Static Electricity

"Watch What Happens to Nancy," directs Ms. Debbie Large at Woodland School. Representing the Franklin Institute, Ms. Large presented a science show on static electricity to students at Woodland School. Nancy Rothfeld (pictured) and her classmates participated in hands-on activities during the demonstration of static electricity.

Reading About Handicapped

Mrs. Leone's first graders at Trinity Lutheran School have been reading about handicapped children who, even though they need help, are just like everyone else. Last week Matthew Hucke invited his special friend, Karen Carlin, who is handicapped herself, to teach the children how she drives a van even though she must use a wheelchair.

Karen showed the children how she uses a special beeper to open and close the doors of the van, and how a ramp comes down so she can easily get in. The van is equipped with a handle on the steering wheel that Karen uses as a brake and a car phone to help in case of emergencies.

Mrs. Leone's class enjoyed asking many questions of Karen and learned that all people are alike once you look past the outside.

Hicksville F.D. Answers Alarms

A smokey fire in a 3rd floor office at the Chemical Bank offices, 100 Duffy Ave. Brought out Hicksville fire fighters on May 28. The alarm was reported at 1:54 a.m. 75 Hicksville fire fighters with nine units responded under Chief Scanlon.

The fire was located, after a brief search, in a small 3rd floor office, and confined there, but smoke and water damage added to the damage. Mutual Aid Units were requested from Westbury, Jericho and Plainview. All employees evacuated without incident.

Fire fighters were on the scene for three hours. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

Basement Fire

A basement fire at 2 South Elm Street, Hicksville on June 9 caused moderate damage to the area of origin and the first floor. Hicksville fire fighters were notified at 12:21 a.m. The fire is under investigation, but is believed to have started in an appliance.

All occupants escaped the home without injury but one fire fighter injured his hand when the apparatus door slammed shut on it.

In other F.D. operations, a propane BBQ Leak caused problems for fire fighters at 10 Barry Drive when some neighbors refused to evacuate their homes. This caused a serious delay as more gas leaked out. Burn off operations by the Dept's. Haz-Mat Unit could not be started until the area was cleared. Propane gas is heavier than air and gathers in pockets. The gas ignites rapidly, often without warning, due to that fact evacuation of as many sources of ignition is important. The operation took over two hours to complete.

The Hicksville F.D. Rescue Squad provided mutual aide assistance with their ambulance to the Jericho F.D. on June 2, 4, & 7 for various incidents.

Baseball Card Collecting

Baseball card collecting for enjoyment and profit will be discussed at the Hicksville Public Library at 7:30 p.m. on Mon., June 21. Which sets to invest in, what to look for and the best time to buy are among the topics that will be discussed.

Kiwanis Club of Hicksville. Faculty members Katherine Stafford (English Dept.) and Catherine Trezza (Special Ed. Resource Room) were on hand to assist with the presentations.

Five Hicksville Kiwanis Officers were present to congratulate the students and meet their proud families. They were: Patty LeCompte (President), Donald Johnston (Pres.-Elect), Constance Clarke (Secretary), Edwin Draycott (Treasurer), and Ed Saueracker (Asst. Secretary).

Kiwanis is a community service organization that works closely with the youth of our community and is pleased to applaud their accomplishments.

To The Editor:

The Hicksville community was my second home for the past 33 years. My entire teaching career centered upon and was nourished within this school district and wonderful community.

During those same 33 years, I taught side-by-side with a man who will retire this month and the Hicksville community will not be the same without him; that man is Paul Vetrano.

When Paul Vetrano began his teaching career at Hicksville Junior High School in 1980 he brought to class an enthusiasm for his subject, an appreciation of his students as individuals, and a passion for fair play. Seven years later, he transferred to Hicksville High School. There his impressive background in European/World History quickly led to the establishment of his reputation as a leader of the tenth grade Social Studies program.

Paul has been a truly innovative and creative teacher. Space does not allow a complete listing here, but this is what one of his students wrote about him:

"Mr. Vetrano's class was a joy to attend. I looked forward to my class each day...I couldn't wait to see what special 'treat' he had for us today, whether it was an interesting video clip or a fascinating article. Mr. Vetrano was simply a wizard, enthraling his pupils with a magical weave of history."

But above all, Paul integrated the social studies with every-day life. During the Persian Gulf War, for instance, he initiated a school-wide letter-writing program between our students and the troops. And when a Hicksville family was suddenly confronted with serious financial burdens because its breadwinner had been called up from reserve status to serve the nation, Paul approached our faculty with a proposal to render financial assistance, and a very generous response resulted. Moreover, he founded Teens Against Drug Abuse, a Hicksville High School organization that motivates students to encourage one another to proudly and openly support the war on drugs.

Paul Vetrano is an outstanding teacher because he is an outstanding person, which is why his colleagues and his students - past and present - constantly seek his insights and advice. All who know him, quickly learn that his wisdom and his ability to counsel and inspire are not confined to curriculum or classroom.

He has never lost sight of the purpose of teaching, to be responsive to the whole person. Year after year, he has held each child in his hands as if he were nurturing a newly born sparrow - gently and with the expectation that, with his guidance, each would grow and reach that potential they were meant to develop. And each was encouraged to learn, not merely to be a successful student, but to be a person of worth and dignity.

Because Paul brought such worth and dignity to our profession, he enabled us all. It is for that, if nothing else, that his colleagues and this community should thank him and wish him well.

Coming July 1st, Dinosaurs!

A new permanent exhibit is coming to the museum on July 1. Thanks to a generous gift from Mark Newman, the museum now has a four-and-a-half-foot long femur (upper leg bone) more than likely from a creature known as Camarasaurus. It was a member of the group of dinosaurs known as Sauropods which also included Brachiosaurus and Apatosaurus. The bone, found in pieces on a ranch near Moab, Utah, was reconstructed by Mr. Newman. This 20 ton, 60 foot long dinosaur roamed the earth in Late Jurassic time, approximately 140 million years ago. It fed on the lush plant growth in an area that was probably the flood plain of a large river, and is now represented by the Morrison formation, extending from Montana to New Mexico, and from Colorado into Utah.

Our new exhibit will have the bone as the centerpiece. It will also include dinosaur tracks from Connecticut and New Jersey, and teeth from the ancestors of the dinosaurs - the Thecodonts. You will also get insights into what dinosaurs were, and when, where, and how they lived and died. So come to your museum this summer to see our latest addition on display.

AIDS Benefit June 19

Hollywood Director - Producer Robert Spera, donated his time to work with the students from the Martha Merideth School of Dance, in preparation for the upcoming AIDS benefit, Saturday, June 19, at Syosset High School at 7:30. Jennifer Glickman, Jill Futerman and Stephanie Glickman were learning what they see through the camera is what the audience sees too.

Hollywood Director - Producer, Robert Spera, showed Mara Reiner, Shannon Briggs, and Lindsey Rice how to improve their performance for the camera and for the audience. For tickets for the AIDS benefit, call 921-2912.

Hollywood Director - Producer, Robert Spera, along with his assistant Ann, taught Martha a new camera trick. Posing for the phantom audience were: Myra Rey, Matt Duffy, Robert Spera, Jamie Tedeschi, and Martha Merideth. Call for tickets for the AIDS benefit, 921-2912.

Story and Photos by Dale A. Simons

In preparation for the upcoming AIDS benefit, Martha Merideth wanted to expose the dance students to performing for the camera. Martha feels that serious dance students not only need good technical training to perform on stage, but they must be taught how to dance for the camera and the audience for greater appreciation of their art.

Martha sought the help of an experienced director - producer from Hollywood and New York to help with this project.

Robert Spera donated his time for a "Perform for the Camera Workshop." He was very excited to help in this much needed cause. Call for tickets - 921-2912.

The AIDS Benefit "Red Shoes" will be presented June 19 at Syosset High School at 7:30 p.m.

Students Join Albany Policy Forum

Two Jericho High School juniors interviewed New York State Senate Majority Leader Ralph Marino and got an insider's look at the State political process during the New York State Senate Student Policy Forum, held recently in Albany.

Sara Finmann and Darren Seifer, members of Jericho's Model Congress Club, spent much of the day in mock Senate committee and plenary sessions. Both students have attended previous model congresses sponsored by Princeton, Harvard, and Cornell Universities. They were accompanied at the Albany event by Jericho teacher Joyce Bisso, the club's advisor.

To prepare for the debates, the Jericho juniors spent hours researching the issues specific to their respective committees. Seifer, appointed to the committee on Cameras in the Courtroom, researched statutes and court rulings. "The committee was made up of delegates from all over the state, and the debate was stimulating," he said.

Sara Finmann's committee examined the financial and environmental impact of New York State's Beverage Container Law. In a presentation supported by statistics, she argued that beverage companies are profiting from the present law.

Both look forward to their senior year Model Congress. Sara, one of the club's presidents-elect, admitted, "It is really my favorite activity."

Anti-Smoking Campaign At Trinity

Trinity Lutheran school recently held an anti-smoking slogan contest in grades 6-8. One winner from each grade was selected and awarded a gift certificate by the P.T.F.A.

About 100 students participated and all entries will be mailed to a tobacco company to share the students' feelings about smoke and recent advertisements appealing to youngsters. The winning students' slogans were displayed in the school lobby, and are listed below:

Grade 6: Kathy Lane; "People may think the camel is cool, but all he is, is a great big fool!"
Grade 7: Laura McLaughlin; "If you smoke, you could die. So take my advice and just don't try!"

Grade 8: Christopher Scarberry; "Hack, wheeze, rasp, choke. Cigarette smoking is no joke!"

Currently Dean of Students at Hewlett High School in the Hewlett-Woodmere School District where he began his career in 1971, Mr. Edwards had been a junior high and high school social studies teacher prior to becoming an administrator. In addition to responsibilities for attendance, scheduling and grade reporting, Mr. Edwards has developed and implemented, with parents, students and staff, a credit-bearing program of community service. Mr. Edwards also initiated a program of Distinguished Alumni and Distinguished Service Awards and serves as chair of the district committee which coordinates the selection. He has served as Graduation Coordinator since 1984 and has been both Prom Coordinator and Senior Class Advisor.

An Eagle Scout, Mr. Edwards was elected to the Vigil Honor, Order of the Arrow, a Scouting Honor Society. He earned his B.A. in Sociology at SUNY Buffalo, His M.S. in Education and his Professional Diploma in Educational Administration from St. John's University.

The students, staff and community look forward to welcoming Dr. Hunderfund, Dr. Ciuffo and Mr. Edwards when they assume their new administrative positions on July 1.

CAREER OUTLOOK/HEALTH, EDUCATION

Healthy jobs in medicine, classroom

By Sharon Achatz

No one knows what the future holds, but one thing is for certain: People want to improve the quality of their lives — always have, always will.

As a result, fields that cater to caring for individuals offer steady and secure employment opportunities.

Two strong examples are the fields of health care and education. In fact, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that about one in every five new jobs created between now and the year 2000 will be in the fields of health care or education.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

Good health is essential to the good life, and there is no shortage of jobs dedicated to maintaining health, from medicine to dentistry and optometry.

Many health fields will become even stronger employers throughout the '90s due to the demographic fact that the number of people age 75 and over will continue to climb sharply — and it's an uncontested fact that as folks grow older, they require more health care services.

Not only will college-educated physicians, nurses and optometrists be in greater demand, but also high school graduates who have completed the vocational training to become medical lab techs or medical records technicians. Some positions such as live-in aide or admissions desk clerk may not require any formal education beyond high school.

Here are some healthy careers:

- Occupational therapists help mentally, physically or emotionally disabled individuals develop, recover or maintain daily living and work skills.

A bachelor's degree is required. Average salary: $24,000.

- Pharmacists dispense drugs and advise the public and physicians on the proper selection and use of medications.

A bachelor's degree in pharmacy is the minimum educational requirement; most have doctorates. Average salary: $37,400.

- Physical therapists work to improve mobility, relieve pain and prevent or limit permanent disability of patients suffering from injury or disease.

A bachelor's degree is required. Average salary: $27,000.

- Physician assistants perform essential but time-consuming tasks of patient care — such as taking medical histories or giving physical exams — under the guidance of a physician.

The profession generally requires two years of undergraduate education plus two years in an accredited PA education program.

Average salary: $28,800.

- Opticians fit eyeglasses and contact lenses after an optometrist has examined the eyes.

Educational requirements vary from state to state, but all require extensive on-the-job training or apprenticeships ranging from two to five years. Average salary: $25,000.

- Licensed practical nurses help care for the sick under the direction of physicians and registered nurses, with most providing bedside care.

Educational requirements include a high school diploma and completion of a state-approved practical nursing program, most of which last one year. Average salary: $17,500.

- Medical record technicians maintain permanent files for every patient treated by a physician or hospital.

Graduation from an accredited two-year associated degree program is required. Average salary: $17,200.

BEYOND THE THREE Rs

As for education, it historically has been held to be the key to a better life. Whether higher education toward a professional degree, vocational training or technical fine-tuning, knowledge is power and teaching, therefore, a powerful profession.

The demand for educational services will increase in the areas of elementary and secondary education primarily due to population growth, but the demand for vocational, technical and corporate teachers will increase also because of new technology — people need continual training to keep up with industry trends.

Descriptions of some of the hottest job prospects in health care and education follow, along with a listing of their educational requirements and average annual salary as reported in the "Occupational Outlook Handbook" (U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics).

How to select the best school

By Debra Lee Baldwin

You've aced the SAT and your GPA is glorious — more or less.

Now, what lucky college will you choose?

Right now, they're all eager to "sell" themselves to you. (And they will be, until the tables are turned, and you send in your application forms.)

SELECTING THE BEST

Attend college fairs in your area and ask questions of representatives of various schools. When you find four or five colleges that look promising, request current catalogs and bulletins.

You'll want to evaluate the quality and diversity of a college's academic programs; the cost, size and location (distance from home, urban or rural); its social atmosphere and any special programs or opportunities. Annually updated guidebooks, such as those published by Peterson's, will help you do this. You'll find them in libraries, bookstores and high school counseling offices.

Next, visit campuses. Call ahead to ask if reservations are required for guided tours. These usually are led by students, who are excellent sources of "inside" information. Check out the dormitories, and, if possible, arrange to stay overnight. Find out about living facilities, on and off campus.

Walk across campus, noting how well it is maintained. Visit the library and any academic department that interests you.

Be sure to check out the cafeteria, student union, bookstore and on-campus recreational facilities. Pressed for time or money? Make a video instead.

Many admissions offices provide videotapes — but independently financed productions are more likely to be objective (they show flaws and all). Ask your librarian or counselor for more information. Video technology also offers a way to learn at home.

According to Careers and Colleges magazine, "Students who take distance-learning courses watch class lectures on videotapes or through local broadcasts, participate in class discussions via electronic bulletin boards or interactive television, leave messages with their professors on voice mail and mail their assignments or deliver them via fax or modem."

"The equipment they use often can be borrowed from the college at which the program is based."

APPLICATION TIPS

"Apply to at least one school in each category: a sure thing, a good fit and a reach," advises "The College Admissions Game ... How to Play and Win," by Judith C. Bowen (College Information Services). Write due dates and deadlines on your master calendar and begin applying early — in the fall of your senior year.

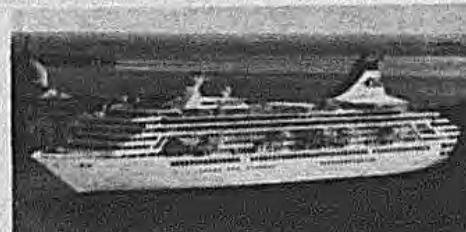

Complete the applications yourself, and take pains to do each properly.

Engineering, science and computing jobs

By Sharon Achatz

In this age of microchips and test tubes, high-tech careers hold some of the hottest job prospects for this decade — and beyond.

The spotlight generally falls on the scientists, engineers and technicians who develop new technology. But job growth also will occur in support positions such as salesmen, teachers, technical writers, machinists, data-entry clerks, test-tube washers and equipment installers.

While the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that four of the top five fastest-growing fields are in the computer industry, the technical tower of power extends strongly into the fields of science and engineering, as well.

JOBS THAT COMPUTE

As the computer revolution continues to make those machines more a part of our lives, employment opportunities will exponentially expand. Some jobs forecasted for great future demand include:

- Computer operators work with and maintain computer hardware and peripherals.

- Computer programmers design software programs that tell the computer what to do.

- Computer systems analysts provide advice on how a particular computer system can best meet the needs of a specific company.

In addition, as people start trading vast quantities of text and video with computers, companies will spring up to help transmit, coordinate and sift through all that information via networks. Information providers, such as on-line data bases, will grow as well.

COMPUTER NETWORKS

The computer world is gradually moving away from large, centralized mainframe and minicomputer systems toward clusters of more powerful desktop machines called local area networks.

Consequently, demand is skyrocketing for the hardware and software products that link groups of personal computers in an office — and the professionals that make such sophisticated networking work.

Those in the best position to take advantage of the networking boom are software engineers, but even people without a technical background can find opportunities. Companies that use local area networks often need a network administrator to coordinate usage among the many people who rely on its resources, for example, and workers are needed to handle mechanical tasks such as installing cables.

EMPLOYED ENGINEERS

Engineering has been one of the most consistently hot fields in the past decade and should continue as a strong job prospect for the future simply because engineering is about the future — working on new methods to keep people healthy, productive and living the good life.

Engineers can be found in and generally are in demand in every industry, but there are a few areas that seem focused for a '90s employment explosion. Among them are:

- Biomedical engineers apply engineering principles to solve medical and health-related problems.

- Chemical engineers investigate how chemicals can be used for research and manufacturing.

- Electrical engineers work on the design and production of electrical and electronic equipment.

- Environmental engineers work to protect resources, animals and people from exploitation and pollution.

- Industrial safety engineers help industry develop ways to cope with safety concerns such as asbestos, AIDS, computer glare and electric magnetic fields from power lines.

SCIENTIFIC SECURITY

The '90s focus on medical and environmental issues will also lead to an increased demand for scientists to research those areas. Scientists in demand will include:

- Biologists are called upon for discoveries and developments in a variety of medical fields, particularly cellular and gene therapy.

- Geologists will be in demand to assess soil and groundwater contamination, as well as aid in the never-ending search for petroleum and natural gas.

- Chemists work to develop new uses for chemicals, from the development of food additives and plastics to the prevention of pollution.

Freshman facts

By Debra Lee Baldwin

"Too many freshman make the mistake of playing the 'should' game," says Andy Rosenberg, a senior at the University of Vermont, in "College Life, A Down to Earth Guide" by Ellen Rosenberg (Penquin).

He continues, "It's easy to drive yourself crazy with expectations and trying too hard. Without even trying you will gain wisdom, understanding, experience and self-knowledge. Before you know it, you'll find yourself to be a seasoned college vet, smiling sympathetically and nostalgically at the freshmen who ask to point them to the chemistry building."

More advice, from "College Life":

- You don't have to be held back by anything you did or didn't do in the past. College is a fresh opportunity to challenge yourself in a new learning and social environment.

- Don't worry, it's normal to miss the security, comforts and friends of home — and to feel uncomfortable, at first, sharing a room with someone you hardly know. If you're homesick or are having trouble adjusting, consult your RA (resident assistant). RAs are trained to listen and help with a broad range of personal, roommate and college issues.

- Be very careful about getting run down physically. You can only push so much. Danger signs include falling asleep in class, having a lower energy level than usual and feeling tired much of the time.

- Monitor your food intake. With food available virtually all the time, you too may gain the notorious "freshman 15."

- Get involved. Review the variety of activities offered on your campus and start by picking one that seems like it might be fun and interesting to join.

- The work may seem overwhelming. Try to be as organized as you can. And in time, as you prove to yourself you really can handle the work, you'll feel much more confident.

Remember, pressure to achieve isn't all negative. It can be just the push some students need — and even thrive on — to reach levels of attainment they might not otherwise have attained.

Taking a break from F.D. carnival food ticket sales is this duo.

Graduation parties fill lots of calendars. Eileen Boschart of Lady of Mercy Academy (far end), parents, Bernard and Marie Boschart, family and friend, Anne Evers, enjoying dinner at the Davenport Printing Press Restaurant.

Cliff Doering and two Hicksville lovelies watching the endless Woodbury Rd. procession of fire departments here to share Hicksville F.D. Centennial.

No stranger to organizing big parades, Bicentennial parade chairman Steve Didier (right), Mrs. Ariene Didier and son Robert, and grandson, Christopher, on Broadway for F.D. parade.

A beautiful sight for sanitary engineers - water supply pros, is the cleaned/recharged water basin (sump) east of LILCO's headquarters. White sand expanse free of four feet of 40-year sludge, will return storm run-off water to the water-table, eventually.

Hicksville

Connie Mack St. Ignatius CYO

On Sunday, June 6, Hicksville Connie Mack played Levittown in a double header, at the Hicksville Middle School. The first game was well played and Levittown squeaked a 4-2 victory. The second game was highlighted by superior pitching by Anthony Santori. In the bottom of the 7th inning (Connie Mack plays 7 inning games) Anthony Santori also got the game winning hit. Hicksville won 3-2.

On Sunday, June 13, Hicksville played the North Shore A's. Shennen Maceo pitched an excellent complete game and Hicksville won the 1st game 3-2.

The second game was a real thriller. Anthony Ciaccio had a no hitter going all the way till 2 outs in the seventh inning, when an A's batter broke it up with a single to right field. Anthony got the next batter out on a fly ball. Anthony finished with 10 K's. Hitting stars for Hicksville were Danny Paul 2-4 and Anthony Giamondi 2-4. An outstanding double play was started by Greg Lattini. Shaun Hunte was excellent behind the plate and threw out a runner.

Three Finish BOCES Studies

Three students from Bethpage High School have successfully concluded their occupational education programs at BOCES Nassau Tech. They are among 625 youngsters from 43 Nassau County school districts who will be receiving Certificates of Completion at evening ceremonies on Wednesday, June 16.

The Bethpage students and their courses of study are Erik W. Kauhaus, Carpentry; Jaime McKeon, Plumbing and Heating; and Kristina B. Selhorn, Practical Nursing.

The Old Ball Parks Their Neighborhoods

The atmosphere of the old New York ballparks and their neighborhoods will come to life during a slide show at the Hicksville Public Library at 7:30 p.m. on Tues., June 22.

Fond memories of Ebbets Field, the Polo Grounds and beloved ballparks in each of the five boroughs will be evoked with humor, anecdotes and insights. How the ballparks reflected the social and economic make-ups of their neighborhoods and how the ballparks and their neighborhoods changed will be explored.

The presenter is Eliot Knispel, author and member of SABR Ball Parks Committee and the Save Tiger Stadium Foundation.

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig recently presented a trophy to Bethpage High School senior Isabel Mantilla, recipient of the school's 1983 Scholar-Athlete Award. The honor is bestowed upon students who excel in two or more varsity sports and achieve a high scholastic average. Isabel maintained a 92.7 average while excelling in soccer, softball and bowling.

Fish Hatchery Trip

The children observed numerous species of fish in the indoor aquariums, and had the opportunity to feed trout, and hold and pet turtles and frogs while learning about their habitats. How To Turn Hobby Into Career

Are you ready for a career change? Perhaps you're a victim of the economy, or just feeling unchallenged at your present job.

Come and meet Susan Scheck, the Friends of the Library's Notable Neighbor for the month of June, on Tuesday, June 29, 7:30 p.m., and learn how you can turn your part-time job or hobby into a second career. Ms. Scheck is the publisher/editor of the People Who Care newsletter. She will show you how to uncover your hidden employment potential through activities with which you are already familiar. In addition, the lecture will be followed by a workshop and question and answer period.

Creative thinking can give you a second chance at a more personally satisfying career!

"YOUR FREE CATALOG KNOCKED MY SOCKS OFF"

We get that sort of comment all the time. People are impressed that our free Consumer Information Catalog lists so many free and low-cost government booklets. There are more than 200 in all, containing a wealth of valuable information.

They tell you how to make money, how to save money and how to invest it wisely. They tell you about federal benefits, housing and educating your children. They fill you in on nutrition, health, jobs, cars, travel, and much, much more.

Our free Catalog will very likely impress you, too. But first you have to get it. Just send your name and address to:

To Meet

The Writer's Club will meet on Saturday, June 26, from 2-4 p.m., at the Hicksville Public Library, 169 Jerusalem Avenue. This will be the final meeting until September.

Dorothy P. Freda, fellow writer, and editor/publisher of the small press, The Pink Chameleon, will coordinate the meeting.

Come and join this informal, free gathering of writers, both seasoned and aspiring (you need not be published). Bring your work (fiction, non-fiction, poetry) and present it for constructive criticism, or simply come and listen and offer feedback. Learn or improve your writer's art through feedback. Many of our members, past and present, have gone from aspiring writers to prolific published authors. Learn about new markets and manuscript salability. Also, Mrs. Freda is presently considering submissions from subscribers to Issue No. 8 of The Pink Chameleon.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

Did you go to the Fire Dept. 100th Anniversary? I did each night and feel it was the largest with fireworks, carnival and parade. I have seen many, since a boy in Hicksville. The fireworks display was great and different, well worth seeing. Those displays you see on TV etc., are all like a rerun on TV for the third time. The carnival and food court was active. The only time a carnival or circus in town that left me a memory was seeing Hugo Zucchini, The Human Cannon Ball in the 20's on Eisemann Farm corner of Old Country Road and Newbridge now a shopping center. At the events I spoke to several men and ladies from Hicksville, OHIO Fire Dept. They told me they have a Jericho Rd. One of the Special Guests was Kevin Shea of F.D.N.Y.

Congratulations should go to all those that put many hours, weeks of planning, working at many of the hidden tasks you don't see being done to put on this event. Did you notice how they kept the food court area clean by another crew. I enjoyed the evening.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU THINK YOUR CHILD IS ON DRUGS.

Take a deep breath.

You're not a failure as a parent. You're not helpless. And you're not alone.

If you think you're a failure, consider this: There are many kids with neglectful parents who never use drugs. There are also children with seemingly model parents who do use drugs.

So the first thing to accept is that drugs, while indeed dangerous, are one more problem for youngsters to handle. And they'll do it better and faster if you're aware, involved, and don't stick your head in the sand.

THE AWARE PARENT IS THE GOOD PARENT.

Part of awareness and a major deterrent to experimentation is to talk to your kids about drugs.

But even with a lot of parental involvement, there are no guarantees. So it's important to know the symptoms of drug use and to take action if you see your youngster displaying them.

THE WARNING SIGNALS.

There are no symptoms that are absolutely reliable. But there are clues (see box).

Most of these symptoms tend to be gradual which is why parental awareness is so important.

But don't jump to conclusions.

Many of the warning signs for drug use are the same as those for depression or for the ups and downs of being a teenager. There's also the possibility it's a physical or emotional problem.

But whatever the problem, we're talking about a child who needs help. Right now.

The Telltale Signs

- Chronic eye redness, sore throat or dry cough.
- Chronic lying, especially about whereabouts.
- Wholesale changes in friends.
- Stealing.
- Deteriorating relationships with family members.
- Wild mood swings, hostility, or abusive behavior.
- Chronic fatigue, withdrawal, carelessness about personal grooming.
- Major changes in eating or sleeping patterns.
- Loss of interest in favorite activities, hobbies, sports.
- School problems - slipping grades, absenteeism.

START WITHIN THE FAMILY.

Nothing beats the power of love and family support. That has to start with a frank discussion.

Don't make it an attack. And don't try to talk with your child if he or she seems under the influence.

Wait for a calm moment and then explain that you're worried about certain behavior (be specific) and give your child every opportunity to explain. That means really listening, not doing all the talking.

At the same time, it's important to speak frankly about the possibility of drugs. And it's particularly important to talk about your values and why you're dead set against drugs.

If your youngster seems evasive or if his or her explanations are not convincing, you may want to consult your doctor to rule out illness and to ask for advice.

You may also want to have your child visit a mental health professional to see if there are emotional problems.

FURTHER ACTION MAY BE NECESSARY.

If your child seems non-responsive or belligerent, and you suspect drugs are involved, immediate action is vital.

First, you'll need an evaluation from a health professional skilled in diagnosing adolescents with alcohol or drug problems.

You may want to get involved with an intervention program to learn techniques that will help convince a drug user to accept help.

For the user, there are self-help, outpatient, day care, residency, and 24-hour hospitalization programs.

The right program depends entirely on the circumstances and the degree of drug involvement. Here, you'll need professional help to make an informed choice.

Another point: If a program is to succeed, the family needs to be part of it. This can mean personal or family counseling. It may also involve participating in a support group where you learn about co-dependency and how not to play into the problems that might prompt further drug use.

If you don't know about drug programs in your area, call your family doctor, local hospital or county mental health society or school counselor for a referral. You can also call the national helpline - 800-662-HELP - for advice and a referral.

WHATEVER YOU DO, DON'T GIVE UP.

That child who upsets you so much is the same little boy or girl who, only yesterday, gave you such joy. They're in way over their heads, and they never needed you quite as much as they need you now. No matter what they say.

For more information on how to talk with your kids about drugs, ask for a free copy of "A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call 1-800-624-0100.

Input Callers Give President Low Marks

Most callers to Input do not think that President Clinton handled the Lani Guinier appointment correctly in answer to this question: "Do you think President Clinton handled the Lani Guinier problem correctly?" Here are some of the answers:

SAME AS OTHER PROBLEMS

President Clinton did not handle the Lani Guinier problem correctly. Why should he have handled it any differently than the other problems he has faced? J.Q.P.

ANOTHER DAY

No. But at least this blunder didn't result in the deaths of dozens of innocent children. Just another day at the office of President Clinton. R.K.

SHOULD HAVE BACKED HER

President Clinton did not handle the Lani Guinier nomination correctly. He should have stood by the nomination, permitted her record and views to be heard in the course of which the American people would learn the history and meaning of the voting rights act and he should have fought for her confirmation. I have actually read the Guinier law review articles and find them to be extraordinarily positive in every way to find new ways in expanded political participation, minority rights and bi-racial coalitions around interest groupings. She emphasizes voluntary voter selection in one's own self interest rather than government imposed racial districts. Her exposition of the problems that racial, religious, logical, partisan, gender, ethnic minorities have in majority "wins all districts" deserves a serious hearing before the people. D.S.

NO CASTING VALUES

The problem is not completely with the candidates being picked by President Clinton and then dumped. The problem is that Clinton has no lasting set of values and therefore he is only interested in appointments that would help him gain popularity. I believe he did know what Guinier had written but when a number of commentators started blasting the choice, he ran for cover leaving her holding the bag. K.B.

COMEDY OF ERRORS

It is getting to be a comedy of errors. Apparently Clinton makes nominations and floats them as trial balloons. The problem with Lani Guinier is that her ideas would only be something that minorities would find good. But in doing what she advocates, giving more power to minorities, Clinton would lose the non-minority people who would turn away from him. He didn't want to take a chance so he "chickened out." G.F.

MAY GET BETTER

Clinton can benefit from these mistakes in a big way. He now looks so bad that if he does just some little thing right, the public will be so surprised that they will cheer him on. Clinton is not Presidential material but he is the only one we've got for four years. D.A.

MINORITY AND WOMEN

Clinton is playing minority and women's politics. He appoints only women to high posts probably because Hillary says so. If he continues to make selections along the women's and minority guidelines he is going to have plenty of trouble. It should be just as illegal for the President of the U.S. to make selections along race and gender quotas as it would be for the rest of the public. Clinton had better get new advisors because on his own and with Hillary they just do not know what they are doing. J.F.

GET BUSH BACK

I hate to keep saying this, but I voted for George Bush. I wasn't that satisfied with Bush until now. And now I see that the job is a difficult one and if we had Bush in we would be a lot nearer ending the recession than with this President who knows so little about the job. N.D.

MISTAKE CORRECTED

Clinton did the right thing in getting rid of Lani Guinier. It is true that he made a mistake in nominating her, but at least he was strong enough to admit his mistake before she took office and caused us trouble. F.S.

HAD TO DO IT

At the time it all happened, I couldn't help but feel a great deal of sympathy for Prof. Lani Guinier. The entire situation was incongruous with President Clinton engaging and practically in the same breath, discharging his appointee and, in fact, friend of long standing. Her education and experience backgrounds certainly qualified her for appointment to head up the Justice Department's Civil Rights responsibilities but if Clinton had actually read what Lani had written he wouldn't have nominated her in the first place. She is apparently a strong defender of civil rights policies and I suppose realizing the quagmire he had established with racism and probable serious and monumental problem, in my opinion the President had no alternative but to "bite the bullet" and reverse his position. P.G.S.

Driving Isn't Fun Any More

By Herbert Goldstone

I'm sorry to say this, but driving a car is not much fun any more. Furthermore, I'd bet a lot of people agree with me. And I speak as someone who has spent a good part of his adult life getting from one place to another, for business or pleasure, behind the wheel of a car and always enjoyed it.

It's a bit ironic when you think about it. Cars are so much better than they used to be. They're made much better, they're so much easier to handle and they have conveniences and safety features that the motoring public never dreamed about not too many years ago. Not only that, but most roads, at least the main roads, are expertly built, smooth to ride on and well lit at night.

Nevertheless, I've been driving a car for a lot of years but I can't remember it ever being as tense, as nerve racking, aggravating and all too often downright unpleasant as it is now.

One reason, of course, is the sheer volume of traffic. They refer sarcastically to the Long Island Expressway as the world's longest parking lot. Unfortunately, the LIE is not alone with that dubious distinction. All of Long Island has become one big end-to-end traffic jam.

Day or night, there is hardly a road anywhere in Nassau or Suffolk County, whether a major artery, a secondary road or just a community street of any length, that doesn't have that congested rush-hour look about it.

I'm not even mentioning constantly tied up Brooklyn and Queens, geographically part of Long Island. We have enough traffic problems out here in the suburbs.

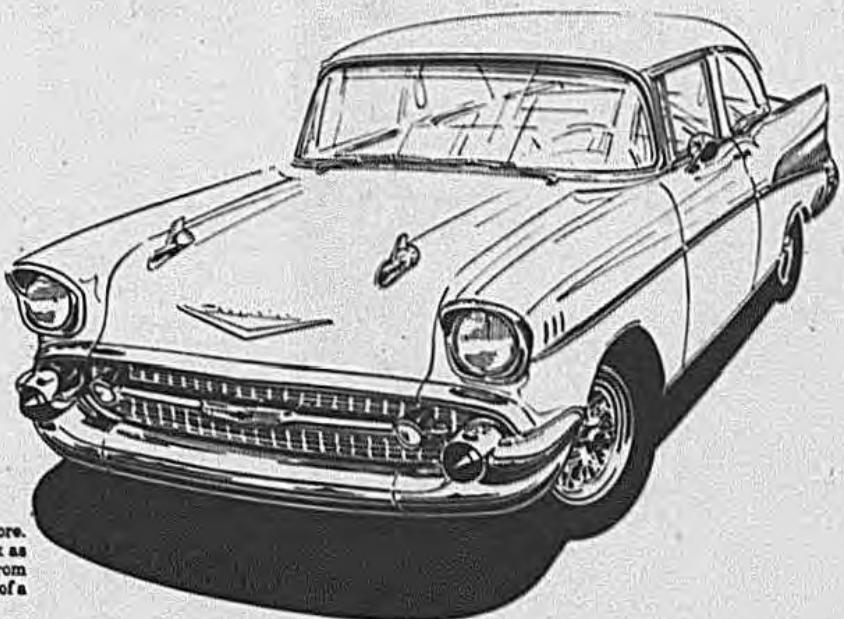

We used to talk about the family car. Now we have to talk about the family fleet of cars, with everybody in the household driving his or her own, and the traffic shows it. My garden apartment complex feeds into Jericho Turnpike and it's not uncommon to sit at the entrance for five minutes waiting for a safe opening to make a right or left turn into traffic.

But it's not so much the heavy traffic that bothers me. What really disturbs me is the matter of driving attitude. I have never seen drivers - not all, of course, but an awful lot of them - as nasty, aggressive and downright belligerent as they are these days, so impatient, so unwilling to give the other guy an inch, so ready to risk a bad or even fatal accident to beat a red light, so determined to pass every car on the road no matter how fast the others may be going or how risky it might be.

Try this when you drive. Pick a spot a good distance ahead that the car that whizzed past you will over the legal speed limit has just reached and count how many seconds it takes you to get to the same spot.

You will probably find that he or she, males have no monopoly on that sort of driving, broke the law, risked a smash up and frayed everyone's nerves to beat you by all of five or six seconds, if that much. Does it make any sense?

I took one of those safe driving courses given by the National Safety Council recently. I highly recommend them, by the way, not only for the insurance discount you get but for the valuable driving tips you get, and the one gripe that everybody shares is anger at the hazardous practice of tailgating, someone driving dangerously close behind you at high speed.

Take a look at what goes on in the left-hand speed lane of any parkway. You'll see a string of cars doing 65 or 70 miles an hour crowding each other only a few feet apart. They just ignore the obvious fact that if the car in front has to stop or even slow down in a hurry, the car in back is going to be in his trunk.

Speed limits are almost a joke. It's bad enough that nobody pays the slightest attention to the 55 MPH limit on the parkways, but they also ignore the 40 MPH limit on a lot of business or residential streets, even speeding past a school.

People who drive ordinary passenger cars are tough enough to deal with, but those driving those big vans that have cropped up in such large numbers lately really think they own the roads. One of these days, I have to take a look at the sales contract for those vans. I'm sure it must have a clause warning the owner that his warranty is void if there is anybody on the road ahead of him.

And don't you just love the guy who insists on passing you, no matter how fast you're going, then pulls over in front of you and slows down?

It's just the way a lot of drivers are, sad to say. You have to fight to maneuver into the right lane at a toll gate because almost nobody gives you room voluntarily. They won't slow down for even a split second to let you onto a parkway or expressway, but they'll scare the daylight out of you by pulling right in front of you, even passing on the right, to get onto a parkway. You can't win.

Personally, I don't consider it a flaw in my character if I let someone get ahead of me once in a while.

You've heard the comment: "I don't know what gets into him when he gets behind the wheel of a car."

I don't buy that. Your personality is your personality whether you're driving or doing anything else. The person who cuts you off on the road is probably the same person who cuts in front of you on the supermarket checkout line.

You are who you are, except that when you're driving you can seriously injure others, not just annoy them.

Q. Can you tell me the proper way to eat French fries? At a restaurant recently, I saw a young man spear them with his fork and nibble them in mid-air. I found this appalling.

A. The best way to eat French fries is to cut them with the side of a fork into bite-size pieces. You are right - food should never be eaten while dangled in the air.

Q. Recently my fiance and I ate in an expensive restaurant. The food was excellent and so was the service. However, our table was located quite near the door and we felt a terrible draft anytime someone entered or left the premises. We were both extremely annoyed and will certainly never return to that particular restaurant. What is your opinion?

A. You should have told the maître d' politely but firmly about the problem. He would certainly have shown you to another table if one was available. Even at this late date, you should consider sending a letter to the restaurant owner. I'm sure he wants to please his customers and will take your complaint very seriously. It would make good business sense for him to eliminate the draft!

Q. At the reception, do the bride and groom sit together at one table with their attendants?

How about the spouses and dates of the attendants — where do they sit?

And what happens to the two sets of parents?

A. You might have a "Bride's Table" and a "Parents' Table."

The bride and groom would be seated at the Bride's Table, obviously, but also the attendants and their spouses and dates.

At the Parents' Table, you might seat the clergymen, your grandparents, aunts and uncles, godparents and, if there's any room left, anyone very close to your parents.

If you have a very small wedding party, put everyone of both generations at one table.

Q. While visiting France last year my friend and I ate in an elegant restaurant. We noticed that forks and spoons were facing downward on the tablecloth. Do you know why this was done?

A. This is an old French custom which is gradually giving way to the English and American way of facing forks and spoons upward.

Q. Recently I came across a menu expression that was new to me. Can you explain what "A la burgignonne" means?

A. Translated from the French it would mean "in the Burgundy style" and it refers to any dish served with small onions, spices, bacon, mushrooms and, of course, Burgundy wine.

Q. I often eat with friends at a local restaurant known for its beautiful decor and excellent food. However, for some reason the waiters and waitresses seem to wear glum expressions on their faces. They are not actually rude, but their manner is somewhat curt. Would it be a good idea to say something to the owner?

A. I don't know how the owner will take your comments, but you would actually be doing him or her a favor. It would cost nothing to have the employees a little more gracious and it would most likely increase the restaurant's business. Food and decor are important, but so is pleasant service.

Q. We know of at least 80 people who are coming to our housewarming on a Sunday afternoon, and many are bringing little kids. We don't have any children, and we're very worried about what to do with those children who are coming. I wish I could have put out the invitations "Don't bring your kids."

A. On Sundays people like to be with their children, so if you had put that phrase on your invitations, you might not have had many guests! Hire a couple of baby sitters to organize games for the little ones - even to read them stories. The older ones should have balls to play with in the back yard.

Then there's always the tube. If you have a "TV room" complete with popcorn and sodas, the younger generation will stay put happily for a while and allow their parents to socialize in peace.

Guide to Good Dining

Vegetarian View

By Margaret Wing-Peterson

A healthy Chinese tradition

Chinese food is a durable American favorite, whatever the diner's own heritage. Past canned-chop-suey-frozen-egg-roll tastes have matured into more sophisticated preferences for the fresh and unfamiliar.

Many people consider the cuisine to be especially healthful. This reputation arises from several points: its reliance on vegetables, rice and soybean protein, the secondary role of animal foods, the longtime inclusion of certain mushrooms, herbs and other plantstuffs that may have some basis in medicinal fact.

Unfortunately, still too many Americans have Westernized their menu possibilities, creating a fat-trap every time they "do Chinese." Sweet-and-sour dishes, heavy-on-the-nuts dishes, fried rice, deep-fried egg rolls and the like could be acceptable items when served rarely, as festival foods, like the Chinese do. But too frequently, too-large portions of these fat-rich choices grace U.S. tables.

Take advantage of the best of Chinese: Go for the wide variety: fresh foods that are steamed and poached, in brothy soups or in light-on-the-oil stir-frys, tofu, seafood and lots of veggies, including the valuable leafy greens such as bok choy and broccoli.

Use low-salt broths and reduced-sodium sauces; experiment to find the minimum of oil you can use in stir-frying (aim toward no more than a teaspoon per serving). When planning a Chinese meal, consider the seafood contained in all the dishes and adjust recipes to allow 3 to 4 ounces total per person. Reduce the heat when stir-frying seafood and stir constantly, with little fat, it overcooks and toughens quickly.

Better choices include steamed rice, boiled or only pan-fried (soft) noodles, steamed or stir-fried seafood. Place your plate's emphasis on lots of plants and little fatty foods.

When dining out, ask questions about preparation: Are the vegetables deep-fried? Are the noodles boiled only or fried? Which items are steamed? What dishes don't have a lot of oil? Don't be afraid to ask the staff for relatively easy changes such as "please omit MSG" (monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer and sodium source), or "Can the chef use half the usual amount of soy sauce?"

Pocket sandwiches make super suppers

By Sharon Achatz

Sandwiches are fast supper fare, but they can become a bit boring. One way to enliven this supper staple is to replace slices of bread with pita.

Just slice these flat, round breads into half-circles, then gently open to form a pocket ready to stuff with a chef's filling of choice.

This change of pace doesn't much change the flavor of a sandwich since pitas, like bread, are rather bland, but the texture is definitely different, and there's something simply fun about a finger food that can neatly contain even the messiest fillings — from creamy salads to grilled meats.

For sandwich-making, pita bread should be warmed slightly in the microwave to make it pliable, and the filling should be cushioned by some greenery, such as a nest of shredded lettuce, alfalfa sprouts, lettuce leaves or watercress sprigs placed inside each bread round before spooning in the sandwich filling.

Frantic chefs can simply pick up a pail of crab or chicken salad from the deli on their way home from work to tuck in with their greens of choice. Those with a bit more time can test recipes for Greek Pork Pitas, Salmon Salad Pitas or Lentil Salad Pitas.

GREEK PORK PITAS

For filling:
1 pound boneless pork loin
4 tablespoons olive oil
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon mustard
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 teaspoon dried oregano
For dressing:
1 cucumber
1 cup plain yogurt
½ teaspoon minced garlic
½ teaspoon dried dill weed
For sandwiches:
1 red onion
2 pita bread rounds, cut in half
10 to 12 leaves fresh spinach
Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 15 minutes, plus 30 minutes to 8 hours of marinating time.

Cut pork into thin strips. Combine olive oil, lemon juice, mustard, garlic and oregano; pour over pork and allow to marinate minimum of 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, peel and chop cucumber, then stir together with yogurt, garlic and dill; cover and refrigerate. Thinly slice red onion and set aside.

Remove pork from marinade. Stir-fry in non-stick pan over medium heat 3 to 4 minutes.

Line pita pockets with spinach leaves and red onion slices. Fill pockets with pork. Top with cucumber dressing.

SALMON SALAD PITAS

For dressing:
¾ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons plain yogurt
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon dried mustard
½ teaspoon lemon juice
For filling:
1 (9-ounce) package frozen lima beans
3 zucchini
2 pears
1 (16-ounce) can salmon
For sandwiches:
12 spinach or lettuce leaves
2 to 3 pita bread rounds, cut in half
Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation time: 20 minutes. In small bowl, blend all dressing ingredients. Cover and refrigerate. Cook lima beans according to package directions. Meanwhile, slice zucchini and pears, drain and flake salmon. Drain lima beans; rinse with cold water.

In large bowl, combine lima beans, zucchini, pears and salmon.

Line pita pockets with spinach or lettuce leaves; fill pockets with salmon mixture. Top with honey dressing.

LENTIL SALAD PITAS

For filling:
1 red onion, finely chopped
1 celery stalk, diced
1 carrot, peeled and diced
1 (16-ounce) can lentils, drained
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
½ cup mozzarella cheese, cut into ¼-inch diced pieces
2 to 3 pita bread rounds, cut in half
12 spinach or lettuce leaves

Without frogs and toads, Earth's ecosystems would alter dramatically and drastically. There would also be a potential loss of drugs made from them.

Pollution, loss of habitat, great-tasting legs and other not fully understood phenomena have caused the number of frogs worldwide to plummet. Here are four U.S. victims:

KITCHEN KIDS

Making choices

By Rena Coyle

Giving your children healthy foods that they will eat is not easy. With our schedules as busy as they are, we have little time to spend cooking and planning our family meal.

Convenience wins at the sacrifice of health-conscious dinners, whether they are from fast-food restaurants or from the market.

Surprisingly, though, with some forethought you can make some of these changes for your family by buying foods good for them and keeping them in the cupboard.

When they reach for a snack, it comes from the choices already at home. You can slip in the consciousness by what foods you serve at dinner.

For example, instead of serving frozen french fries, make your family baked potatoes. Have frozen low-fat yogurt in the freezer instead of ice cream and keep a supply of English muffins and bagels on hand for breakfast instead of sweet rolls or doughnuts.

Snack time is a dangerous time dietwise in all our homes, so don't buy chocolate chip cookies, but instead keep graham crackers, fig bars, vanilla wafers or ladyfingers handy. And for the potato chip munchers, switch to pretzels. Remember, you're the gatekeeper, and you put the foods in the cupboard from which your kids can choose.

Getting your kids to try new foods can also be a problem. Most kids like the familiar and not the unusual. They will watch parents' and siblings' reactions to new foods before ever trying them for themselves.

One way that you can encourage your kids to try new and different foods is to introduce them through preparing a recipe. Bringing your kids into the kitchen gives the kids a chance to get familiar with the food first, before being presented with it on the battleground of the dinner table.

Another way to get your kids to try new and healthier foods is to introduce them through familiar recipes. Chicken is a very familiar food to kids, but adding fresh tomatoes and rosemary gives it a different twist.

When cooking this recipe for Rosemary Chicken with your preschoolers, remember that they don't have to do every single step to feel they are a part of the recipe. Let them stir, pour and measure the ingredients, but leave the stove and oven work to you.

Instead of serving this recipe with white rice, use brown rice. Brown rice has a natural nutty flavor and will add an entire new dimension — as well as nutrients — to a familiar dish.

Mealtimes are an ongoing struggle in any household with small children. But eating habits are developed young, and it is in our children's best interest to take the time to encourage good habits and be open to new foods. It isn't always easy, but the rewards are worth the effort.

BAKED ROSEMARY CHICKEN

2 medium onions
4 large tomatoes
1/4 cup whole-wheat flour
1 4-pound chicken, skinless and cut into serving pieces
1 tablespoon safflower oil
1/2 teaspoon dried minced garlic
1 teaspoons chopped fresh rosemary leaves
1 cup chicken broth
1 recipe Brown Rice Pilaf

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 30 minutes. Cooking time: 45 minutes.

Utensils: Cutting board, knife, pie dish, oven-proof skillet with cover, oven mitts, mixing spoon.

Preheat oven to 400 F.

Place onion on cutting board and carefully cut through center. Peel off skin and set it flat on cutting board. Slice it as thin as you can and set it aside. Continue cutting rest of onion this same way.

Put tomato on cutting board and cut it in half through core. Place half flat on board, trim off 1/4-inch from core and then cut rest into several slices. Cut across slices, making a large dice. Set aside and continue cutting remaining tomatoes in same fashion.

Put flour in pie dish and dredge chicken pieces. Set chicken pieces aside.

Pour oil in skillet on medium heat. Add onions and brown for about 5 minutes. Add garlic and rosemary and cook for 2 minutes.

Make single layer of chicken around skillet and cook for 5 minutes on each side. Add chicken broth and tomatoes. Raise heat to medium high and bring liquid to a boil. Turn off heat and cover skillet. Put oven mitts on and carefully place the skillet into the oven to bake for 30 minutes.

To serve: Spoon some rice on a serving plate and top with the chicken and sauce.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Desiree Vivea

Hello, Mr. Chips

Chocolate chip cookies, french fries, hot dogs — so maybe they're not so good for you. But, hey, America wouldn't be America without them.

Same with chips. It used to be we had one choice: regular potato chips. Now they're ridged for dips, barbecue-flavored, sour-cream-and-chive-flavored and ranch-flavored.

There may be more changes in store for us in the potato-chip department. Frito Lay and Monsanto have been working on developing a genetically engineered potato with less water and more starch. Why? It'll absorb less grease during deep frying, meaning less greasy french fries and potato chips.

We might even be seeing multi-colored potato chips before long. White rose and russet varieties are pristine white, but we now have purple potatoes, yellow Finnish and even an orange potato (resulting from the cross-breeding of plants brought in by U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers from the Andes mountains).

Orange and purple potato chips? Why not? Blue-corn tortilla chips have become popular in recent years. We now have about as many varieties of corn chips as potato chips: nacho-cheese flavored, lime-and-salt flavored, in strips, rounds or triangles.

Whatever kind of chip you favor, the summer months should give you lots of excuses to indulge your passion, with all the seasonal parties, picnics and backyard barbecues. But if you want to be a bathing beauty this summer, don't overdo it. Only about 30 potato chips will land you with about 300 calories and 20 grams of fat. (If you're on a 1,200-calorie-per-day diet, that's one-half of your total recommended fat intake for the entire day!) And, of course, potato chips are loaded with salt.

That's the bad news. Here's the good news: You can make your own lower-fat chips at home and control the amount of salt, too.

You can make your own microwave potato chips. Lightly brush 2 cups thin potato slices with vegetable oil and dust with paprika. Arrange in a single layer on a microwave-safe baking rack. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 12 to 15 minutes, turning and rotating halfway through cooking time, until potatoes are crisp. Sprinkle lightly with salt before serving.

To recrisp potato or corn chips, arrange in a single layer on a paper towel and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 45 seconds to 1 minute. Let stand a minute or so before serving.

CHIPS 'N' CHICKEN

2 cups crushed regular potato chips
1/4 cup butter OR margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon lemon pepper
Dash ground oregano
1 (3-pound) chicken, cut into serving pieces
Paprika
Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation time: 5 to 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 16 1/2 to 20 1/4 minutes, plus 5 minutes standing time.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Place crushed potato chips on large plate; set aside.

Place butter or margarine in 9-inch glass pie plate. Microwave 30 to 45 seconds, to melt. Sprinkle with salt, lemon pepper and oregano.

Add chicken pieces to seasoned butter, one at a time, turning to coat. Then dip each piece in crushed potato chips, turning again to coat.

Arrange chicken pieces in shallow 11x12-inch microwave-safe baking dish, with meatiest portions toward outer edges of dish. Sprinkle lightly with paprika.

Microwave 16 to 20 minutes, turning and rearranging twice, until meat near bone is no longer pink. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

MUCHO NACHO DIP

1/2 pound lean ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 (15-ounce) can pinto beans, with liquid
1 cup tomato salsa
1/2 cup shredded Jack or Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup sour cream
1/4 cup chopped black olives
1 green onion, chopped
4 to 6 ounces corn chips or tortilla strips
Yields 6 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 7 to 9 minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

Crumble beef into 9-inch glass pie plate. Add onion and garlic. Microwave at HIGH setting 3 to 4 minutes, or until beef is no longer pink, stirring twice. Drain off excess fat; break meat into small pieces with back of spoon.

Stir in beans and salsa. Microwave at HIGH setting 2 to 3 minutes.

Top mixture with shredded cheese. Microwave 2 minutes longer at MEDIUM-HIGH setting, or until dip is heated through and cheese melts and bubbles.

Garnish with sour cream, chopped olives and green onion. Serve hot with chips for dipping.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham,
Ph.D.

Can't wait to leave area

cessful just the same?

Is there any possibility that if you were to go through with surgery you may be dissatisfied with the results? Have you talked through the whole subject with a competent surgical professional in this field, maybe with one or both of your parents there?

Should you perhaps be giving serious thought to your dad's delay suggestion?

Maybe thinking about questions like these will be worthwhile for you.

By the way, how old are you? You didn't say. I don't want to stress an arbitrary age related to this matter because a person's concerns aren't necessarily related to age.

However, if you haven't yet reached your late teens, your father's suggestion may be a target for your serious consideration.

Of course, it also might be if you're already in your upper teens.

Dr. Abraham: Our local supermarket has a sign on the door that says they want to hire part-time carry-out, checkout, stocking and other workers.

That hits close to home for me because I'm in high school, want to go to college and money is a problem.

My parents will help me as much as they can, but it won't be much, I'm sure of that.

My problem is that I've never applied for a job, and need some advice from you. I'm kind of shy, so will that keep me from being hired? — Shy Guy

Shy Guy: The person who will interview you has probably also done so with many other teens, shy, outgoing and all in between.

Because they want several types of new employees, you may stand a good chance of getting a job by answering questions honestly (both orally and on an application form), being neat, knowing and telling the interviewer what you can do for them, being ready to state why you want a job and sharing with him or her what hours you are available to work.

If there is time, ask questions about job-related issues like wages, correct apparel and anything else you wonder about.

Try to recognize when the interview is over. Before leaving you might ask when you will hear about the possibility of being hired and state your willingness to provide any other information they might want. Don't forget to thank him or her for the time shared with you.

Good luck! Please let me know how the interview went.

Cooking Corner

Make ethnic cuisine the main course

By Tershia d'Elgin

Ethnic cuisine provides steady inspiration to many fine vegetarian cooks. Dishes originating in North Africa, the Middle East, South America and the Orient have been a colorful, tasty influence on meatless cooking in this country.

First, they are exotic. Ingredients that are less familiar to the traditional American palate create an instant curiosity. Also, people in other countries can prepare what we consider everyday ingredients in fresh, surprising ways. Consider the presence of Morocco's couscous ochred by tumeric, filo doughs and tabouleh from Greece and Israel and the abundant burritos and tacos in our vegetarian diets.

With all the Japanese, Thai food and stir-fries, the impact of the Far East seems pervasive, too. But we in the United States have just begun to tap the wealth of Oriental food heritage.

Cursory examination of Third World cuisine reflects healthier regimens. In some cases, to be sure, food is scarce and the people undernourished. But what they are eating is, in many cases, better for them than an American diet laced with additives and fat. Fewer preservatives, less fat and fewer calories characterize many of these far-flung confections.

One has only to read about studies of heart disease that include the Chinese to recognize the wisdom of cooking that relies heavily on grains and vegetables.

Further, de-emphasizing protein and eliminating meat corresponds to the new food pyramid touted by so many nutritionists. The broad base of the pyramid is composed of grains. Embracing ethnic fare, we realize this means not just rice and potatoes, but includes a far broader spectrum. We can explore all kinds of beans and legumes as well as grains like millet, cracked wheat, quinoa and amaranth.

Cooking from many other countries uses less butter and other saturated fats. The use of olive oil, canola oil, sesame oil and nut oils significantly lightens a cuisine. Some studies indicate that substituting lower saturated fats in cooking can influence metabolism as well as lower the risk of heart disease.

In India, an ancient system of health care called ayurvedic medicine goes so far as to designate three main body types and prescribe emphasis on different foods to maintain optimum weight and health. "Perfect Health" by Dr. Deepak Chopra (Harmony) shows how choosing whether to eat pungent foods or mild foods can determine how well you digest and metabolize your calories.

It's certainly just as possible to plump up on vegetarian cooking. On the other hand, use the precepts of meatless cooking that require more roughage and cooking that relies less on butter and other animal fat and more on lighter, low-saturated fats; you'll feel purer, more healthy and lighter.

The Cole Group's, California Culinary Academy's book "Elegant Low-Calorie Cooking" (available from the publisher, 4415 Sonoma Highway, Santa Rosa, CA 95409, 800-959-2717, or your local bookseller, $9.95) focuses specifically on weight control with sensible recommendations for modifying your diet, exercise and attitude.

It cautions against high-fat foods, sodium and sugar and provides easy-to-read charts on optimum weight and calorie burning. Many of the recipes are vegetarian.

With both vegetarianism and weight control, personal psychology is key. You must have a commitment to both meatlessness and good health. Nothing encourages this commitment like scrumptious food.

Impressions of vegetarian cooking that produces big, brown vats of lifeless grain have turned many potential vegetarians on their heel. However, in the last few years, there have been many imaginative health-conscious cookbooks with imaginative and attractive vegetarian recipes.

"The Greens Cook Book" by Deborah Madison (Bantam), "The Enchanted Broccoli Forest" by Molly Katzen (Ten Speed Press) and "Friendly Foods" by Brother Ron Pickarski, O.S.M. (Ten Speed Press) are great resources for meat-shy gourmets.

Relying on foreign solutions to the protein issue is an adventure. There are endless adaptations for tofu, nuts, cheeses, grains and legumes. And though often a labor-intensive exercise, food-combining along the lines of Francis Moore Lappe's classic "Diet for a Small Planet" provides plenty of protein. Combinations of corn, beans and some dairy sustain many communities south of our border.

How have vegetarian cooks in other parts of the world overcome the need for meat, not just as a source of nutrients, but for flavor? Creating "body" in different dishes is a matter of some experimentation. Sherry and other wines and vinegars add substance; different chilies and peppers, dried tomatoes, brewer's yeast, hijiki (Japanese seaweed), seeds, ginger and coconut milk are some options. Roasting ingredients like garlic or dried herbs before adding them imparts more flavor.

Some people feel that meals without meat are less satisfying because they seem less substantial. Knowledgeable vegetarian cooks overcome this problem by centering meals around heavier foods. For example, in the recipes from "Elegant Low-Calorie Cooking" that follow, you'll find the eggplant is a sturdy substitute for meat. The black beans are as rich and powerful as any beef chili.

Eggplant and zucchini are ideal for stuffing and baking. You can then serve them as entrees or side dishes.

This Mediterranean-style stuffed eggplant carries the flavors of tomato, garlic, olive oil and peppers. Steam, bake or blanch the eggplant before using so that the texture is as soft as the filling. This vegetable dish will keep two days in the refrigerator before baking if tightly covered with plastic wrap.

MEDITERRANEAN STUFFED EGGPLANT

2 medium-size eggplants
2 teaspoons olive oil, plus oil for greasing pan
1/4 cup dry sherry
1/2 cup chopped onion
3 to 4 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup coarsely chopped plum tomatoes
1 green onion (including greens), chopped
1/2 cup seeded and chopped bell pepper
1/2 cup black olives, chopped
1 teaspoon minced fresh basil
1/2 teaspoon oregano
Herbal salt substitute and freshly ground pepper, to taste
1/2 to 3/4 cup whole-wheat bread crumbs, plus finely ground whole-wheat bread crumbs, for topping
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Chopped fresh basil OR parsley, for garnish

Yields 4 servings.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Slice eggplants in half lengthwise. Place eggplant, cut side down, on an aluminum-foil-lined baking sheet. Brush outside of eggplant with olive oil. Bake until knife inserted into skin pierces easily (about 20 minutes), then remove from oven and let cool.

With sharp-edged spoon, scoop out insides of eggplants into bowl. Place eggplant shells in lightly greased baking dish, wedging them together so they stay upright.

In skillet, heat sherry and saute onion until onion is soft but not browned. Add garlic, tomatoes, green onion, bell pepper, olives, basil, oregano, salt substitute and pepper and saute for 5 minutes, stirring frequently.

Remove from heat and stir in bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese, adding enough bread crumbs to form a thick filling.

Stuff filling into eggplant shells and top with finely ground bread crumbs. Season, if desired, with salt substitute and pepper.

Bake stuffed eggplants until browned and bubbling (about 25 minutes). Serve hot, garnished with basil or parsley.

A favorite dish at Greens at Fort Mason restaurant in San Francisco, this Southwestern chili has been influenced by South American cuisine. Black beans are savory and hold their shape while cooking. In this recipe they are blended with cilantro, grated onion and low-calorie cheese for a meal in one dish.

BLACK BEAN CHILI WITH CILANTRO

1/4 cup dry sherry
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cups chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped carrot
1/2 cup seeded and chopped red bell pepper
4 cups cooked black beans (approximately 3 1/2 cups raw)
2 cups Vegetarian Stock (recipe follows) OR water
2 tablespoons minced garlic
1 cup chopped tomatoes
2 teaspoons ground cumin
4 teaspoons chili powder, or to taste
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/4 cup chopped cilantro
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons tomato paste
Yogurt, grated onion and grated low-calorie Monterey jack cheese, for garnish

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

In large, heavy pot, heat sherry and oil and saute onions until soft but not browned.

Add celery, carrot and bell pepper and saute 5 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add remaining ingredients except garnishes and bring to a boil. Lower heat and simmer for 45 minutes to 1 hour, covered. Chili should be thick with all water absorbed. Garnish with grated onion, cheese and a dollop of yogurt.

Asian flavors blended with the subtle texture of noodles create a spicy pasta salad. The pasta in this recipe can be found in most health-food or Japanese stores.

Szechwan Noodles tastes best when left to marinate for at least 45 minutes before serving, although it can be stored for up to 48 hours.

Add peanuts (a good source of protein) at the last minute so they hold their crunchy consistency.

SZECHWAN NOODLES

12 ounces cooked Japanese udon noodles
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
5 ounces sliced water chestnuts
2 cups sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons chopped peanuts
1/4 cup dark sesame oil
5 cloves garlic, minced, or more to taste
6 green onions (including green part), minced
1 to 2 teaspoons cayenne pepper, or to taste
1/2 cup low-sodium tamari OR soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon honey
Lettuce leaves, for lining bowl (optional)

Yields 8 servings.

Place pasta in bowl. Mix together remaining ingredients except lettuce and toss with pasta.

Let marinate for 45 minutes before serving.

Serve in lettuce-lined bowl, if desired.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

Many new organic insecticides could be on nursery and garden center shelves in several years.

Chinaberry (Melia Azedarach), a plant related to neem, grows widely in tropical areas. Research in the United States, China and Philippines has found leaf extracts from this plant inhibit growth of leafhoppers, corn earworms and plant-hoppers.

Other Chinese botanical insecticides show promise, too, in controlling root weevils and cucumber beetles.

Another product from pawpaw bark extract has worked well against cabbageworms, squash bugs, striped cucumber beetles and bean leaf beetles. The pawpaw tree (Asimina Triloba) is native to the Eastern areas of the United States.

Similar compounds have been found in the seeds of quanabana fruit, a Central American plant grown commercially for juice.

Many odiferous herbs show promise, too, particularly tansy as an insect repellent. A 10 percent solution of tansy applied weekly repels Colorado potato beetles and other pests of the cabbage family.

The active ingredients in tansy are camphor-like compounds. Levels may vary from plant to plant, so more research is needed to determine if climate or time of the year affect results.

Until then, you can make your own tansy repellent: Process in a blender (use an old one) 1 ounce fresh-cut tansy with 1½ cups water. Strain through a triple layer of cheesecloth, then spray on your plants.

Tansy seeds are available from Park Seed Co., Greenwood, SC 29674, and Burpee & Co., Warminster, PA 18974.

The main elements of good organic garden practices include:

- Use resistant varieties. Choose plants for their ability to fend off insects, pests and plant diseases.

- Rotate crops. Keep changing where, when and how you place your plants. Don't plant the same plant in the same place each year. Diversification creates places for helpful insects to live, so get as many different varieties of plants in your garden as you can. Rotating your beds each year stymies soil-borne insects and plant diseases.

- Be more tolerant of weeds. Take out unsightly ones and learn which weeds can hurt your plants, and remove them. Many weeds are actually helping your plants by attracting beneficial insects.

- Stop using pesticides. Get to know the good guys, become a student of insect types and habits and you'll start to understand the inner workings of a good organic gardening system.

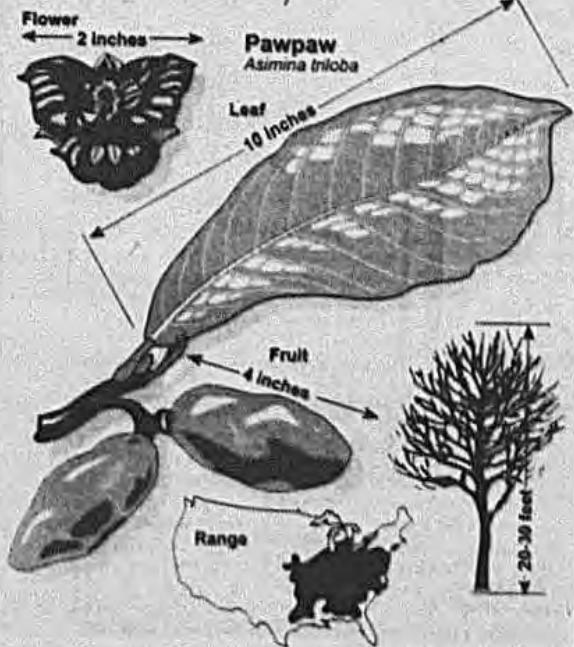

- Keep feeding the soil. Regular applications of compost for the steady process of transforming organic matter into rich humus.

With the recent media blitz over the dangers of pesticides on food, the nation's organic industry is booming. More and more, state government is becoming involved in organic labeling or certification programs.

GARDEN TIPS

The organic garden

- Plant pest- and disease-resistant varieties.
- Rotate crops.
- Learn which weeds are good for your garden.
- Feed soil regularly with compost.
- Many new organic insecticides are available: pawpaw tree bark extract, derivatives from quanabana fruit seeds and blended tansy.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham

Preventing child sexual abuse starts early

Q. Sexual abuse of kids has become such a big deal that parents should be informed about it. At least, that is what I think. But what can a parent do to keep it from happening, and what should a parent do if it does happen?

A. We live in a perfectly respectable neighborhood, but I read in the papers about parents, religious leaders, strangers and others having relationships of some sort or another even with little kids, so how can we be sure about our own?

I wish you'd tell me something about all this.

A. When it comes to such subjects I try to find a competent, professional source for accurate, practical information. On this one I located a recent, brief brochure produced by the American Academy of Pediatrics in consultation with the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

Its title is "Child Sexual Abuse: What It Is and How to Prevent It." It is available at no cost.

I'll share some of its contents and then tell you how you can get a copy. It provides basic information for parents clearly and simply under several headings. Here they are:

- What is child sexual abuse?
- Could my child be sexually abused? By whom?
- How would I know if my child is being sexually abused?
- If my child reveals sexual abuse to me, what should I do?
- Can I deal with sexual abuse in my family without contacting the authorities?
- What will happen to the child and to the offender if sexual abuse is reported?
- What can parents do to prevent sexual abuse?

As a sample of its coverage and style, here is the prevention plan that is suggested. It is set up on an age basis.

- Eighteen months old: Teach your child the proper names for body parts.
- Three to 5 years: Teach your child about "private parts" of the body and how to say "no" to sexual advances. Give straightforward answers about sex.

- Five to 8 years: Discuss safety away from home and the difference between "good touch" and "bad touch." Encourage your child to talk about scary experiences.

- Eight to 12 years: Stress personal safety. Start to discuss rules of sexual conduct that are accepted by the family.

- Thirteen to 18 years: Stress personal safety. Discuss rape, "date rape," sexually transmitted diseases and unintended pregnancy.

This brochure includes much additional information and a closing paragraph that states: "Your pediatrician understands the importance of communication between parents and their children."

"Your doctor also is trained to detect signs of child sexual abuse. Ask your pediatrician for advice on how to protect your children."

Parent-child communication is, of course, not limited to this issue. The foundation for understanding between generations has to begin in the earliest days and months in a child's life.

However, since some parents may delay this kind of linkage with their children, the old line of "better late than never" enters this picture.

To receive a free copy of this brochure you can write to "Child Sexual Abuse: What It Is and How to Prevent It," American Academy of Pediatrics, P.O. Box 927, Elk Grove Village, IL 60009-0927, and enclose a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope.

Fitness Forum

By Jack Williams

As evidence supporting the therapeutic potential of alcoholic beverages grows like a grapevine, it's not hard to imagine the physician of the future telling his patient something like:

"Take two drinks and call me in the morning."

Or, as cardiologist Dr. Arthur L. Klatsky facetiously suggests:

"Jog to the liquor store for some red wine to wash down your aspirin."

Klatsky, whose landmark study 18 years ago showed that moderate drinkers are less likely to have heart attacks, regularly recommends aspirin to patients because of its demonstrated ability to inhibit blood clotting.

Whether a nip now and then can impart the same protection remains to be seen.

But researchers at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston concluded that those who consume up to three alcoholic drinks daily are less apt to suffer from myocardial infarctions, a type of heart attack.

The study, which involved 630 people, indicated that the alcohol may keep the heart healthy by increasing the amount of good cholesterol in the bloodstream: high-density lipoprotein (HDL). Those with normal to high levels of HDL generally have reduced risk of heart disease.

The study reinforced research reported in February by University of California at Davis researcher John Kinsella that "regular consumption of moderate amounts of red wine may reduce the instance of sickness and death from coronary artery disease."

Kinsella, dean of the university's agricultural college, died May 2 of an apparent heart attack.

While the Boston study examined the effects of alcohol in general, the majority of studies linking moderate alcohol and health focus on red wine.

Terrence Leighton, a professor of biochemistry and molecular biology at University of California at Berkeley, makes a case for red wine on the basis of a substance he has discovered in the grape.

It packs a double wallop, he says, inhibiting the oxidation of fats that can lead to heart disease and reducing the risk of cancer. In the oxidation process, bloodstream fats build up on the walls of blood vessels and arteries.

The therapeutic substance Leighton found is quercetin, an antioxidant most plentiful in onions and red wine — especially red wine that undergoes a long fermentation process with the skins intact.

"A traditional production method," as Leighton calls it.

Leighton's findings are similar to those of Kinsella at UC Davis, where chemicals identified as "phenolic flavonoids" were shown to significantly reduce fat buildup.

The protective flavonoids, researchers say, also are found in grape juice and many fruits and vegetables.

Moderation is key

Meanwhile, scientists at Cornell University have found that wine that spends more time fermenting on the skins of white and red grapes accumulates more resveratrol, a compound that "may be the active ingredient in wines causing reduction of serum lipids (artery-clogging fats in the blood)."

Resveratrol, it turns out, is an ingredient in Japanese and Chinese folk medicine; and it also can be found in some grapes, grape juices and raisins, according to Cornell scientist Leroy Creasy.

So what does all this evidence mean to physicians?

"If a patient is a moderate drinker, I'll tell him there's no reason to give it up," says Klatsky.

"But it would be irresponsible to recommend alcohol to non-drinkers to reduce the risk of heart attack, even though the evidence is very compelling that light-to-moderate drinking does have a beneficial effect on the heart."

The effect, some research shows, seems to come from elevating heart-protective HDL cholesterol and making the blood less likely to clot by decreasing platelet aggregation.

Adds Klatsky: "Combining aspirin and alcohol might not be a bad one to study, but they may not be better together than they would when taken separately."

Klatsky, chief of the Division of Cardiology at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in Oakland, Calif., is one of many physicians and scientists who've found medicinal value in one or two drinks per day.

Among the most widely cited research is that of Eric Rimm, a research associate at Harvard University's School of Public Health.

His ongoing study of more than 50,000 men showed that those who drink one to one-and-a-half drinks a day decreased their risk of a heart attack by 32 percent.

The French Connection

One study, reported last June in the British medical journal Lancet, supported the idea of a "French paradox" suggested more than a year ago on an episode of CBS-TV's "60 Minutes."

The paradox is found in the fact that the French outlive Americans by about two and a half years and suffer 40 percent fewer heart attacks, despite a high rate of smoking and a diet high in fat. (The French, however, are twice as likely as Americans to die of liver disease or of cirrhosis of the liver.)

"Alcohol taken in moderation may be one of the most efficient drugs for protection from coronary artery disease," concluded researchers from France's INSERM, the French equivalent of the National Institutes of Health.

Around-the-world recipes for elegant game hens

Cornish game hens, once made popular by comedian Victor Borge, are not gamy and never saw Cornwall. They are, however, perfect pampered little birds that make a delightful candlelight supper for two, or, served in flocks, an easy, low-fat dinner for more.

The trick with these small fowl is to give them some flavor. Tender, juicy as they may be, these hens taste like nothing at all unless strenuous measures are taken.

They don't need to be wrapped in bacon like grouse or other game birds. They don't need to be braised like guinea fowl or pheasant. What they need is to be rolled, dipped, brushed with something that makes them come alive.

Then Cornish hens are an absolute delight, something every cook wants in his or her repertoire.

In the recipes below I've done hens every way but dull. One is faintly Hawaiian, another Mexican and the third hints of India. Take them on one at a time and see which flavor appeals to you and yours the most because flavor is what this exercise is all about.

HENS WITH CABBAGE

1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice concentrate
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
2 tablespoons mild soy sauce
1 tablespoon lime juice
2 1-pound Cornish game hens, halved, skin and fat removed
1/2 head cabbage, coarsely shredded
1 cup low-sodium chicken broth, defatted

Yields 4 servings of half a hen each.

Each serving has about 300 calories, 9 grams fat, 100 milligrams cholesterol and 120 milligrams sodium.

Combine first 4 ingredients and pour over hens in plastic bag. Marinate several hours or overnight for more flavor. Put hens with marinade in baking dish and roast uncovered in oven preheated to 400 F for about 20 minutes.

Lift hens and place cabbage underneath. Pour chicken broth over everything. Cover, lower heat to 350 F and bake for 30 minutes or until tender.

Serve in baking dish or with some cabbage under each serving.

INDIAN GAME HENS

2 large cloves garlic
1 small onion, quartered
1 1/4 inch slice fresh ginger
2 cups non-fat yogurt
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1/2 teaspoon cumin
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup lime or lemon juice
1/4 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon Hungarian paprika
4 1-pound Cornish game hens, halved, skinned and fat removed

Yields 8 servings of half a hen each.

Each serving has about 225 calories, 9 grams fat, 100 milligrams cholesterol and 120 milligrams sodium.

Put garlic, onion and ginger in bowl of food processor and puree. Add yogurt, spices, Worcestershire sauce, citrus juices and paprika and process just to blend.

Make small slit in breast and legs of hens with knife. Place hens in double plastic bag and pour yogurt mixture over them. Leave them in marinade in refrigerator for at least a few hours and overnight if possible.

When ready to cook, take birds out of marinade and drain. Discard marinade. Grill hens over charcoal or under broiler until brown (about 15 minutes on each side) and serve at once.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. We have a lovely wood deck that over the years has become stained and dingy. We would like to restore the original surface, which had a rich, warm coloring of natural wood. Do you have any recommendations on the best way to clean and preserve a wood deck?

A. Start by removing all furniture and plants from your deck and covering the surrounding vegetation. Sweep the surface thoroughly, and then hose down with the hard spray from a garden hose to remove surface dirt and loose debris.

If you have any buildup of dirt and grime between the boards, use a putty knife to dislodge this matter. If the boards are too narrow, use an old saw to run along the cracks to open a space. Your deck needs good air circulation between the boards and adequate water drainage.

Next, clean the deck with a solution of 1 cup trisodium phosphate (TSP, available at your local paint dealer) mixed with 1 gallon of warm water.

Scrub the deck with a broom or stiff brush, hose off and rinse surface several times with plain water. Wear rubber gloves and protective goggles.

If you have mildewed areas, apply a solution of 1 part water to 3 parts household bleach. Let set until it soaks into the wood and then rinse the surface with clear water.

There also are a number of commercial deck cleaners now available on the market and they are somewhat less harmful and easier to use than TSP. Commercial cleaners often contain added ingredients such as mildewcides, fungicides and bleaches.

Applications vary. Some require wetting the surface prior to application, and others are used on dry wood surfaces. It is important to follow manufacturer's directions carefully.

After cleaning, if you still have stains and markings, treat the deck with a mixture of 4 ounces oxalic acid crystals dissolved in 1 gallon of water (use a plastic container and pour acid into the water). Be sure to wear rubber gloves and wear old clothing and eye goggles.

Apply with a sponge or mop, and while solution is still wet, scrub into the deck with a brush or deck broom (do not use any wire brushes or steel wool). Hose off with plain water. This solution should not be applied in direct sunlight. It is best if applied on a cloudy day and left to set a few hours before hosing off.

Let the wood dry thoroughly. Now inspect your deck. Replace any broken or rotting boards, treating joists or beams with wood preservative before nailing and wherever new wood will contact supports. Refasten railings and stairs as needed. Sink any protruding nails. Use sandpaper to remove any markings, such as grade stamps left on wood.

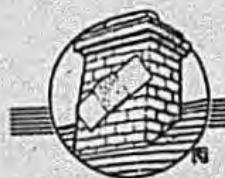

Once your deck is clean and looks great, you will need to apply a water repellent, preservative or stain to keep it that way, and protect the wood from absorbing water and damaging ultraviolet sun rays. You can use either a clear penetrating finish or an ultraviolet-resistant stain.

If the cleaned wood still has spotted and splotchy areas, a stain will help hide these blemishes and give your deck a more uniform finish. It is best to wait two to three days before applying the final finish to make sure the wood is thoroughly dry.

Both deck cleaners and protectants are available at hardware stores and home centers.

The cleaning methods described here, and most commercial cleaners, are recommended for a variety of woods most commonly used in deck construction, including redwood, cedar and treated pine.

A place for everything

Q. I know you write advice about decorating, not psychology, but maybe you can help. I'm going nuts because of my husband's daughter.

She's a terrible little slob — at least, about her room. Never mind that she spends hours in the shower and is meticulous about everything she wears, but her room is like a scrambled egg.

If there's anything I can do (besides nag all the time), I'd be grateful for suggestions. — No Name, Please

A You didn't say so, but it doesn't take a Ph.D. to figure out that your stepdaughter is in her early teens and discovering that there's more to life than being able to walk across her room!

Having raised two sons, I will pass on three bits of advice born of experience:

Wait. This, too, will pass.

Outsmart her. If you provide enough out-of-sight storage space, some of that clutter just might end up there.

That's the raison d'être for the wall-to-wall cabinets in the photo we show here.

They've been custom built by Starmark in a Masco Idea Showhouse ... and a good idea they are, indeed, since they offer a place for everything so everything can be put in its place (whether it is or not).

That third bit of advice? It's stolen from a child psychologist who says praise works better than nagging, so the next time you have to confront your stepdaughter's room, find something, anything, to compliment, such as:

"My, you keep such a neat ceiling!"

Q. I've just begun to buy furniture at auctions and thrift shops and realized I really don't know what I'm doing. Do you have any tips on how to appraise the quality of a piece of old furniture just by looking at it? — K.G.

A. I'll let an experienced auctiongoer answer this one.

Here's what certified appraiser and collector Claire Degnan of Maplewood, N.J., cites as key guides to wise buymanship:

• Beware of badly or obviously repaired pieces (like missing veneer work that will be expensive and difficult to replace).

• Avoid furniture with mismatched parts, such as a secretary made up of a different top and bottom (often done "in a frugal world," she says, to salvage the best parts).

• Make sure the hardware is correct for the piece, that is, don't accept reproduction Chippendale handles on an Empire buffet (which should have round glass, wood or brass handles).

• Steer clear of pieces with missing parts (you'll often find bedroom bureaus without their matching mirrors).

• Avoid pieces that have been dipped in chemical baths to strip the paint or finish. Dipping weakens the structure, Degnan cautions.

How can you tell? Look for traces of old paint in corners and carvings.

TIDY TRIUMPH — A wall of custom cabinets provides out-of-sight storage and encourages order in a preteen's room.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

Roseville vases

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a pair of vases that has been in our family approximately 60 years. The bottom of the vases reads "8-10 Roseville U.S.A."

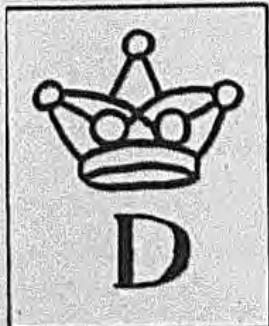

Could you please tell me if they are of any value?

A. Your Roseville vases were made in the mid-20th century. The pattern is Dahlrose, which was first made in 1924. The pair would probably sell for around $165 to $185.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a porcelain figurine of a young girl holding a kitten. It is 8 inches tall and apparently hand-painted.

Could you tell me who made it, and its worth?

A. This mark was used by the Duchov porcelain factory in Czechoslovakia. Your figurine was made in the third quarter of the 20th century. It would probably be worth $75 to $85.

Q. I inherited a china tea set from my grandmother that consists of six cups, saucers and dessert plates. Gold leaves are painted on the rims and a spray of pink flowers, possibly old-fashioned roses, against a green background. The mark is a shield with the word "Weimar" in it, and "Germany" beneath the shield.

Do you know anything about this set, and what its worth might be?

A. Your tea set was made by C&E Carstens Porcelain Factory, Blankenhain, Thuringia, Germany, in the mid-20th century. Its worth would be about $125 to $135.

Q. I have a Royal Doulton figurine of Lady Charmian. Could you tell me what its value is?

A. The Royal Doulton figurine was made in the mid-20th century. Lady Charmian wore either a green dress and red shawl or a red dress and green shawl.

Its value would be about $175 to $200.

Q. I have a collection of some 30 or more pieces of Irish Belleek.

Recently, I bought a cup and saucer at a flea market. The mark has the letter "L" inside a circle, and a palette at the top of the circle. The word "Belleek" is at the bottom of the mark.

I've read a little about American Belleek. Have you any insight about the age and value of this cup and saucer?

A. Your cup and saucer were made by the Lenox Co., Trenton, N.J., around 1905 to 1910. The value would probably be $65 to $75.

Q. I have a 12-gauge double-barrel Colt shotgun with 30-inch Damascus barrel in good condition.

The number is 6479, Patented Aug. 18, Sept. 22, 1882.

There is a picture of a colt on the stock, and the following information is on the barrel: "Colts of F.A. Mfg. Co. Hartford, Conn."

What would this gun be worth? Do you know of any collectors who would be interested?

A. Your Colt shotgun would be worth about $800 to $900. I don't have a list of buyers.

This shotgun should not be fired with modern loads.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our veterinarian recently recommended that we put our 15-year-old collie to sleep. The dog was nearly blind and could not control her bladder. She seemed to be miserable most of the time. We agreed with our veterinarian and had her put to sleep. We did not watch the procedure.

Is this procedure painful for the animal? Do most people have a funeral for their pets? We feel we were too attached to our dog and are grieving too much.

A. For most veterinarians, euthanasia or "putting an animal to sleep" is the most unpleasant task of their profession. Most veterinarians are in the profession because of their love of animals and their dedication to improve and prolong life. The death of animals, especially the decision to end life voluntarily, is contrary to all of their goals.

However, euthanasia often is necessary to end unwarranted pain and suffering. The word "euthanasia" is derived from the Greek language and means "easy death."

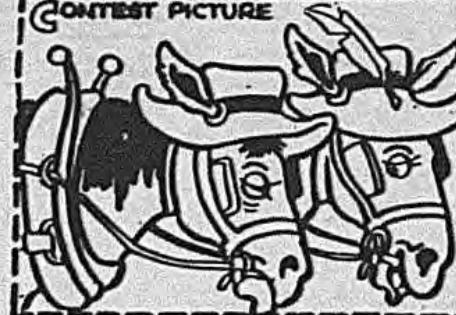

The American Veterinary Medical Association has issued guidelines detailing approved methods for performing euthanasia. The animal does not experience any pain if euthanasia is performed correctly. Most veterinarians use a special anesthetic solution to euthanize pets. An intravenous injection of the solution causes the pet to lose consciousness almost instantly.

Loss of a pet can cause great grief and stress for the entire family. Pet owners should feel free to discuss their feelings openly with their veterinarians. Together, the veterinarian and the owner can decide what is really best and most humane for the pet and how to cope with the loss of a loyal family member.

Many owners request that the veterinarian return the body following euthanasia to them so that a pet funeral can be participated in by the entire family.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last week two young friends of ours came over to our house and planted gardens of their own in our backyard. (They don't have a yard in the apartment they live in.) Each boy was allowed to choose two kinds of seeds at the store. One boy planted radishes and the other planted a flower called a cosmos. Both of them picked jack-o'-lanterns as their second kind of seed.

We go out every day to water the gardens and pull out the weeds. We hope that in a couple of weeks when the boys come to visit again there will be plants growing in the garden.

Do you have a garden? What are you growing?

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Signing up for Medicare

By William M. Acosta

Q. Whom do I call to get more information about Medicare? — D.N.

A. If you want to know how and when to sign up for Medicare, or how to change an address or replace a lost Medicare card, contact our toll-free telephone number, (800) 772-1213.

Q. What types of income do not count toward the earnings limit for Social Security benefits? — A.W.

A. The following types of income do not count toward the earnings limit for Social Security:

Investment income, interest, Social Security, veterans, or other government benefits, annuities, capital gains, gifts or inheritances, rental income (unless you are a real estate dealer, or you rent a farm to someone and take an active role in the production or the management of production of farm commodities).

Also, income from trust funds, sick pay after the sixth full month you last worked, or were paid after the employment ended, moving expenses, travel expenses and jury duty pay.

Q. How is the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program financed? — W.T.

A. Although this program is run by Social Security, the money to pay for SSI benefits does not come from Social Security taxes or Social Security trust funds.

SSI payments are financed by the general revenue funds of the U.S. Treasury.

Q. My husband and I have been married for 32 years. We have been legally separated for the last 15 years.

I am 63 years old and receive a small Social Security check. He is 60 years old.

Is there any way I can get spouse's benefits? — W.M.

A. Your husband must be age 62 and entitled to benefits before you could become entitled to spouse's benefits.
