critic. Your message then can be printed in this space.

Q. We are not wine drinkers. If we're giving a party, what kind of wines should we stock in order to take care of our wine-drinking friends' pleasure - from cocktail hour through dinner? W.L.

A. For the cocktail hour you might have on hand dry or sweet sherry, or dry or sweet vermouth, or any of the popular "speritifs." Many choose a glass of dry white wine at the cocktail hour (either chilled or "on the rocks").

For the first course, or to drink with any fish, salad, chicken, veal or fruit, a chilled white wine is nice (such as Chablis, Soave, Riesling, Chenin Blanc, Pinot Chardonnay).

For the meat or game course (or the salad with cheese), serve a Burgundy, Bordeaux, Chianti, Cabernet Sauvignon or Zinfandel at a cool room temperature (from 60 to 70 degrees).

Rose wines should be chilled like white wines. A rose is best served with a light dish and is more popular in hot weather than in cold.

For dessert you may serve the same wine you had from the previous course. Or if it's something festive like an anniversary, dessert time is the moment to bring on the champagne (the drier the better!).

Some people enjoy a sweet wine with dessert, such as port or a sweet sauterne or sherry, but one seldom sees this custom followed anymore in this country.

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

Guide to Good Dining

Vegetarian View

By Linda Susan Dudley

Quick cooking is catching on fast

When author Linda Gassenheimer steps into the kitchen, she knows good food doesn't have to take all day to prepare.

"How else could I feed my active family, enjoy my work and still have time to play?" she writes.

Gassenheimer put a lot of her experience into a cookbook, "Quick Cook," published by Chapters Publishing.

Because, the Miami-based author says, she doesn't want home cooks recycling the same five to seven meals through the year.

Following Gassenheimer's guide, it does seem possible to get dinner on the table in 45 minutes. She's not the first to promote quick meals.

For the last five years, cookbooks and magazines have been devoted to feeding the family in a jiffy.

Initially, cookbooks touted meals ready in less than an hour. Now they're promising the 20-minute meal. Frankly, I don't find 20 minutes to-the-table workable for the average cook unless he or she is just opening cans.

Here are some of Gassenheimer's fast-food tips:

- Poaching, sautéing, broiling and stir-frying are the best methods for cooking food quickly.

- The quickest way to stir-fry is to place all ingredients (already washed and chopped) on the counter in order of use. That way you won't have to refer to the recipe again and again while you cook.

- The quickest way to cook rice is to prepare it like pasta in a lot of boiling water; it will roll in the water. It turns out perfect and fluffy and takes only 10 minutes, or half the normal time. Just drain as needed when tender, and it's ready to serve.

- Keep pasta, pizza shells and bottled or frozen sauces on hand for emergency dinners. You can add practically anything in the refrigerator to the sauce for a quick dinner when there's no time to shop.

- Freeze good-quality, freshly grated Parmesan cheese. It can be measured without defrosting and will quickly reach room temperature. Buy it in one piece and ask the market to grate it for you, or do it at home.

- Use a salad spinner to rinse and dry vegetables quickly.

- Salted water takes longer to boil, so always bring water to a boil before adding salt.

- Keep a couple of unopened cans of low-salt vegetable stock in the refrigerator for use in low-fat sauces, soups or salad dressings.

- Keep as much equipment within easy reach as possible. Put your food processor on the counter. If it is stored away, it will never be used.

• Gassenheimer's special hint for cooks with electric burners: "When I use an electric range I usually work with two burners on, one set on low, the other on high. That way I can switch the pans back and forth without waiting for the burner to adjust its temperature."

Finally, Gassenheimer has a kitchen pet peeve that she says slows anyone down. She calls it one of the most overlooked timesavers: "Make sure the kitchen sink is free of dishes before you begin making dinner."

Here is a recipe from Gassenheimer's new book. She adapted her recipe from a soup she had at the well-known Union Square Cafe in New York City. It's fine for a light meal.

WHITE BEAN VICHYSSOISE

4 teaspoons dry white wine
4 medium cloves garlic, peeled and crushed through a press
2 tablespoons butter OR margarine
2 medium leeks, well washed and sliced
2 stalks celery, sliced
2 (19-ounce) cans cannellini beans
2 (14½-ounce) cans defatted vegetable stock
2 teaspoons chopped fresh rosemary OR ½ teaspoon dried
2 teaspoons chopped fresh thyme OR ½ teaspoon dried
2 teaspoons chopped fresh sage OR ½ teaspoon dried
2 bay leaves
Salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives OR green onions for garnish

Yields 4 servings.

Heat white wine in small non-stick skillet. Add garlic and cook over low flame without browning it, for 10 minutes.

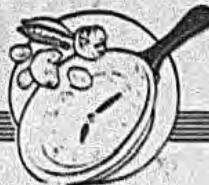

Meanwhile, heat butter or margarine in medium-size non-stick saucepan. Add leeks and celery, and sauté gently until wilted and lightly colored, about 10 minutes.

Drain and rinse beans. Add to leek mixture along with vegetable stock, herbs and bay leaves. Add garlic mixture and simmer 15 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Remove bay leaves. Puree in blender or food processor. Serve warm or at room temperature with sprinkling of chives or green onions as a garnish.

Gassenheimer's recipe tip: Drain and rinse beans before using in recipe. Remove grit from leeks by cutting them in quarters lengthwise; rinse well under running water.

Hurry-up eats for barbecue season

By Sharon Achatz

Dust off the grill and heat up the coals — barbecue season is here, even for chefs with limited time for preparing supper.

While barbecuing generally is considered a slow-paced festivity during which a crowd gathers to enjoy the aroma and anticipation of food cooked outdoors, there are recipes that allow even hurry-up chefs to enjoy the novelty of outdoor grilling.

No meat cooks faster than fish, so it's the perfect pick. Grilled Tuna Steaks With Orange-Mint Chutney take only five to six minutes on the grill, and the prep work adds only another 10 minutes or so.

The recipe calls for 15 to 30 minutes of marination, which is an ideal time to prepare a side salad and dessert. Dinner can be on the table in 40 minutes flat — including time required to light charcoal.

Beans and Greens Salad is a colorful side dish choice, as brown garbanzo beans and green beans are offset by the red of radicchio leaves. Baked Bananas and Cream is a sweet treat that heats up on the barbecue in convenient foil packets while you eat the main fare.

Game plan for preparing the meal: If using briquettes, light them (five minutes) so they can burn to an ash-gray stage. If using a quick-heat gas grill, there is no need to preheat; turn it on just prior to placing tuna steaks on it.

Prepare chutney and set aside in refrigerator (10 minutes). Prepare marinade and place tuna steaks in it (five minutes). Prepare banana packets; set aside (five minutes). Toss together salad (10 minutes).

Cook tuna steaks (six minutes); remove from grill and serve with chutney and salad. Place banana packets on grill to cook (15 minutes); they should be ready to eat just about the time the main dish and salad have been consumed.

GRILLED TUNA STEAKS WITH ORANGE-MINT CHUTNEY

For chutney:
1 seedless orange, peeled and finely chopped
1 tablespoon finely chopped red onion
1 teaspoon dried mint OR 1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh mint
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh green chili pepper
1 teaspoon orange juice
For marinade:
1 orange
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ teaspoon dried thyme

1 teaspoon minced garlic

¼ cup olive oil
4 (6-ounce) tuna steaks, cut about 1-inch thick

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 40 minutes, which includes time to light charcoal and marinate meat.

If using briquettes, light them so they can burn to ash-gray stage. If using quick-heat gas grill, there is no need to preheat; turn it on to medium-hot just prior to placing tuna steaks on it.

To make chutney, combine all chutney ingredients in medium-size bowl. Cover and refrigerate 30 minutes to 1 hour. Don't let chutney stand too long or it will lose its fresh flavor and texture.

To prepare marinade, finely grate rind from orange into shallow dish. Cut orange in half and squeeze juice into dish; add lemon juice, soy sauce, thyme and garlic and mix well. Gradually whisk in olive oil until smooth. Add tuna to marinade and turn to coat all sides. Let marinate at room temperature 15 to 30 minutes.

Once grill is hot, remove tuna from marinade, reserving liquid. Cook steaks 5 inches from heat 3 to 6 minutes, turning once and basting often with reserved marinade. Serve immediately with orange chutney.

BEANS AND GREENS SALAD

1 (8-ounce) package frozen green beans
1 (8-ounce) can garbanzo beans
1 head radicchio
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon red wine vinegar
1 ¼ tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons fresh chopped chives

Yields 4 servings.

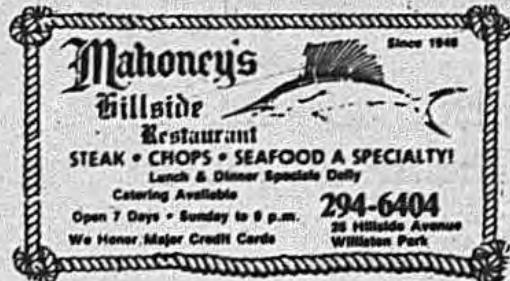

Preparation time: 10 minutes. Cook green beans according to microwave directions for crisp-tender doneness; drain well. Rinse and drain garbanzo beans. Wash radicchio and separate leaves.

Put green and garbanzo beans into large bowl with salt, vinegar, olive oil and chives; mix well.

Just before serving, add radicchio to beans and stir gently to mix all ingredients.

KITCHEN KIDS

Cool off with fresh fruit sorbet

By Rena Coyle

As summer approaches and the days heat up, there is only one thing that will break your body's heat wave: a heaping spoonful of a homemade fresh fruit sorbet.

Sorbets are often overlooked as a refresher, shown up by ice cream and other frozen combinations. But it is the frozen purees of fresh fruits that are the real heat quencher. They are so incredibly simple to make that once your family has tried one, driving for ice cream will become a thing of the past.

Preparing a sorbet mixture is simple. Your kids at any age can do all the steps. The first process in all sorbet-making is the preparation of the simple syrup. This quick method only requires bringing the mixture to boil just long enough to dissolve the sugar.

The syrup is then cooled and combined with different fresh fruits and fruit juices. The syrup can be made in any quantity and kept for several weeks in the refrigerator.

The sorbet mixture is then frozen. There are several methods of freezing a sorbet without having to purchase an ice cream freezer. Each recipe for sorbet gives you a slightly different way to freeze the mixture in your freezer.

The methods are completely interchangeable, as well as always having the option to use an ice cream freezer. The method depends on your time and what equipment you have available.

Sorbets are always their best when served the same day they are frozen. If you make extra or have some left over, freeze in an airtight container; it will stay fresh for several days. Before serving the sorbet again, let it sit at room temperature for 10 minutes, then purée it in the food processor until the sorbet becomes smooth.

SIMPLE SYRUP

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
½ orange
Yields 2 cups
Preparation time: 5 minutes.
Cooking time: 5 minutes.
Utensils: measuring cups, saucepan, container with lid.

Combine sugar and water together in saucepan. Peel orange, squeeze, and add pulp and juice to pan. Bring it to a boil, then turn off heat and move pan to cool burner.

Let syrup completely come to room temperature. Remove orange pulp and pour liquid into container and refrigerate until ready to use.

STRAWBERRY APPLE SORBET

1 pint ripe strawberries
3 mint leaves
1 cup simple syrup
1 cup apple juice
Yields 6 servings.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Freezing time: about 3 hours.

Utensils: paring knife, food processor, scissors, measuring cup, 9x13-inch pan, mixing spoon.

Trim off green leaves from strawberries. Rinse them under cold water and then shake off excess moisture. Put in bowl of food processor.

With scissors cut mint leaves into fine ribbons and add to bowl.

Add syrup and apple juice to bowl. Secure lid and process until fruit purees. Pour into pan and set in freezer. Every 45 minutes give mixture a stir. Once firmly frozen, remove from freezer and let it sit on counter for 5 minutes before scooping.

MANGO GINGER SORBET

2 ripe mangoes
3 mint leaves
1 cup simple syrup
1 cup ginger ale
Yields 6 servings.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Freezing time: 2½ to 3 hours.

Utensils: cutting board, knife, scissors, measuring cups, blender or food processor, 9x13-inch pan, mixing spoon.

With adult help, peel skin off mango. Cut flesh away from flat seed. Chop flesh into large chunks. Set aside.

Cut mint leaves into thin ribbons with scissors. Put them in bowl of food processor along with mango. Add syrup and ginger ale. Secure lid and puree until mango makes a smooth puree.

Pour mixture into pan and place in freezer. Freeze for about 2½ to 3 hours, until mixture is completely frozen.

Remove frozen mixture from freezer and break it up into large pieces. Put mixture into blender or food processor and puree until mixture becomes smooth frozen puree. Put mixture back in pan and return to freezer for 20 minutes. Scoop into serving bowls.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Desiree Vives

A microwave oven is wonderful for cooking many of your favorite dishes, of course, but it can do many other things as well. Here are a few microwave "tricks" you might not have thought of.

To make your own bread crumbs in the microwave, place a slice of bread on a paper towel and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting one to two minutes, or until almost dry. (Time required will depend on freshness and moisture content of bread.) Bread will continue to dry as it cools.

When cool and dry, crush with a rolling pin or process in blender container to make crumbs. Croutons may be prepared in the same way.

Now that summer's almost here, kids will be home more and looking for things to do. Here's a sticky glue they can make themselves to use in paper arts-and-crafts projects. In a small bowl, combine 3 tablespoons cornstarch and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cold water; mix to form a smooth paste. Then microwave 2 cups of water at HIGH (100 percent power) setting three to four minutes, or until boiling.

Add cornstarch mixture to boiling water, stirring well. Then microwave at LOW/DEFROST (30 percent power) setting for two to three minutes, to thicken. When cool, pour into an old plastic squeeze bottle.

To quickly soften frozen fruit juice concentrate, remove from can and place in a microwave-safe pitcher. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 30 seconds to one minute, or until soft; add water, stir and serve.

Dry fresh herbs from your summer garden quickly in your microwave. Sprinkle clean leaves in a single layer on a paper towel. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting one to three minutes, checking frequently and stopping as soon as leaves feel dry. Store dried herbs in an airtight container.

ZUCCHINI BISQUE

2 tablespoons butter OR margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
2 medium potatoes, thinly sliced
1 pound zucchini, thinly sliced
3 cups chicken, beef or vegetable broth OR 3 bouillon cubes dissolved in 3 cups hot water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped fresh parsley
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
OR $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon dried basil
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
Bacon bits
Yields 4 to 6 servings.
Preparation time: 15 to 20 minutes.

Cooking time: 16 to 23 minutes.
Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Combine butter or margarine and onion in 3-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave 2 to 3 minutes, stirring once.

until onion is tender and translucent.

Add potatoes, cover tightly and microwave 6 to 9 minutes, stirring once, until potatoes are tender. Stir in zucchini, cover, and microwave 4 to 5 minutes longer, until zucchini is tender.

Place mixture in blender container; process in several batches until pureed. Return to casserole and stir in all remaining ingredients except sour cream, 1 tablespoon parsley and bacon bits.

Cover and microwave 4 to 6 minutes, or until soup bubbles, stirring twice.

Ladle into individual serving bowls and top each with a dollop of sour cream and a light sprinkle of chopped parsley and bacon bits.

Serve immediately.

CHICKEN LINGUINE

$\frac{1}{2}$ pound boneless chicken tenders, cut into bite-size pieces
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup oil-and-vinegar dressing with Italian herbs
6 ounces linguine noodles
2 tablespoons butter OR margarine
1 cup fresh sliced mushrooms
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped green onions
2 cloves garlic, minced
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons white wine
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
OP: $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon dried basil
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
Extra grated Parmesan cheese
Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 minutes.
Cooking time: 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 9 minutes (plus time to cook pasta conventionally).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Combine chicken pieces and oil-and-vinegar dressing in small mixing bowl. Stir. Cover and let stand several minutes.

Cook linguine conventionally according to package instructions. Drain.

In large microwave-safe bowl, combine butter or margarine and chicken with dressing; toss and microwave 4 to 5 minutes, or until chicken is no longer pink in center, stirring once.

Stir in mushrooms, green onions and garlic. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave 2 to 3 minutes, or until onions are tender. Stir in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup Parmesan cheese, fresh parsley, wine, basil and pepper. Microwave 30 seconds to 1 minute longer, to heat through.

Add hot, drained linguine to bowl. Toss well with two forks to mix evenly and serve immediately. Sprinkle with extra grated Parmesan cheese, if desired.

MICRO-TIP OF WEEK

To eliminate lingering odors in your microwave, thinly slice one lemon. Place in a two-cup glass measure with $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting about five minutes, or until inside of oven is steamy and smells fresh and lemony; wipe with a dry cloth.

Doesn't want to be a homebody

Dr. Abraham: I'm a modern kind of girl who wants to have a career of her very own, like being a doctor or lawyer. I think that is a good idea, and I feel smart enough to reach that goal.

My dad is pessimistic about all this. He says that's what is wrong with our country, just too many women neglecting their home and family responsibilities.

"Be a homebody like your mother," he told me. He also said he thinks that women who work are a lot less happy than those who stay at home.

My mom told me (on the sly) that she envies the future opportunities I can have, and she will do whatever she can to help me reach any career objective I choose. She doesn't get involved over controversial issues with my dad because she hates to argue.

I have a feeling that I can do both, have a husband and kids and a career, too.

I'd really appreciate your common-sense ideas on this subject. — Career Minded.

Career Minded: The occupational trend in this country is definitely in the direction of your mother's thoughts. There are, of course, happy stay-at-home mothers as well as totally satisfied mothers who are able to handle careers together with home responsibilities.

One recent research study concluded that there are more depressed non-working mothers than there are depressed ones among those in the working world.

Generalizing on a subject like this (as well as many others) is questionable. More sensible is emphasis on an individual's personality and capabilities. As goal-oriented and smart as you seem to be, you may be one of those who can successfully combine home and career responsibilities.

I hope your father will begin to come around, perhaps by becoming aware of the increasing number of newspaper, magazine, and book reports about women who have well-balanced lives based on their home and family, as well as outside work involvements.

Dr. Abraham: I'm a 15-year-old guy, and up till a few years ago I never thought about what could happen to me. When I discovered a problem that I had I thought it was kind of the end of the world. The problem was that my chest began to fill out, but not the way I wanted it to with weight lifting or other exercises.

It was getting to look like a girl's, not huge but definitely noticeable to me. Because I felt so embarrassed I started to wear my loose shirts, and made sure that I was covered up all the time. I didn't even want my parents to see me like that.

When my mother asked me why I wasn't wearing other shirts that were closer to my size before the chest fattened, I told her how foolish I felt and that I didn't know what to do about it.

She and my dad went with me to our pediatrician, and he referred us to a doctor who was more of a specialist on something like this. He took care of it completely, and I'm now back to my regular shape and wearing regular clothes.

If any of you guys have a problem like this, do what I did, tell your mom and dad and go to a doctor. I won't tell you how mine cured me because I was told that there are different cures.

I think it is up to your own doctor to tell you what can be done. — Nameless

Nameless: Thank you for sharing your experience. It will probably be helpful to some other boys who may be hesitant in talking to anyone about the enlargement of their breast area. There often is consolation in recognizing that now has company with the same concern.

This condition, called "gynecomastia," is more common than most people may think, and can be treated in several ways.

Your own physician or pediatrician, or another medical specialist to whom he or she refers you, may be your best source for more information on this subject, including what treatment methods are available and suitable for you.

Dr. Abraham: I'm so worried about the future because I don't know what I want to do in it. My parents ask me what I want to be when I'm grown-up, and I never know what to say. They don't get really upset about that, but I just have a feeling that maybe they aren't satisfied with me.

I'm a 15-year-old boy, and I guess I should at least have some idea of what I want to do with my life.

I really need to know what you think. — Unsettled

Unsettled: Some high school programs and the first two years of some college programs are involved in a limited way to the subject of career choices. More emphasis often comes later. At your age there should be, if anything, only the first glimmer of consideration in that direction. There is plenty of time ahead for serious thoughts on this subject.

The "Dictionary of Occupational Titles," produced by the U.S. Department of Labor lists and describes many thousands of occupations. Some young people believe there is only a small number of job areas to consider, not realizing how huge and varied the job market is.

Suggestions to your mother may also be worthwhile, but only if you can offer them without offending her. You might have to wait for the right times to bring them up.

The breads of Italy

By Orlando Ramirez

Bread is simple. Flour, water, yeast — maybe a little salt — and you have the staff of life. Yet, each culture has its own variation and it is how those variations are made, and the ingredients added, that summarizes the history of that culture's cuisine.

Italy is as good example as any. Sitting at the crossroads of the Mediterranean, the Italian peninsula has been invaded or occupied by the Greeks, Etruscans, Arabs, French and Germans in its 3,000-year history. Each has left its stamp on Italian food.

Flat breads, such as focaccia, draw from the Arab style of bread baking brought by the Moors, who also introduced the eggplant from across the Mediterranean.

The European influence can be seen in the breads from the northern reaches, in particular the Pane Giallo, which uses polenta to make a corn bread. Although who introduced rice to the Lombardy region is in dispute, the French are widely credited as having a deep influence on the development of risotto.

Even the Americas, through the tomato, have had their effect on Italian cooking.

Of equal influence is Italy's geography. Surrounded on three sides by water, with a mixed terrain of mountains and fertile fields, cooks in each of Italy's 20 regions have a wealth of indigenous ingredients with which to whip up local specialties.

It is said that it took national hero Giuseppe Garibaldi to unify the cuisine when he marched from one end of Italy to the other and introduced the northern, rice-eating soldiers in his campaign to the pleasures of pasta and tomatoes from the south.

The essential aspect of each of these breads is the flavoring imparted by local herbs and flavorings.

Panne Rustico, flavored with Italian ham and mozzarella cheese, can be a meal in itself. In Rome, Panne Rustico, a green salad and a bottle of Chianti are considered lunch.

From Sicily, there is Pane di Mattina Alla Siciliana, a breakfast bread that uses locally made Marsala dessert wine to impart a sweet flavor.

In fact, Marsala wine is used quite frequently in Sicilian dessert-making, said to be the best in Italy. Many of the recipes were influenced by the Moorish invaders.

Most of the "rustic" breads described here demand nothing more than a simple dressing of a good olive oil, salt and maybe a tomato — the vine-ripened kind, not the gaseous variety that passes for a tomato in most American supermarkets — to make an excellent appetizer.

And although most Italians purchase their loaves at the neighborhood bakery, there are few things better or more impressive than home-baked bread.

To be honest, baking bread is a time-consuming process that requires some physical labor if you're not using a food processor fitted with a dough hook. One thing to remember is that the loaves you don't use right away can be frozen.

It is best to freeze right after the bread has cooled to preserve freshness. Make sure the freezer wrap or bag is airtight. You don't want any moisture or vapors to be absorbed. It is best to use frozen breads within four to six months.

There are several important steps to preparing yeast doughs. (The Pane Giallo uses no yeast.) The first is, of course, the yeast, which must be proofed in warm water at least 105 F.

If bubbles fail rise within 10 minutes of mixing the yeast with the warm water, then the yeast is inactive and you must start with a fresh package. However, most commercial yeast will begin proofing within five minutes.

Then the kneading begins. Many chefs opt to use a food processor with a plastic dough hook instead of kneading by hand. When using a food processor, start with the dry ingredients in the bowl and add the liquid slowly. When mixed thoroughly, the dough will form a ball and the sides and bottom of the bowl should be clean.

A further note: Use the plastic dough hook with amounts less than 3 cups of dry ingredients. Above that amount, the metal blade works best.

Even if you're using a food processor, take the dough out of the bowl and knead it by hand for a few turns. Something about the dough being stretched by hand seems to give an extra elasticity and texture.

Set the dough on a lightly floured bowl and, using the heel of your hand, push the dough away from you. Then, pull the end back over and give the dough a turn — no more than an inch or two.

Build up a rhythm, pushing, pulling and turning in a continuous motion until the dough develops an elastic, smooth finish with small bubbles appearing just under the surface.

At first the dough may stick to the board. Sprinkle the board with flour until it becomes clean. Scrape away any wet pieces that stick to the board.

Kneading helps develop the gluten in the dough. The yeast forms bubbles of carbon dioxide and stretches the gluten. This expansion determines the volume and texture of the bread.

The purpose of letting the dough rise, then punching it down, is to keep the yeast from stretching to a point where it breaks down the gluten network. The result of the rising and punching down creates an even texture to the dough.

This expansion (or rising) continues until heat in the oven kills the yeast.

For breads that demand a heavier texture, such as the focaccia, you don't want to let the bread achieve much volume, so the rising time is 1 1/2 hours.

On the other hand, the Pane di Mattina is allowed to rise for almost 8 hours total to develop a light, airy texture to hold the raisins and currants in a sweet dough flavored with Marsala and lemons.

The Merenda Fiorentina is a flat, pizza-style bread scented with rosemary, oil and garlic.

To serve, cut it into thin slices and pack along with a picnic lunch of roast chicken, roasted red peppers and red wine.

The bacon and cheese in the Pane Rustico make it a perfect accompaniment to a bowl of chicken or tomato soup.

The Pane di Mattina alla Siciliana is Sicily's answer to the morning Danish. Make it a day ahead, then serve it with a cup of good, strong coffee for a break from the traditional bacon-and-egg breakfast.

The Pane Giallo is lightened with egg whites to give it a puddinglike consistency.

However, the red peppers and garlic give it a distinctively savory cast.

Like polenta, this bread goes well with grilled chicken or chops, roast quail or pan-fried sausages.

PANE DI MATTINA ALLA SICILIANA

(Sicilian Morning Bread)

- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1/2 cup plus 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 1/2 cups scalded milk, cooled to 100 F
- 6 1/2 cups (approximately) unbleached flour
- 1/4 cup dried currants
- 1/4 cup golden raisins
- 1/2 cup Marsala
- 1/2 cup unsalted butter
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- 1 1/2 teaspoons fennel seed
- 4 eggs
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Egg Wash
- 1 tablespoon whipping cream
- 1 egg yolk
- 1/2 tablespoon Marsala

Yields 2 9-inch loaves or 1 large round loaf.

Brush olive oil over surface of large stainless steel bowl. Put yeast and 1 teaspoon of sugar in bottom of bowl. Add 1 cup of scalded milk and stir to dissolve yeast.

Set aside for 10 minutes, then add 1 1/2 cups of flour and remaining milk.

Knead by hand or with mixer and dough hook until dough is soft and silky, about 7 or 8 minutes. Cover and let rise 5 hours.

While dough rises, soak currants and raisins in Marsala for at least 1 hour. In small saucepan over low heat, melt butter and 2 tablespoons shortening. Add fennel seed, remove from heat, and let stand until cool. Add eggs to fennel-seed mixture one at a time, blending well after each addition, then add lemon rind and remaining sugar. Set aside.

When dough has risen 5 hours, add fennel-seed mixture and mix well. Add salt and begin adding remaining flour, 1/4 cup at a time. When dough is firm enough to knead, turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and soft, about 10 to 15 minutes, adding as much additional flour as necessary to keep it from sticking. During final 5 minutes, knead in raisins and currants.

Form dough into 2 loaves. Use remaining shortening to grease 2 9-inch loaf pans. Place dough in pans, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. This may take as long as 3 hours. (Dough may also be formed into 1 large round loaf and baked free-form.)

To make Egg Wash, combine cream, yolk and Marsala in small bowl.

Preheat oven to 375 F. Brush Egg Wash on loaves 5 minutes before baking. Brush again immediately before baking. Bake until loaves are golden brown and sound hollow when tapped, about 35 minutes. Cool on racks.

MERENDA FIORENTINA

(Florentine Snack Bread)

- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups unbleached flour
- 1 cup warm (105 F) water
- 3 tablespoons olive oil plus olive oil for brushing crust
- 1 tablespoon minced garlic
- Cornmeal, for dusting
- Coarse salt
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh rosemary (optional)

Yields 1 12x14-inch rectangle.

Combine yeast, salt and flour in large bowl. Combine water and oil in small bowl. Add liquid to dry ingredients and mix until they form a rough mass. Knead mixture in bowl with your hands until it holds together, then turn it out onto lightly floured surface and knead in garlic. Continue kneading until dough is smooth and elastic, about 8 minutes. Form into ball and let rest on lightly floured surface, covered, for 1 hour.

Preheat oven to 375 F. Roll dough into 12x14-inch rectangle and transfer to baking sheet sprinkled with cornmeal.

Use your fingertips to make indentations in the dough at 2-inch intervals. Sprinkle dough lightly with coarse salt and drizzle olive oil over the top. Sprinkle with rosemary (if used). Bake until golden, about 25 minutes. Remove from oven and brush with a little more olive oil. Cool slightly on rack; serve warm.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

Many gardeners make the mistake of covering their carrot seeds with too much soil or planting them in clumpy, hard ground that has been worked too early. Those dirt clods lie like stones on the tiny seeds.

A rule of thumb with all seeds is to cover them with no more than 3 to 4 times their thickness. Of course, with carrots this means barely covered, ideally with fine, light soil never more than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch deep.

Just keep the bed moist until seedlings appear. If the soil surface dries and forms a crust, it will smother the tender seedlings before they can break through.

For this reason, many gardeners prefer to sow a sprinkling of radish seeds along with their carrots, counting on the fast-germinating radishes to bust up the soil surface for the carrots.

The best soil temperature range for carrots is 70 F to 85 F. Below that, germination is drastically reduced.

It helps to presoak parsley seeds, then freeze them for about a week. If you're anxious to plant immediately, just soak the seeds overnight and let them surface dry on newspapers so they don't clump together when you plant them.

Then pour boiling water over the planted seeds. However, never boil the seeds themselves; it's absolutely fatal!

Any seeds you presoak you'll find easier to handle if you either let them dry superficially so they don't stick together or mix them with a dry substance like sand or coffee grounds to separate them.

Remember, a soaked seed has started to germinate, so don't let it dry for more than a few hours before it is planted; otherwise, it might not be able to maintain its new momentum of growth.

If a planting of seeds fails to germinate, consider one or more of the following reasons:

- Seeds are too old. Parsnip and onion seeds aren't reliable after one year. Sweet corn loses viability after two years. However, most other seeds are good for at least three years.

- Seeds were poorly stored. Heat and dampness decrease longevity by causing seeds to use up stored vigor; stored seeds should be kept dry and cool.

- Soil was too wet or too dry.

- Soil mixture was too rich.

- Soil temperature was too low or too high.

- Seeds were planted too deep. Rule of thumb is, cover seeds to a depth three to four times their size.

GARDEN TIPS

Tricky seeds

- Don't plant old seeds.
- Store seeds in a cool, dry place.
- Don't plant seeds in soil that is too wet or too dry.
- Cover seeds to a depth of 3 to 4 times their size.
- Many gardeners prefer to sow a sprinkling of radish seeds along with their carrots, counting on the fast-germinating radishes to bust up the soil surface for carrots.
- Temperature range for carrots is 70° to 85°F; below that germination is drastically reduced.

Helping parent of Down's syndrome child adjust

It probably would be better if you accompanied your husband to any meetings, events or even just conversations with other parents. Then you would have shared experiences to discuss on this problem.

Because many parents have adjusted to and accepted situations of this type, there is a good reason for you to be optimistic that your husband also will do so in time.

Q. We have a 4-year-old little girl who has Down's syndrome. As you no doubt know, these children all have a distinctive kind of appearance.

Natural healing moves into medical mainstream

In Deepak Chopra's ideal medical world, doctors would love their patients, patients would help think away their illnesses, and everyone would stay healthy by being full of hope.

"If the doctor holds his patient in his thoughts in a caring way, he influences healing," said Chopra, an East Coast endocrinologist. "And the patient who participates in his treatment is less a victim."

Add a dash of ancient Indian healing principles and a heavy dose of meditation, and you have what Chopra calls "Quantum Healing." It's a concept that has made him a New Age megastar and best-selling author several times over with the book by the same name, published by Bantam.

"Creating Health," "Unconditional Life" and "Perfect Health" are among the Chopra titles that promise the secrets to "wake up the body's intelligence" and achieve a near-magical state of well-being.

Thousands searching for an answer to AIDS, cancer and sometimes just a general feeling of ill at ease have packed his seminars coast to coast, and his ideas have begun to catch on with a growing number of traditional Western doctors.

"There's a crisis in medicine in this country; people are looking for new solutions," said Dr. David Simon, a neurologist.

"We've made tremendous medical advances, but we've gotten so enamored with the high-tech approach, we've forgotten the natural."

More Western physicians have also studied Ayurvedic techniques.

Ayurveda, which is Sanskrit for "the science of life," is the 4,000-year-old group of healing therapies from India upon which Chopra's teachings are based.

Unlike Western medicine, which leans toward the "search-and-destroy" approach (for example, search for the germ and kill it), Ayurveda strives to balance the body's physical and mental systems through natural means.

Ayurvedic healers work on the basis that the mind and body are connected and use their own positive attitudes as part of the healing process.

Meditation, massage, nutritional counseling, herbal remedies, music therapy and aromatherapy are all part of the approach.

"This is not to deny we've made tremendous advances (in modern medicine)," said Simon, who has encouraged meditation and massage for his patients for years. "It's just that we are finding there are gaps. This approach fills in the gaps."

NOT ALL BUY INTO IT
Not everyone is a believer.

"It's essentially just a bunch of Hindu folk medicine," said William Jarvis, spokesman for the National Council Against Health Fraud.

JAMA had earlier published an article by Chopra touting Ayurveda and used the October 1991 article to take it all back.

The editors said they had learned Chopra was earning money off Ayurvedic products that one of the Maharishi's companies sells.

Currently, Chopra is involved in a lawsuit against JAMA, calling for JAMA to retract its retraction.

Meanwhile, Chopra openly admits that he found his way to Quantum Healing through the Maharishi, and he accuses some in the Western medical establishment of shunning his ideas because, "It's a lot easier just to prescribe a pill."

Not that Chopra and other Ayurvedic physicians in this country never prescribe drugs. They do, just less frequently than some doctors. Chopra says he uses a blend of Eastern and Western concepts, turning to whatever seems to fit each situation.

SEEING BOTH SIDES

Chopra was born in India, the son of a Western-trained physician. He, too, sought Western medical training as superior to any other method and was at one time on the staff of Tufts University Medical School.

Over time, however, he became troubled by some of the things he saw — in particular, the bombing of the human system with drugs and chemotherapy to eradicate disease, and a heavy reliance on studies and statistics.

Often he felt Western doctors not only did not support their patients in getting well, they sometimes caused them to become sickier.

"If a woman comes to me with ovarian cancer, I would not say, 'Mrs. Smith there is a such-and-such percent chance you will die within so many months,'" Chopra said.

"I would say, 'You have a condition known as ovarian cancer, and if I were you, I'd choose the best outcome. I would have the intention of getting well. I know that that is possible.'

QUANTIFY RESULTS

Those who question Ayurvedic methods often cite the lack of medical studies proving that the techniques work.

For example, the Center for Perfect Health in San Diego plans to conduct a study called the Natural Medicine Demonstration Project.

In this study, 600 volunteers from a health maintenance organization will be surveyed over a period of time as to their wellness.

THE HEALTHY GOURMET

By Kit Sneedaker

New ways with old favorites

Just the other day I ate some of the best baklava I've ever put in my mouth. It was homemade, weeping with butter, honey, nuts and cinnamon. If only this could be brought up to '90s eating, I thought. What a treat.

In fact, isn't that true of a number of favorites? That started me looking and cooking. I found just such a baklava, cheese grits and a tamale pie that fit today's eating.

Here they are, brought up to date and adapted from Readers Digest's "Cook Now Serve Later" (Random House), "The Light Touch Cookbook" and Weight Watchers' "Simply Light Cooking" (Penguin).

BAKLAVA

1 cup raisins
1/4 pound walnuts, chopped
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
5 sheets phyllo dough, thawed
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons honey

Yields 8 servings.

Each serving has about 270 calories, 9 grams fat, no cholesterol and 130 milligrams sodium.

Heat oven to 400 F. Mix raisins, walnuts, sugar and cinnamon in bowl. Spray 8-inch baking pan with non-stick spray. Unroll 1 sheet of phyllo. Cover rest with plastic wrap and damp towel. Spray phyllo with non-stick cooking spray. Fold in half to form a rectangle. Repeat with second sheet of dough. Put dough into baking dish so it covers bottom of pan.

Sprinkle half of raisin/nut mixture over dough. Repeat, using remaining sheets of phyllo dough and raisin/nut mixture to make 3 more layers, ending with phyllo dough.

With serrated knife, score surface of phyllo sheets to make 4-inch triangles and bake for 15 minutes. While phyllo is baking, combine lemon juice and honey in small saucepan and cook over low heat until honey is melted.

When baklava is done, cut it on scored lines to make 8 triangles and pour honey/lemon mixture evenly over whole thing. Put baklava back in oven and bake for 5 more minutes. Cool in pan.

CHEESE GRITS

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 onion, coarsely chopped
2 cups low-sodium chicken broth or homemade
1 cup grits
2 eggs
1 cup low-calorie Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh sage or 2 teaspoons dried

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 260 calories, 1 gram fat, 180 milligrams cholesterol and 330 milligrams sodium.

Preheat oven to 375 F. Melt butter in saucepan and add onion. Sauté until soft. Add chicken stock and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and slowly whisk in grits. Cook, stirring, for a minute or two as grits begin to thicken.

Remove from heat. Break eggs in small bowl and beat slightly. Whisk a tablespoonful of hot grits into eggs to warm them and then whisk eggs and grits together. Add cheese and sage. Pour mixture into oiled 1-quart casserole and bake uncovered for 45 minutes or until golden.

TAMALE PIE

1 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, cored, seeded and diced
2 pounds lean ground beef
1 package frozen corn kernels, thawed
1 cup tomato puree
1/4 cup sliced pimento-stuffed green olives
2 tablespoons yellow cornmeal
1 tablespoon cocoa
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 teaspoons ground cumin
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Pinch salt
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
Hot red pepper sauce to taste
For topping:
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup yellow cornmeal
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1/2 cup shredded low-calorie Cheddar
2 tablespoons chopped green chilies or to taste

Yields 8 to 10 servings.
Each serving has about 500 calories, 17 grams fat, 150 milligrams cholesterol and 700 milligrams sodium.

Heat vegetable oil in large skillet. Add onion and green pepper and sauté until soft, about 5 minutes. Add ground beef and sauté, stirring until it loses its color, about 5 minutes. Add corn, tomato puree, olives and 2 tablespoons cornmeal, cocoa, chili powder, cumin, Worcestershire sauce, salt, allspice and pepper, if used.

Bring to a boil. Simmer, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes. Pour mixture into shallow 2- or 3-quart baking dish.

Preheat oven to 400 F. Mix flour, cornmeal, sugar and baking powder in one bowl. In another break egg and beat slightly. Blend in milk and melted butter.

Stir egg mixture into dry ingredients and stir in cheese and chilies.

Drop by tablespoons on top of beef mixture in casserole and smooth top. Bake uncovered for 10 minutes at 400 F. Reduce heat to 350 F and bake about 40 minutes longer. Pie should be hot and bubbling.

Here's How

Q. Our kitchen sink has rust stains that I have been unable to remove with soap or detergent cleaners. The sink is porcelain.

A. Do you have any suggestions on a method of removing these ugly stains? I would also appreciate any general cleaning advice for older porcelain fixtures. — B.W.

A. Here are several methods of stain and rust removal for porcelain finishes. The one that will prove most effective for you will depend on the extent of the staining.

Minor rust spots on porcelain often can be removed by rubbing them with lemon juice. Use an old toothbrush to scrub the discolored areas. Rinse with clear water. Do not let the lemon juice set on the porcelain finish for any length of time, as it can remove the glaze finish.

An effective cleaning method for porcelain that is discolored and dingy is to apply a thick paste made of scratchless scouring powder and peroxide with a small amount of cream of tartar. Rub this on stains and allow to remain about half an hour; rinse off with clear water. Repeat treatments until stains are removed.

A fine-grained pumice stone also is an effective method of cleaning porcelain. This will not work if the porcelain is old and pitted, but for difficult staining on porcelain that is in good condition, this is very effective. It requires a lot of elbow grease, but it can restore porcelain surfaces to a sparkling, like-new condition.

There are some commercial cleaners on the market. One recommended for removal of rust staining and lime buildup on porcelain or fiberglass is Duro, manufactured by Loctite Corp. (4450 Cranwood Parkway, Cleveland, OH 44128). It is a non-abrasive cleaner that is sprayed on.

It should be allowed to stand for five minutes before rinsing with clear water. Several applications may be necessary for particularly stubborn staining.

Q. Do you have any recommendations for repairing small holes in window screening? I hate to pay for new screens if there is a way I can do some patchwork repair on the screens we have at a vacation home. J.B.

A. Screening, rather than the frame, is usually the first part of a screen that has to be repaired. Small holes can be repaired or patched but the screening should be replaced if there are rips or large holes.

Metal screening should be repaired with patches made of the same type of wire as the screen. These can be cut from scrap screening or purchased ready-cut in packages.

One method of attaching a patch is to bend the wires around the edges. Cut the patch so it is somewhat larger than the hole in the screen. Remove a few strands of cross wire on each side of the patch and bend the exposed strands ($\frac{1}{2}$ inch to 1 inch) upright, so they are perpendicular to the flat surface of the patch.

Place the patch over the hole and push the perpendicular tips through the mesh of the screening surrounding the hole. To hold in place, bend the tips back over the patch and trim them if they are too long. When the patch has weathered a little, it will tend to blend into the screening.

Another method is to fasten the patch by weaving several strands of wire along the edges. The patch should be large enough to extend an inch or 2 beyond the hole on each side. With the patch flush over the hole, weave the strands through both the patch and the screening. The tighter the weave, the tighter the patch will be.

Plastic screening can be repaired by using plastic adhesive to attach a small piece of plastic mesh over the hole. If you have areas in the screening where the strands are not broken, but just pushed apart, use a sharp-pointed instrument to push them back into position. Once they are pushed back, apply a coat of shellac, varnish or clear nail polish to hold in position.

Q. I have a one-room apartment in what was the master bedroom of an old house. It's nice because there's a fireplace and a large, old-fashioned bath, but I'm having trouble arranging the furniture.

There's no way I can disguise my antique four-poster bed as a "sofa," but I do have room for a separate-looking seating area if only I knew how to arrange everything. Help, please. — O.R.

A. The trick is to create "activity areas," as they're called in the design trade. The photo we show here may help. It was taken in a designer show house room that sounds a lot like the one you're wrestling with.

Since this bed can't be "disguised as a sofa," either, it has been given a place of honor beside the fireplace, and the sofa set on the other wall designates that area as the "living room." A couple of other designer touches worth pointing out:

- The bedside screen serves not only to anchor the bed in its niche, but also to offer both privacy and a psychological boundary for the bed "room."

- A patterned rug ties the areas together visually.

- Matching swags add a note of formality befitting living space that's also used for entertaining (fabrics are from Laura Ashley).

Q. The doctor has told my friend that her baby is allergic to their wall-to-wall carpet.

He said this is not unusual, either, because of all the dust that gets trapped in carpets and because materials used to make carpets give off gases that can affect the air inside your house.

We don't want to take any chances. How can I find out more about this?

Whoever heard of killer carpets? What next? — T.M.D.

A. "Killer carpets" may be putting it a bit too strongly, but it is a fact that our growing concern about the environment — both indoors and out — is making us rethink a lot of things we used to take for granted, such as plywood (made with formaldehyde, a carcinogen), the coolants that go into refrigerators and, yes, the way carpets are made.

While many manufacturers are just beginning to pay heed to environmental issues, more are getting the message from consumers like you that green means good business.

The Carpet and Rug Institute

(CRI), an association of manufacturers based in California, last year established a "green tag" carpet testing and labeling program to determine the effects of various products on indoor air quality.

Standards are set by the institute itself and testing is voluntary, but so far they say more than 60 percent of the carpets made in the United States have undergone the process.

A final point: Testing evaluates only the carpet itself and does not include VOC (volatile organic compound) emissions for carpet adhesives, glues or padding.

Rose Bennett Gilbert is the co-author of "Manhattan Style" and associate editor of Country Decorating Ideas.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Little old teapot

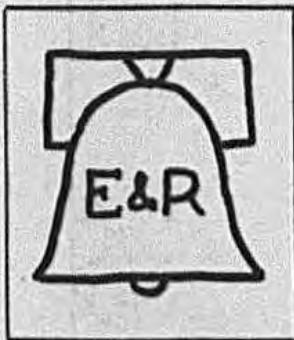

Q. Can you give me some idea of the value of a teapot found in my aunt's attic? It is yellow, the bow is green and there is some green and orange on the hat. On the bottom it is marked "Little Old Lady, Reg N 827655, Made in England."

A. The maker is unknown. Your teapot was made about 1938. The value would probably be $25 to $35.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a porcelain vase. It is also marked "Made in Germany."

Could you please tell me what its value is, and when it was made?

A. This mark was used by Ebeling & Reuss in Philadelphia, Pa., on items they imported from Europe and Japan.

It was made around the early 20th century and its value would be about $25 to $35.

Q. I have an old picture that I'm not sure just how old it is. It has been passed down and I've had it for 30 years.

The name of the picture is "In Disgrace," and signed by Bessie Pease Gutmann. It is a little girl standing with her nose in the corner and her little puppy is behind her.

I've seen other prints of this picture sell for $35, but I think this is the original.

Can you give me any information on it?

A. Your print is a copy of an original artwork that remains in the possession of the publisher.

Your print was made in the mid-20th century. Its value would probably be about $35 to $100.

Q. My husband and I have recently moved. In the move, we had some breakage of family china. We have been unsuccessful in finding someone who can give us a value on these items, or where we could possibly have them replaced.

I have enclosed pictures with descriptions of markings on the back. We would greatly appreciate any information you could provide for us of replacement costs or where we can replace them.

A. The cost of replacement china is very high. Send photos and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Replacements Ltd., P.O. Box 26029, Department VFDIC, Greensboro, NC 27420.

Q. I own a Royal Doulton figurine of a baby wrapped in a red shawl. It is 4 inches high and its title is "This Little Pig."

On the bottom is "Royal Doulton" and "HN 1973." I think it was purchased about 30 years ago on Cape Cod by a cousin of mine.

Is it of any value?

A. Your Royal Doulton figurine was introduced in 1936 and is still being made. Its value would probably be $75 to $85.

Q. I have a fruit bowl in a basket-weave design that belonged to my mother. It is 7 inches in diameter. It is marked with a gold crown, the name "Lefton China" and "Hand Painted."

I would appreciate your comments as to the value and vintage.

A. Lefton China imported novelty items from Europe and Japan. Your bowl was made in the early 20th century.

Its value would be about $35 to $45.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Is it possible for dogs to get Rocky Mountain spotted fever? If so, what are the signs and how is the disease treated? Is the disease only seen in the Rocky Mountains? We will be taking our dogs to the Rockies for vacation this summer.

A. Rocky Mountain spotted fever does occur in dogs. Untreated cases can result in severe blood vessel damage and death of the dog.

Despite its name and its original description as a disease of humans in the western United States, most cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in dogs have been reported from the southeastern United States, New York, Massachusetts and Ohio.

Dogs become infected with Rocky Mountain spotted fever by being bitten by a tick carrying the infective organism.

The organism then attacks the circulatory system of the dog. This results in swelling, hemorrhage, lowered blood pressure, shock and death.

Many infected dogs have fevers, depression, vomiting, diarrhea, coughing and nervous system signs. The duration of signs usually does not last more than two weeks.

Most cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever are seen during the spring and summer.

Veterinarians diagnose Rocky Mountain spotted fever by evaluating the history of the dog's being possibly exposed to the disease, observing the signs presented by the dog and by running diagnostic tests on blood samples obtained from the dog.

Treatment of dogs with Rocky Mountain spotted fever usually involves administration of appropriate antibiotics over an extended period of time.

In areas where the disease is present, dog owners should try to minimize exposure of their dogs to ticks and should routinely remove ticks from their dogs. Owners should be careful in removing ticks from their dogs so that they will not expose themselves to Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Rocky Mountain spotted fever is a serious disease of dogs and humans.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

One day when the weather was warm we decided to make our own ice cream from scratch. We had an old fashioned ice cream maker, the kind you had to crank by hand. We also had about twenty-five youngsters on our block who liked to eat ice cream.

So we mixed up some vanilla, cream, milk & eggs and put it into a can. Then we put salt around the outside of the bucket. We lined all the kids by size and gave them each a turn to crank the handle. By the time the biggest had his turn the ice cream was getting very thick and the handle harder to crank.

Soon we were all enjoying the ice cream we had made!

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

SSI recipient must report jury fees

By William M. Acosta

Q. I'm a Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipient who has just received a notice to serve as a possible juror.

If I'm chosen to serve, must I report the money I receive as compensation to Social Security? — L.T.

A. Yes. Jury fees are considered income and should be reported to Social Security.

Q. I recently scheduled an appointment for Social Security disability benefits, and was wondering what the maximum disability payment is this year. — B.E.

A. The maximum benefit payable today to a person with a disability is $1,324.

You can find out exactly how much your Social Security disability would be by calling Social Security's toll-free number, (800) 772-1213, or contacting your Social Security office and asking for an application for a "personal earnings and benefit estimate statement."

Q. Why does it take longer to process an application for Social Security disability benefits? — D.T.

A. Disability claims take longer to process because an individualized medical evaluation is needed. You may be able to speed up the process by bringing copies of your medical records with you when you apply, and the names, addresses and phone numbers of all doctors, hospitals and clinics that have treated you.

For more information, call Social Security's toll-free number, (800) 772-1213, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. business days.

Q. What are some of the most common changes that could affect a person's eligibility to Supplemental Security Income (SSI)? — L.R.

A. The following is a list of some of the most common changes that could affect someone's eligibility for SSI:

- A decrease in income or resources ("resources" are things you own or money you have in cash, savings, investments, etc.).
- The death of a spouse.
- A spouse enters a nursing home.
- A disabled child reaches age 18.

- A move to another state.
- The medical condition of someone who was previously denied disability benefits worsens.

Additionally, the SSI income and resources limits have increased over the years. This means people who were ineligible in the past because they had too much income or resources may now be eligible.
