Who Planted This Beautiful Garden

Who Planted This Beautiful Garden? queries Hicksville Public Schools Board of Education Trustee Nancy Callari. Accompanied by members of the Board of Education and Administration, Mrs. Callari stopped to admire the garden during a tour of the High School prior to the opening of school. The garden was planted and tended all summer by students in Mrs. Margaret Burns' Special Education class. The garden which also extends down the opposite side of the walkway and borders the patio, contains a bounty of vegetables in addition to the magnificent flowers.

Miss Teen Winner

More Graffiti

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard B. Symons (center) and Town Clerk Carl L. Marcellino (left) look on as the Deputy Commissioner of the Town's Dept. of Public Work's Hwy. Div., Robert Andrusz, explains the expensive process of removing unsightly graffiti from the tiles in the Town's parking garage in Hicksville. Combatting graffiti has been an ongoing concern for Symons and Marcellino, who have spearheaded a multifaceted program geared at keeping Oyster Bay clean and graffiti free.

New Location For Board Meetings

The Hicksville Public School District Board of Education will hold all regular meetings of the Board in the Middle School Auditorium. The next regular meeting will be held on September 22 at 8 p.m. All Board of Education committee Meetings and Work Meetings will continue to be held in the Board Room at the Administration Building.

The Hicksville Public School Board of Education welcomes and encourages residents, staff members and other interested persons to attend its meetings. The Board meets on Wednesday evenings on the dates indicated on the District calendar unless public notice is given. Announcements of meetings of the Board of Education are regularly posted at all of the District schools, the Administration Building and the Hicksville Public Library.

Hicksville H.S. Marching Band Show

Hicksville Public Schools and the Hicksville Band Parents' Association is pleased to host their 5th annual Marching Band Show at Hicksville High School. Starting at 1 p.m. on Sunday, September 26, McCormack Field will come alive with the sounds and pageantry of many of the area's finest high school marching bands. Featured in this year's competition will be Brentwood, Huntington, Levittown, Lindenhurst, Mineola, Sachem, Walt Whitman and Arlington High School from Poughkeepsie, New York. An exhibition by the Hicksville High School Marching Band will conclude the afternoon of great entertainment. Come witness the fanfare, competition and musical drama as the bands compete for top honors. Bring the entire family and sample the sausage and pepper heroes, grilled souvlaki, hamburgers, hot dogs, and ice cream treats. Rain or shine, this show promises to be a day to remember!

Tickets are $4 per adult and $2 for students. Admission is free for all senior citizens and children under 10. All seats are general admission. Handicapped parking and seating is available. For more information, please call 733-6602.

Local Students Named Merit Semi-Finalists

The names of Semifinalists in the 1994 National Merit Scholarship Program were announced by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). These academically talented secondary school seniors have an opportunity to continue in the competition for more than 6,500 Merit Scholarships, worth over $25 million, to be awarded next spring. The nationwide Semifinalist pool includes about half of one percent of each state's high school graduating class.

To qualify as a Finalist, a Semifinalist must fulfill additional requirements. The Semifinalist and an official of the high school must complete a detailed scholarship application that provides information about the student's educational interests and goals, as well as participation and leadership in school and community activities. The student must have an outstanding academic record, be endorsed and recommended by the high school principal, and submit SAT scores that confirm his or her earlier PSAT/NMSQT performance. About 90 percent of the Semifinalists are expected to become Finalists, and all Merit Scholars will be chosen from this exceptionally able group.

Winners of three types of Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1994 will be selected on the basis of professional evaluations of Finalists' abilities, accomplishments, and personal attributes considered important for success in rigorous college studies - without regard to gender, race, ethnic origin or religious preference. Every Finalist will be considered for one of 2,000 National Merit $2000 Scholarships to be allocated on a state representative basis. NMSC's own funds will underwrite 80 percent of these awards, and grants from corporate organizations will sponsor the remaining 20 percent of the "National" scholarships.

Corporations, foundations, and other business organizations also will support some 1,200 Merit Scholarships for Finalists who meet a sponsor's preferential criteria. Most corporate-sponsored awards will be provided for children of employees of the grantor organization, but some will be offered for residents of communities a company serves, or Finalists whose career goals a sponsor wishes to encourage.

More than 3,300 Merit Scholarships will be financed by colleges and universities. Winners of college-sponsored Merit Scholarships will be chosen from among Finalists who will attend the institutions financing the awards.

School District Receives $50,000 Grant

Salvatore Mugavero, Supt. of the Hicksville Public Schools, has announced that the district will receive a special legislative grant in the amount of $50,000.

The grant was obtained through the efforts of New York State Senator Ralph Marino. In his letter to the school district, Senator Marino commented "To begin with, the number of requests for assistance continues to outpace the state funding available for them. As a result, the selection process has become intensely competitive."

The district plans to use the funds for the Middle School library.

Teachers Forever Says Superintendent

Hicksville Public Schools Board of Education President Helen Lafferty offers congratulations to Teacher Orientation Day keynote speaker Dr. Gurney Chambers for his motivating speech. Looking on is Salvatore Mugavero, Supt. of Schools (left) and Dr. Daniel Kremin, Asst. Supt. for Personnel (right).

"You are the Excellence in Instruction" Supt. Salvatore Mugavero counseled his audience at the annual Teacher Orientation Day conference. As teachers in the Hicksville Public School District returned to the classroom on Tues., Sept. 7 the administration underscored the significance of their role in the lives of the children in Hicksville. In welcoming the teachers, Mr. Mugavero announced the theme for the 1993-94 school year is Excellence in Instruction. He encouraged teachers to find new ways to motivate students and emphasized that teachers must vary techniques and excite students to learn. "I know you will respond to the challenge and we will see success," Mr. Mugavero told the audience of teachers.

"You are a permanent, powerful force in the lives of your students" advised Dr. Gurney Chambers, key note speaker for the morning conference. He went on to say to the teachers, "If we are going to achieve excellence you must know that you are appreciated and you must believe in your efficacy," Dr. Chambers through personal anecdotes, emphasized the qualities and beliefs that he feels teachers should possess to ensure success. He reminded teachers that "We must be the right kind of person; we must want to be there and we must like children." He believes that empathy is a quality essential to everyone in education; that teachers must strive to build positive relationships with all of their students and that teachers should have high expectations and must believe that all children have a right to learn. The speaker, Dean of Education at Western Carolina University in North Carolina, emphasized to the teachers that they are appreciated for their hard work and dedication acknowledging that there "is no profession more physically, psychologically, socially and emotionally more demanding if you do it right." Reflecting on the teachers he had throughout his own school years in rural North Carolina, Dr. Gurney reminds his audience that although we often never forget some of our teachers and the impact they had on our lives we frequently forget to let them know. In conclusion, emphasizing his theme Teachers Are Forever, Dr. Chambers told the teachers that they can give children two gifts that will never wear out: "Help them to acquire the appropriate course content and help them to acquire the self confidence that one must have if he or she is going to put that knowledge to use."

The teachers spent the remainder of the day at Department and building meetings learning about plans to implement the theme "Excellence in Instruction" and preparing for the opening of school.

In Service

Navy Fireman Michael C. Bashwiler, son of Warren C. and Lelia Bashwiler of Arch La., Hicksville, recently completed basic training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

During the cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Bethpage Bd. Of Ed. Personnel Actions

In personnel actions, the Board accepted the resignation/retirement of Guido Agostini and Mary Forbes, and accepted the resignations of Dante LaPlaca, John Egan and Patricia Cudney. Kim Kegin and Kerri Kaminski were each appointed to a .5 Kindergarten teacher position, and Diane Weiner was appointed to a .1 position in Home & Careers. The Board approved the probationary appointment of Nancy Shivers as an elementary school teacher, and appointed Karen Miller to a .8 position in the area of art. Donna Geric and Caroline Lavelle were appointed as regular substitutes.

In further personnel actions, Joan Cholodenko was appointed as a clerk, hourly substitute and Mildred Bortnock was appointed as a typist clerk, hourly substitute. Christopher Schneider, cleaner, was reinstated. Various extracurricular appointments were also approved. Bus driver Mario Caputo was granted an unpaid leave of absence, and salary increases were granted to hourly monitors and bus monitors.

The Board then approved an extension of the food service management contract for the 1993-94 school year with Statewide Industrial Catering. Assist. Supt. for Business, Donald Ranieri, gave a report on the lunch program and stated that it had gone very well under Statewide up to this point. The Board also approved a therapy contract, as well as tuition contracts for special education students. The Board also awarded a bid for special transportation.

Following the completion of the agenda, Mr. Nydick made the following announcements:

- The school buildings and grounds have been inspected and were ready for the opening of school on Sept. 8.
- A staff conference and orientation was held on Sept. 7.
- The school calendar has been mailed out, and the transportation newsletter was sent out on Sept. 1.
- The Board has asked the Supt. to look into alternate means of providing sports physicals. Alternatives are being explored.

Mr. Nydick also announced that the District is initiating a substantial computer program for all District students. The program will be implemented during the first half of the school year, with the goal being that all Bethpage students will graduate with computer literacy.

Board members Sandy Watson noted that she wanted the minutes of the Special Meeting of July 13 to reflect that she wished to vote "no" on the salary increase for Alan Schaub, if this motion were separate from the other increases.

Diane Swanson, Co-President of Central Blvd. PTA, asked the Superintendent what the class size limits were for the elementary grades. The Superintendent replied that the maximum class sizes are as follows: Kindergarten: 22 students; 1st through 3rd grade; 24 students; 4th & 5th grades; 28 students. These limits will not be changed this school year.

The next monthly Board meeting will be held on Sept. 28 at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater.

Central General Ambulatory Pavilion

Central General Hospital in Plainview today unveiled its new and unique Ambulatory Pavilion. County Executive Thomas Gulotta, Hospital Administrator Robert Bornstein and other dignitaries were on hand for the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Bornstein said the new facility includes state of the art facilities for same day surgical procedures, fully equipped rooms for the latest in endoscopic and pain management procedures; comfortable recovery rooms; separate entrance and waiting areas and the back-up of a full service, modern community hospital.

Included in the extensive renovations will be Nassau County's first of its kind Chest Pain Emergency Room. This is a specialized, separate section of the Emergency Dept. dedicated solely to the evaluation and treatment of chest pain. The purpose is to encourage people to recognize chest pain or chest discomfort as an early warning sign of a possible heart attack and seek treatment as soon as possible.

Bornstein said, "The Ambulatory Pavilion concept is relatively new. It's goal is to help patients avoid lengthy hospital stays while providing the latest technology for same day surgical and endoscopic procedures. While our new pavilion provides a separate entrance, our patients can be assured of having access to all of the services provided by a fully equipped hospital, should the need arise."

In addition, Central General is planning to provide transportation to and from the Ambulatory Pavilion for patients within a certain radius. Bornstein said the nursing staff is specially trained to meet the needs of the ambulatory care and endoscopic patient and the Unit has been equipped with new state-of-the-art video endoscopy equipment.

Jottings From Yesteryear

By Bill Clark

Reading a 1904 Brooklyn Daily Times paper - an item about the Bank of Hicksville: the first bank in Hicksville opened on April 23, 1903. A year later the assets were in excess of two hundred thousand dollars. Nowadays if the Lotto is not higher than that, some won't bother to play.

I remember learning to drive years ago using hand signals for turning. It was cold in winter opening the window to signal. Then later some cars had that post between the side vents and the main window, and then you would forget and bruise your wrist hitting it to signal. Today, waiting on Rave St. for the red light to change on Broadway, I noticed across Broadway that motorists leaving the Motor Vehicle parking lot, having just got their license or renewal, etc., failed to use their present day easy to use signals. You have to guess, are they going left or right, or maybe straight ahead.

Excelsior, do you recall what it was used for? Today you pack with shell or peanut shapes of plastic or the sheets of bubbles. The excelsior, thin long strips of wood shavings, has gone into the past. Yet it was safe to the environment but messy to clean up after.

The cool snap comes as every year. It is just a reminder for you to do those jobs you put off but now have a spell to do them in time.

Vacation over in late 1920's, heading home, with kids, luggage, no car trunk, driver's door blocked - 1927 Chevrolet - disc wheels, speed limits 25-30 mph and no super highways.

Same years after vacation trip, school is open. High School with canon on lawn and the north side addition not added yet. Trees small.

'Artists' Concert Scheduled

On Sunday, October 3, at 2 p.m., the Town of Oyster Bay "Distinguished Artists Concerts" series will present pianist Lawrence Schubert at the Locust Valley Library, according to Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig.

"Lawrence Schubert, a lifelong resident of Long Island, has performed successfully throughout the United States and Europe," Councilman Kunzig said. "His unique talent and creativity are enhanced by his diversity as both a musician and educator."

Councilman Kunzig added that Mr. Schubert is a much sought after private teacher as well as an adjunct professor at Molloy College. On occasion, he will enhance a performance with background information about the evening's composer in an effort to enrich the audience's experience.

Councilman Kunzig noted that the "Distinguished Artists Concerts" series is being sponsored by the Cultural and Performing Arts (CAPA) Division of the Town's Department of Community and Youth Services. All concerts are being offered free to residents of the Town of Oyster Bay.

Quilting Bee

On Saturday, September 18, Trinity Lutheran Church, 40 West Nicholas Street, Hicksville, will be hosting a Quilting Bee from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The quilts will be used in missionary countries as sunshades, windscreens, blankets and garments. Even if you can't quilt, come give a hand! Helpers are needed to complete 25 quilts. A fingertip lunch and beverage will be provided.

Color Bus Yellow, Color Us Safe

Prior to the opening of school, Hicksville Public Schools kindergarteners receiving bus transportation to school attended a special Bus Safety Program at each of the district elementary schools. During the program coordinated by district Transportation Supervisor Doris Carter, the youngsters learned all about bus safety. Viewed a Winnie the Pooh video on bus safety, took a brief trip a "big yellow school bus" and received a Bus Safety Coloring Book and box of crayons. The coloring book, a big hit with the kindergarteners, was the creation of four Hicksville High School students Laura Mango, Elaine Chow, Priscilla Gonzalez and Mark Haddad. The recent graduates wrote and illustrated the coloring book which featured "Smarty Marty" and friends.

Buckled Up For Safety! Doris Carter, Supervisor of Transportation helps Old Country Road Kindergartener Lindsey Shapiro buckle her seat belt, while classmate Elissa Cornelius sits ready waiting and anxious for the bus ride to begin. The children recently participated in the bus safety orientation program at Old Country Road School. The district conducted the program at each of the Elementary schools prior to the opening of school.

Yevoli Wants Lobbyist Regis.

Oyster Bay Supervisor Lewis J. Yevoli, a member of the Nassau County Board of Supervisors, announced today that he is introducing a local law in the County of Nassau to regulate lobbyists.

Supervisor Yevoli pointed out that Nassau County is the only major governmental entity not to have this type of local law, whereby lobbyists who appear before any county government official are required to be registered. Presently, New York City, Suffolk County and the State of New York all have laws regulating and registering lobbyists.

"The people of Nassau have a right to know who is coming before their elected officials to lobby for or against legislation that comes to the Board of Supervisors," Yevoli stated. "my law will not only allow the people of Nassau to know who lobby's in Nassau and for how much money, but also it will be self-funded because the proposal I am submitting carries with it a registration fee so that the Clerk of the Board of Supervisor's does not incur any additional costs in maintaining the registration of all those special interests who come before the Board of Supervisors." Yevoli continued.

Supervisor Yevoli went on to point out that this law will not effect private citizens, newspapers, attorneys representing public corporations, but will only effect those individuals who are paid in excess of $5,000 a year to come before the Board of Supervisors and lobby for the passage or defeat of legislation that is being voted on. Supervisor Yevoli's proposal is modeled after Suffolk County's 1988 local law which regulates lobbyists within Suffolk County. In Suffolk, lobbyists who come before the County Legislature must register with the Clerk of that body.

Supervisor Yevoli concluded, "Registering lobbyists is long overdue. For those who proclaim a new Nassau County, this proposal, if enacted, would signal that indeed a new Nassau County is on the radar screen. I hope my fellow members of the Board join me in sponsoring my proposal and quickly adopt the measure so that it can become law in Nassau."

Coloring For Bus Safety! Melissa Webber and Dad Steve are all smiles as Melissa finds her way through the maze in her new School Bus Safety Coloring Book. BROADWAY (107)

By Bill Clark

Many stores on Broadway (107) were in existence in the early 1900's, now with added modern fronts. Hahn-Spiro Dry Goods Store was large. Portion was removed for part of the new building for A&P and later other occupants. The bank and drug store haven't changed appearance. The shoe repair store and white church are very old. The lists may not be in date order. Some may be missing besides those offices on the second floors. A&P had been in 4 locations on Broadway. I wish I had photos of the way the buildings were then.

PBA Endorses Denis Dillon

Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon has received the endorsement of the Police Benevolent Association of the County of Nassau. The Police Benevolent Association represents more than 1,700 police officers employed by the Nassau County Police Department. District Attorney Dillon is seeking his sixth term as the County's Chief Law Enforcement Officer.

The Police Benevolent Association's endorsement follows a record of achievement and a lifetime in law enforcement by Dillon. He is a former New York City Police Officer, who graduated Fordham Law School in the top ten percent of his class. Dillon was appointed an Honor Law Graduate by Attorney General Robert Kennedy, served as a Trial Attorney in the United States Justice Department, Assistant United States Attorney and Director of the Federal Government's Organized Crime Strike Force.

Dillon has brought national recognition to the Nassau County District Attorney's Office. He has one of the highest felony conviction rates in the country - 97.7%. He removed political patronage from the District Attorney's Office and wrote numerous laws to protect consumers, increase penalties for career criminals and drug dealers, and stiffer sanctions against polluters. Last year, his office convicted 100% of all defendants charged with murder and continued an aggressive forfeiture program to confiscate the assets from criminals.

District Attorney Dillon said he appreciated the Nassau Police Benevolent Association endorsement and their continued support. "Working together we have made Nassau County one of the safest counties in America."

LEGAL NOTICE

Design Your Own Sweatshirt

Before you know it, you'll be feeling a nip of fall in the air! What better way to warm up and show your style than in your own custom-designed sweatshirt? Peggy Lang brings her traveling craft classes back to the Bethpage Library to show you how to create a sweatshirt that is chic, yet reflects your own style. Choose a session: Thursday, Sept. 23, 1 - 3 p.m., or Tuesday, Sept. 28, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. Bring a clean, gently washed white or other light-colored sweatshirt and a piece of cardboard. All other materials will be supplied for a small materials fee of $7, payable upon registration at the reference desk.

These classes will fill up fast, so don't delay in signing up! The library is located at 47 Powell Avenue, two blocks west of exit 8 on the Seaford-Oyster Bay Expressway (Route 135), phone 931-3907.

LEGAL NOTICE

A resolution was duly adopted by the Board of Commissioners of the Hicksville Fire District, Town of Oyster Bay, County of Nassau, State of New York, on the Fourteenth of September 1993, subject to a permissive referendum, as provided for by Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law.

An abstract of the resolution is as follows:
The Hicksville Fire District maintains a Capital Reserve Fund for Firematic Equipment under Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law in which account there is sufficient funds to accomplish the purpose herein set forth, namely,

One (1) Custom chassis and body complete with ALL necessary equipment to make the vehicle road worthy and safe for operating as a Hazardous Materials Response Unit for the Hicksville Fire Department; including any lights, sirens, interior equipment shelves, radios. Included in this resolution is all the legal and clerical fees necessary for purchase of said vehicle and any inspection trips needed.

The resolution further provides that there be transferred from the the present Capital Reserve 6-G Fund for Firematic Equipment of the Hicksville Fire District not to exceed two hundred twenty-five thousand dollars ($225,000.) and the District Treasurer is authorized to effect such transfer.

The resolution shall not take effect until October 14, 1993, unless in the meanwhile, a permissive referendum as provided for in Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law is required to be held.

Seniormobile In Plainview

On Tuesday, October 5, from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m., the Plainview branch of The Chase Manhattan Bank at 365 South Oyster Bay Road, will welcome the Nassau County Department of Senior Citizen Affairs Seniormobile.

Open to all seniors in the local community, the mobile van will give those who attend important advice and referrals on numerous topics ranging from Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid to employment opportunities, tax relief and energy payment assistance. Additionally, seniors who participate will be issued Nassau County Leisure Passes, which provide discounts for public transportation fares and on entrance fees for numerous county recreational events.

Holiday
Flea Market

Vendors wanted for an Indoor Flea Market, sponsored by the Hicksville Youth Council. The Flea Market will be held on November 20 at the Levittown Hall in Hicksville from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. We are asking for vendors selling new merchandise only. For more information call us at 822-KIDS, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and ask for Mary or Tom.

Retiring From Auxiliary Police

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard B. Symons (right) recently presented a citation to Arthur E. Pollack of Plainview-Old Bethpage Auxiliary Police Unit 317, who after many years as a distinguished volunteer with the organization, is retiring. Pollack's wife Jean was also on hand for the occasion.

Hicksville Chamber Installation

People from Hicksville know Sept. has arrived, first by the opening of school, and second by the Chamber's Annual Installation Dinner-Dance. This year will be no exception. It has, for some time, been the tradition of the Chamber to forego their regular monthly luncheon meeting to start off the year in September with what has become a very successful social event for the area.

As usual, the dinner-dance will be held Tues., Oct. 21 and commence with a cocktail party at 6:30 p.m., followed by a full-course dinner and dancing. Many local dignitaries are expected to be present, including Lewis Yevoli, Tom Clark, many members of the Hicksville Fire Dept. and, of course, the Honorable Thomas Gulotta who is scheduled to be the installing official, swearing in new officers of the chamber, as well as new members of the Board of Directors.

Tickets for this gala celebration can be secured through the Chamber office at 10 West Marie Street or by calling 931-7170.

Improvements Greet Students

A New Library For the Lee Ave. Elementary School. Mr. Stuart Opdahl, Asst. Supt. for Business Services (pictured far right) shows off the newly constructed Lee Ave. Library to, pictured L-R: Board of Education Trustees and Facilities Committee Chairperson Raymond Manzo, President Helen Lafferty and Trustee and Chairperson of the Curriculum Committee Nancy Callari. Representatives of the Board and administration toured the schools throughout the district prior to the opening of school to observe the many renovations that took place over the summer.

New athletic and physical education locker rooms have been designed at the high school. These newly constructed state-of-the-art locker rooms include showers, graffiti resistant lockers, flooring specially designed for these areas, and a centrally located, highly visible coaching station within the locker room. The High School Guidance Offices have been completely and attractively redesigned to provide comprehensive college and career information which will be accessible to students, parents and community members. An additional Academic Enrichment Learning Center for Liberal Arts has been designed for high school students to pursue independent research projects. The Cafeteria at the high school continues to improve upon its new look which was started last year; booths, colorful tables and a soda fountain have been added creating an attractive dining atmosphere. A number of renovations in storage areas have also taken place which will provide for the more efficient use of space and services.

In addition to the tremendous work that has taken place at the high school, other projects were also completed throughout the district. In schools throughout the district gym floors were stripped, repaired where necessary, sanded and completely refinished. A beautiful new and modern library was constructed at the Lee Ave. Elementary Sch. Projects at the Middle Sch. included: renovation of the technology area, roof repair work, new handicap access ramps, a new computer lab, and improvements in the cafeteria.

L.I. Role In Civil War

Although no battles were fought on Long Island during the Civil War, this conflict touched everyone from Brooklyn to Montauk. Long Islanders fought in virtually every major land and sea engagement, while those left behind supported them by producing vital supplies, engaging in nursing duties, sewing circles and rallies. Even Confederate soldiers played a role in this story. For example, did you know that Robert E. Lee was stationed on Long Island for a time?

Join Civil War expert Harrison Hunt at the Bethpage Library on Thursday, Sept. 30, 7:30 p.m. for a fascinating sixty minute glimpse into the saga of Long Island's role during the War Between the States. Learn about the historic regiments, the ships the local men sailed on, and those who kept the home fires burning.

This presentation utilizes dozens of historic nineteenth century images and modern photographs, carefully assembled by Mr. Hunt, a professional historian and museum curator. It is a must for anyone who is intrigued by this famous conflict, and would like to view it from a different angle.

Admission is free and all are welcome.

The library is located at 47 Powell Avenue, two blocks west of Exit 8 on the Seaford-Oyster Bay Expressway, phone 931-3007.

The Board of Education and the Administration of the Hicksville Public School District continue to be concerned with maintaining standards of excellence in education while at the same time recognizing the financial pressures that affect every area of the community. The entire district administration works toward the goal of obtaining the most value for each tax dollar expended. To this end the Board of Education presented a budget to the public which they overwhelmingly approved that not only decreased the tax rate but included a vast number of improvements in the school plant itself. These improvements both enhance the educational programs in support of the Board and Supt.'s goals and protect the investment of the taxpayers in the Hicksville community.

As students return to school in Sept. they are greeted with many exciting improvements in schools throughout the district. All summer, workers have been busy redesigning and renovating classrooms, gymnasiums, locker rooms, a library, storage areas, laboratories, cafeterias; the list is seemingly endless. All of this is in addition to regular summer repairs and maintenance such as painting, floor stripping and waxing, etc. This vast undertaking, recommended by the Supt. of Schools and approved by the Board of Education, has been completed under the direct supervision of Mr. Stuart Opdahl, Asst. Supt. for Business Services. Much of the work has been completed by very competent and talented district employees. More specialized projects were completed by outside contractors who were awarded the projects as the result of a very stringent bidding process designed to select the most competent contractors at the best value for their services.

A vast number of major renovations have been designed at the High School. Two completely new and modern science laboratories and an adjoining storage preparation area have been created in Phase II of the district's plan for the science program. (Two laboratories were completed last year with plans for the remaining ones to be completed next year.) The art rooms have been relocated, resulting in a number of improvements including show cases for display of students' work, and renovations in the technology areas at the high school have been made in keeping with program revisions.

Indian Culture Hist. Soc. Topic

Opening its 1993-94 program season with a whoop, the Hicksville Historical Society will be treated to an informative glimpse of Long Island's Algonquian Indian culture at its Tuesday, September 28, meeting. Drawing on the historical accounts of the Algonquians, as seen by the Dutch and English settlers in the 17th and 18th centuries, Richard Evers will present a slide/lecture. Mr. Evers is the Hicksville Historian and has presented many such programs over the past twenty-five years.

The 8 p.m. meeting of the Society will take place in the Kenneth Barnes Community Room of the Hicksville Public Library. This is the first meeting of the new society year, a year which will offer its members and the general public stimulating insights into Long Island's history and an opportunity to be a part of steps to

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you think artificial insemination should be outlawed?

Input Callers Optimistic On Israel-Arab Accord

Callers to Input were optimistic regarding Israel in answer to this question: "Do you think that the PLO and Israel will be able to forge a lasting peace? Here are some of the answers:

ENCOURAGING

It would be early to know all of the problems that will confront Israel and the Arabs in trying to keep peace in their lands. But from what I have read, the agreement has a long term basis which will slowly allow autonomy and independence in the Palestinian area. Luckily it will come slowly because it takes more than the signatures of Arafat and Rabin to wipe out the problems that have existed so long. I think it is encouraging to see that we may give peace a chance. L.H.

NOT GOOD AGREEMENT

I am more than dubious about the agreement between Rabin and Arafat. It does not seem that the Arabs gave up anything but Israel is giving up all the land it won in a war that was provoked by the Arabs. This is not really a good agreement and I am afraid that the Israel government will find it out just too soon. J.D.

PEACE IS FUTURE

I like to believe that the strife in the Middle East will be over. There are so many more important things that need to be done other than killing people. Israel has been tied up with a war machine that has made long range planning impossible and has hurt its financial structure. There was no sense in continuing to keep things as they were. There should be peace and everyone can benefit from it. K.D.

WALL CAME DOWN

Just as the Berlin wall crumbled so will the age-old controversy between the Jews and Arabs end. It will take some time and there will be trouble with those on each side who will not be patient. But lasting peace will finally come. N.D.

RIGHT THING

If the people on each side are truly fed up with the horrors of war there will be lasting peace. They have had a long siege of fighting and nothing was accomplished. Peace and calmly discussing problems will be the only way for the future. I think Arafat and Rabin did the right thing. D.S.

JERUSALEM?

I am not at all happy with the peace settlement between Arafat and Rabin. Arafat has said that the Palentine flag will be flying over Jerusalem. This city is the true capital of Israel and is cherished by many religions. Under Israel it was an open and free city. I do not think that any agreement that takes Jerusalem out of the control of Israel is a fair agreement and this either has to be changed in the accord signed by the Arabs or there cannot be long lasting peace. K.J.

GAVE TOO MUCH

While I believe Israel under Rabin gave away too much I hope for peace which will allow Israel to go on with its work of providing a homeland for the Jewish people. I believed that someone with a little more force than Rabin could have made a better arrangement. The Arabs have little to negotiate with and yet Israel gave them much land back. If it really means peace o.k., but it means that things will go on simmering then the pact was signed too quickly. G.F.

HOMELAND AT LAST

I think it is a great time for the Jewish people. We have always had a right to a homeland and now we have it, even if it is much smaller than it ought to be. If we can live in peace we will do much. V.N.

"GIVE AND TAKE"

It is very difficult to believe that 100 years of bloodshed and misery between the Palestinians and the Jews as well as between the two nations can come to an end and stay that way. The two representative individuals - Rabin and Arafat - appear to be sincere, but I find it difficult to accept especially based upon the conduct of Arafat over the years. As it is, another cloudy aspect of the present situation deals with the identification of the signers of Israeli-P.L.O. agreement as currently contemplated. Obviously Arafat is anxious to play a leading role in this phase dealing with Palestinian self-rule in Israeli-occupied territories which can be a severe stumbling-block. Much of the success of the entire venture depends upon the cooperative attitudes of the many citizens involved and the sensitivity of issues facing them in the conduct of their lives. A lasting peace is highly desirable but it's going to take a lot of "give and take" and I sincerely hope that is going to be seriously considered in making the commitments. P.G.S.

Hidden Treasures In Plain Sight

By Dr. Arthur A. Delaney

To most patrons, the local post office is a place in which to buy stamps, mail letters and parcels, purchase money orders, and apply for passports. Perhaps I have less patience because I'm getting older, but it seems the lines keep getting longer and move to the wicket ever so slowly. I take along a paperback book when I visit my neighborhood post office. Often I study the faces on the wanted posters because you never know who you might meet these days. Sometimes, depending on the post office, I look at the wall art, appreciating what many of my fellow standees don't. On some walls is a segment of national treasure, a bit of social history, a nostalgic reminder of a world turned many times.

If the post office was built before 1942, it may be the custodian and caretaker of one or more of almost 1,200 wall murals and 300 sculptures. Such art is a legacy of the Great Depression and the New Deal when the Treasury Department and the Federal Works Progress Administration (WPA) sought to aid unemployed artists, sculptors, and print makers by putting them to work doing what they did best—creating.

As Franklin D. Roosevelt said in 1939, when the program (started in 1934) was at its height, "The Federal Art Project of the Works Progress Administration is a practical relief project, which also emphasizes the best tradition of the democratic spirit. The WPA artist, in rendering his own impression of things, speaks also for the spirit of his fellow countryman everywhere. I think the WPA artist," continued F.D.R., "exemplifies with great force the essential place which the arts have in a democratic society such as ours."

Who were these artists? With a few possible exceptions, all were good, and most were hungry. As abstract painter Lee Krasner observed when U.S. unemployment approached thirty percent, the projects made it possible for artists to "continue to literally stay alive and paint."

Today, most of the WPA artists have passed on and are long forgotten. But many became famous as times improved. Immediately to mind come Ben Shahn, Diego Rivera, William Groper, Alice Neel, Rockwell Kent, Milton Avery and Philip Guston. I've had correspondence with two of the "people's artists," the great Steven Dohanos and the late William Hart Benton. Once, in a conversation with Harry S. Truman, I mentioned the artist Benton, knowing that he was a friend of the former president. Truman smiled and said definitively: "The best damn painter America has produced!" Benton's mural, "Independence and the Opening of the West," may be appreciated by visitors to the Harry S. Truman Library. While not created during the Depression as a post office wall mural, it captures the spirit of much of the New Deal relief art.

The art Benton and hundreds of other artists created was a realistic style called "people's art" because it was a collaboration between artist and community. Art scholars refer to it as the School of Social Realism. Artists consulted with local postmasters, village historians, elected officials, and businessmen. They researched the community for subject matter that would reflect the local milieu—its history, industry, and often its postal heritage. The art work had to be realistic, not abstract, and generally both subjects selected and painting styles were conservative and optimistic. Many murals embraced industrial growth and expectations that were to transcend the Depression. None were supposed to stimulate viewers either visually or cerebrally.

While the primary purpose of the WPA's relief art project was to provide work for unemployed artists (There was a parallel project for unemployed writers), it also provided art work for the government buildings that were being constructed in part to aid an even larger segment of our unemployed population. Only one percent of the construction funds were allocated for the art work, however.

No one knows how many of the murals in older schools and post offices were destroyed and otherwise lost. Some paintings were stored in basements, forgotten, and then thrown out. When buildings were demolished, the wrecker's ball often demolished an art legacy as well. Brookhaven artist James Brooks, who passed away last year at the age of 85, was best known for his "History of Flight." It was a mural running 235 feet around the rotunda of the Marine Air Terminal at LaGuardia Airport, itself an historic building with Art Deco detailing. Just ten years after Brooks created his masterpiece, it was painted over by order of the Port Authority. Not once, mind you, but several times! It was fully restored at great expense in 1980, but only after an intensive campaign waged by art historians and curators.

William Gropper painted his "Suburban Post in Winter" during the cold months of 1936 and '37 for the post office in Freeport. Like so many others, it was almost painted over. Some people had scoffed at the mural because it recreated in poster art fashion the ordinary activity of a Long Island town, including a mail carrier on his snowy rounds. Today it is regarded as a prime work created by an important artist.

The post office murals and sculptures that Roosevelt had called "native, human, eager and alive" will be found in every state except Hawaii. Eleven post offices in Nassau and Suffolk counties contain exquisite and strong images by artists who captured the mood of an era, and, indeed, the history that had preceded it. I have seen and photographed many throughout the country, but two of my favorites are right here in the Discovery circulation area. They will be found in Garden City and Hempstead.

In 1937, J. Theodore Johnson (1902-1963) created a mural, "Huckleberry Frolic," that may be seen today in the Garden City post office. Johnson, a Guggenheim Fellow and instructor at the Minneapolis School of Art, researched Garden City history and came up with a mural that recaptured the festive atmosphere of the annual huckleberry harvest on the Hempstead Plains. The scene depicts horses, men harvesting, women picnicking, and a farmer herding sheep. Between 1935 and 1942, Johnson created some 80 murals and sculptures for New York State post offices.

Also in 1937, Peppino Mangravite created two oil-on-canvas paintings for the Hempstead post office. One was the "Settlement of Hempstead," but the one I particularly favor is on the west wall, the "Arrival of the Dirigible R-34 With First Air Mail in 1919." The landing of the British airship on the Hempstead Plains was the big local event of the year. The Hempstead mural reflected a future when lighter-than-air-craft would dominate commercial air transportation. A few days after Mangravite's mural was hung, the German zeppelin Hindenberg exploded and burned at Lakehurst. An era had ended and perceptions of the future were changing rapidly. World War II, even then on the horizon, would bring to an end the Great Depression and the need to put hungry artists to work.

While comparatively little public money was spent on the art work of the Depression, it is today worth millions. But, as Maguera M. Harris, research administrator and historian for the U.S. Postal Service, says: "The real value isn't just in money. It is the only comprehensive public collection of fine art that provides an understanding of our nation's culture and character in the 1930s and 1940s."

WINE TALK

Sauvignon Blanc shopping list

By Richard Nalley

Sauvignon Blanc is as close to one-stop shopping as white wine gets. Typically less rich than Chardonnay, with more body and flavor punch than Riesling, it goes with everything from pork chops to shellfish.

Sauvignon Blanc's herbal element (though sometimes played down) gives it a particular affinity for vegetable and herb-seasoned dishes like chicken with tarragon, or tuna fish salad, or salmon and dill. It is a wine meant for the table.

Sauvignon Blanc is produced around the world and travels under various aliases, including Fume Blanc, Pouilly-Fume and Saucerre. White Bordeaux is a blend primarily of Sauvignon Blanc and Semillon, with the latter grape providing a touch of roundness and a melon-y savor. This is the style emulated by the blended "Meritage" labeled wines in California (and by many other Sauvignon Blanc-based wines, as well).

Below is a scorecard of currently available Sauvignon Blancs priced at $16 or below. (All wines are labeled "Sauvignon Blanc," unless otherwise noted.)

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED WINES $8 and under: Estancia Estates 1992, Monterey; Callaway 1991, Temecula; Geyser Peak 1991, Sonoma County.

By Carol Cutler

It was not too many years ago that an Austrian chef made pizza chic. Until then, pizza was just popular. When Wolfgang Puck opened Spago in Los Angeles, movie moguls and stars flocked there. Sophisticated Linda Evans of "Dynasty" fame admitted that she was "addicted to the duck sausage pizza."

Notice that is not your usual gooey pepperoni-and-cheese wheel. Puck's crusts are crisp and thin and the toppings downright exotic.

His reputation was so lofty that chefs right across America began imitating his playfulness with pizzas. Smoked salmon found its way on top of the crust, as did mussels, squid, lamb patties and just about every piece of meat or poultry that could be smoked. One jesting chef presented a bacon, lettuce and tomato rendition. It became a hit. Food magazines went even further with fruit toppings and turned pizza into dessert.

With Italian the hot cuisine of the moment, pizza became more and more popular. Pizza is now America's favorite frozen food. More than 1.8 billion slices are sold annually.

Americans have been taking the wheels out, ordering them in, and now are actually getting involved. In the first quarter of this year sales of refrigerated pizzas and pizza kits have boomed almost 12 percent over the previous quarter. Those refrigerated sales alone rang up $42.5 million. The little puppy of a pizza business has turned into a well, dinosaur.

There are all sorts of ways that producers are helping you make your own pizza. They know you want to do something, but you don't want to spend all that much time at it. So you can buy refrigerated crusts and sauces, non-refrigerated baked shells, non-refrigerated single-portion packets of sauce, shredded cheese and even pre-sliced sausage. These aids do for pizza-making what mixers do for cake baking. You add a few things, and you have made the cake.

As long as you can make pizza so easily, you can even have a pizza party. Make several kinds of pizza and let guests have a slice of each.

A good combination would be a traditional combination of tomato sauce, meat of some sort and cheese. Grilled vegetables and a thin pesto sauce, with perhaps a light sprinkling of cheese means a bit more advance work at the grill, but what imaginative combinations you can put together.

The following Shrimp and Spinach Pizza may not come in a ready-made kit, but all the components are almost ready to go, so it's really a matter of assembling more than making. And you can be quite sure that your guests haven't tasted this one before.

To maintain the Italian spirit of the meal, begin with sliced ripe tomatoes with fresh mozzarella cheese and chopped basil. A little salt and pepper and a drizzle of good olive oil and this is an almost ready-made first course.

Set out a large bowl of salad to accompany the pizzas, a few bowls of different kinds of olives and strips of red and green pepper.

Separate vegetables are not necessary since some have already been incorporated into the pizzas.

For dessert, go ahead and have some fun. Slice a round yellow cake in half horizontally and spread with a layer of jam or whipped cream. Then arrange sliced fruit on top in any pattern you like, or at random. A serious sprinkling of shredded coconut on top enhances the pizza look.

SHRIMP AND SPINACH PIZZA

1 pound frozen bread dough, de-frosted

3/4 pound small shrimp, peeled
Salt and pepper to taste
About 3 tablespoons olive oil, divided use

1/4 pound mushrooms, sliced
1 (10-ounce) package frozen whole-leaf spinach, thawed
4 scallions, each cut into 3 or 4 pieces

1 cup ricotta
1/4 cup basil leaves OR 1 tablespoon pesto

1/2 pound mozzarella cheese, shredded

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Defrost bread dough according to package directions. Allow it to rise a second time, then refrigerate until needed.

Reserve 6 of the largest shrimp and cut the rest in half. Put cut-up shrimp in small bowl, and season with a little salt and pepper and 1 tablespoon olive oil. Mix to coat all pieces and put aside.

Meanwhile, heat skillet, add 1 teaspoon of olive oil and mushrooms. Cook over high heat to brown a little and eliminate any moisture; cook, covered, for about 30 seconds. Uncover and season with salt and pepper. Remove mushrooms with slotted spoon and reserve.

Thoroughly squeeze out water from spinach, pull apart, and put in food processor. Add scallions and pulse a few times. Add ricotta, basil or pesto and freshly ground pepper and process for a few seconds. Do not puree mixture; there should be a chunky texture to this pizza topping. The vegetables can be chopped by hand and stirred into ricotta.

Preheat oven to 450 F. Oil 14-inch pizza pan, place dough on it, and, with oiled hands, spread dough to cover surface of pan, making a thicker crust around edge. Bake crust for 5 minutes. This bit of pre-baking firms crust and prevents sogginess.

Spread spinach mixture over dough. Scatter mushrooms over spinach bed, then shrimp pieces. Sprinkle mozzarella over top, making certain to cover shrimp. Reserve a pinch of cheese. Bake for 12 minutes.

Meanwhile, put reserved whole shrimp in bowl used marinating shrimp. Turn them over to coat with residual oil. Remove pizza from oven, place shrimp in center in spiral pattern, and drop reserved cheese in center. Return to oven for another 3 or 4 minutes, or until shrimp are cooked and crust is nicely brown.

Let pizza stand for 2 or 3 minutes before cutting into wedges.

When it was Mary's turn to make her debut at a senior center potluck lunch, she brought a guaranteed hit — deviled eggs. Mary's zesty eggs have been popular wherever she happens to take them.

"They go in a hurry," says Mary, 77.

At her senior center, 35 to 45 senior citizens typically bring a covered dish or a $2 donation.

The social practice of bringing along a favorite dish to combine with food from others has always been a staple for clubs, parent-teacher associations and church groups, says Jan Hanby, editor at Oxborn House, which published "America's Best Recipes 1992," a special section on America's favorite potluck recipes.

Potlucks are popular because of the country's tough financial times, says Hanby.

"It's a little more economical for everybody," she says.

Spring and summer is the prime season for bring-a-dish gatherings, whether it's holidays, block parties, picnics or church festivals, says Hanby. Potlucks can be particularly good for senior citizens.

"It's a great social occasion," says Hanby. "As people get older, they might not want to cook as much. They can bring one dish and get a good meal."

Deviled eggs are a staple of potluck cuisine because cooks can easily transport them to the party. Egg whites and yolks can be toiled separately in sealable containers, says Linda Braun, manager of consumer services for the American Egg Board.

Cooks can even put all ingredients for the egg-yolk mixture in a food storage bag and "knead" it together. Upon arrival at the potluck, cut off the tip of one corner of the bag and pipe the mixture into the cooked egg whites.

"It's a lot handier," says Braun. "You don't have to worry about eggs shifting, smearing or overturning when you take them somewhere."

Casseroles are transported and reheated easily.

What about people who are squeamish about potlucks because of concern for food safety? People generally are conscious of food safety and try to do a good job in preparing food to take out. A dish should be avoided if there's a question as to whether or not it's being kept at the right serving temperature.

DILLY DEVILED EGGS

½ cup shredded cucumber
1 teaspoon salt
6 hard-cooked eggs (see note)
¼ cup dairy sour cream
¼ teaspoon dill weed
Carrot, radish and celery garnishes (optional)

Yields 6 servings, as appetizers. Thoroughly combine cucumber and salt. Let stand 15 minutes. Drain well, pressing out excess liquid. Set aside.

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and set whites aside. Mash yolks with fork. Blend in sour cream and dill weed. Stir in drained cucumber. Refill whites, using 1 heaping tablespoon yolk mixture for each egg half. Garnish platter with vegetables, if desired.

Note: To hard-cook eggs, put them in a single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.)

Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

RED, WHITE AND BLUEBERRY PARTY SALAD

2 (3-ounce) packages raspberry-flavored gelatin (divided use)
3 cups boiling water (divided use)
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup half-and-half
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
½ cup chopped pecans OR walnuts (optional)
1 (21-ounce) can blueberry pie filling

Yields 15 servings.
Dissolve 1 package raspberry-flavored gelatin in 2 cups boiling water. Pour into 13x9x2-inch dish; cover and chill until firm. Sprinkle unflavored gelatin over ¼ cup cold water in medium saucepan; let stand 1 minute. Cook over low heat, stirring until gelatin dissolves.

Combine half-and-half and sugar in small saucepan; cook over low heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Combine gelatin mixture, half-and-half mixture, vanilla and cream cheese in large mixing bowl. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer until smooth. Stir in chopped pecans, if desired.

Gently pour cream cheese mixture over first layer of salad. Cover and chill until firm. Dissolve remaining package raspberry-flavored gelatin in remaining 1 cup boiling water; stir in blueberry pie filling. Gently pour pie filling mixture over first two layers of salad. Cover and chill at least 8 hours or until firm.

To serve, cut salad into squares.

Advancing avocados beyond guacamole

Let's talk avocados.

While most commonly used as an accent in salads or to make guacamole, this fruit is much more diverse than common usage would suggest.

Ever heard of avocados and ice cream? While Brazilians feast on this treat, there are other, more mainstream uses. How about sprinkling them on top of fajitas, soup, ceviche or pizza? Or layering them in a sandwich? Yet another option is to cut them in half and fill with your favorite meat, vegetable or fruit salad.

It's easy to find ways to add avocados to your everyday diet — especially because they're available year-round — and there are plenty of nutritional reasons to do so. Avocados offer a high fiber content, plenty of B vitamins and potassium and no cholesterol. While avocados are high in fat content, the majority of this fat is monounsaturated, which has been shown in some studies to lower serum cholesterol levels.

Avocados also are easy to prepare. Just cut in half lengthwise, remove the seed, cut off the peel with a knife and they're ready to eat.

Perhaps the most difficult part about using avocados is finding perfectly ripe fruit. The best way to tell if an avocado is ready to eat is to gently squeeze the fruit in the palm of your hand. Ripe fruit will be firm, yet will yield to gentle pressure. Ripened fruit should be refrigerated until use, but can be refrigerated only a few days.

To ripen a hard avocado, place the fruit in a paper bag and store at room temperature until ripe — usually two to five days. Including an apple in the bag will accelerate the process.

Here are some recipes that rely on avocados for a taste of distinction.

Chicken and Avocados in Cognac Cream is an elegant main dish that features chicken strips, sauteed mushrooms and gently heated avocado slices in a creamy sauce.

Six-Layer Salad is a beautiful main-dish creation that is best served in a large glass bowl to showcase its colorful layers of lettuce, chicken, onion, oranges, avocados and pecans — all accented with a lime vinaigrette. When serving, be sure to dig down into the bowl to get a little of each ingredient.

Vegetarian Pocket Sandwiches are satisfying pita pockets chock-full of diced vegetables and a guacamole-like dressing.

Crab Tostadas top crispy corn tortillas with shredded lettuce and a spicy crab meat salad.

CHICKEN AND AVOCADO IN COGNAC CREAM

6 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon chopped shallots
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup cognac
1½ cups heavy cream
2 avocados, peeled, seeded and cut into ¼-inch slices

Yields 6 servings.
Preparation time: 30 minutes.
Cut chicken into 1-inch-wide strips; sprinkle with salt and pepper.

In large skillet, heat margarine. Add chicken and cook over high heat, stirring constantly, until chicken is browned, about 3 to 4 minutes. Remove chicken with slotted spoon and set aside.

Reduce skillet temperature. Add shallots and mushrooms to skillet; saute, stirring constantly, about 1 minute. Sprinkle cognac over shallots and mushrooms. Stir in cream and cook until thickened, about 5 minutes.

Return chicken to skillet. Add avocado and gently warm through, taking care not to break up avocado.

VEGETARIAN POCKET SANDWICHES

1 avocado, halved and peeled
¼ cup chopped cucumber
¼ cup shredded carrot
¼ cup chopped cauliflower
¼ cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup cubed Monterey Jack cheese
¼ cup bottled Italian salad dressing
4 pita breads
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ cup chopped tomato

Yields 4 sandwiches.
Preparation time: 15 minutes.
Dice half of avocado. Reserve other half.

Gently toss together diced avocado, cucumber, carrot, cauliflower, mushrooms and cheese with Italian dressing.

Slit pita breads halfway around and separate by pulling cut edges apart to form pocket. Fill each with ¼ of mixture.

In small bowl, mash remaining avocado with fork and stir in lemon juice and tomato. Spoon evenly divided quantities of mixture inside each sandwich.

Harvested as early as 6000 B.C., olives and their oil hold a notable place in ancient history. Numerous biblical references to the use of olives and olive oil testify to their importance. By the fifth century B.C., a lively olive trade had emerged in the western Mediterranean. Olive groves, believed to be a gift from the gods, were sacred to the Greeks, who allowed only chaste men and virgins to cultivate the important trees.

Olive trees do not begin to produce their crop until the third or fourth year after planting. And they only reach their full crop potential sometime between years eight and 12. That might seem like a long time to wait for a decent crop, but a healthy olive grove can continue producing for hundreds of years.

Olives' intense flavor can liven up many microwave dishes, from onchillada casseroles to lasagna to scrambled eggs. Canned, they have a shelf life of three to four years — so they're easy to keep on hand in your pantry for a quick flavor boost. After opening a can of ripe black olives, refrigerate up to 10 days. (Bottled green salad olives will stay fresh much longer.)

You can freeze olives in plastic bags or containers; they will become softer in texture but the flavor will stay the same, so they're fine for adding to microwave recipes.

A small olive measures about 1/4 inch, and the difference between a medium and jumbo olive is only 1/4 inch (a super colossal measures 1 1/4 inches).

Unless you're buying olives to serve on a fancy hors d'oeuvres tray, it's often a good idea to simply disregard olive sizes. Because larger sizes can be expensive, I usually buy whatever size is on sale. (Since they keep so long in storage, my pantry is usually pretty well stocked with sale olives.)

At any rate, size is of no matter if you're going to chop or slice olives to use in a recipe. For microwaving purposes, chopped olives are often cheaper (and you don't have to chop them yourself, so they're faster, too).

Olive oil, a flavorful golden liquid that's made steady gains in popularity in recent years, belongs in every serious cook's kitchen. One benefit of microwaving is that less butter and oil are needed, so microwaved foods are often lower in calories and fat. But when a recipe does call for oil, use one that's healthy.

Olive oil contains no cholesterol and is highest of all the oils in non-saturated fat. There's evidence that it helps to maintain the health of arterial walls and to keep blood cholesterol down. In addition, it's easy to digest and contains good amounts of vitamins A, D and E.

Even though olive oil does have around the same number of calories as other oils (about 115 per tablespoon), they're healthy calories. When a microwave recipe calls for butter or margarine, you may (depending on the recipe) substitute part or all with olive oil.

Often used in salad dressings or for deep-frying, in the microwave olive oil is most often used to saute vegetables or meats, or as a flavoring.

Olive oil comes in different grades: extra-virgin, virgin, fine and ungraded (all are the same, nutritionally). Dieters should know that "light" olive oil is milder in flavor than other grades of oil but no lower in calories. Since some olive oils have a more assertive olive flavor, it's a good idea to choose milder oils when microwaving, so as not to overwhelm the flavor of other recipe ingredients.

BABA GHANOUJ

1 (1- to 1 1/2-pound) eggplant
 1/4 cup sesame seeds
 4 tablespoons olive oil (divided use)
 4 tablespoons lemon juice
 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
 1 clove garlic, crushed
 1/4 teaspoon dried cumin
 1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped
 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
 Dash red-pepper sauce
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1 tablespoon olive oil
 Fresh parsley sprigs (optional)
 Yields about 2 cups.
 Preparation time: 15 minutes.
 Cooking time: 11 to 17 minutes (plus 20 minutes cooling time).
 Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Wash eggplant and pierce several times with fork. Place on paper towel and microwave 6 to 9 minutes, or until very tender. Let stand 20 minutes, to cool.

Meanwhile, spread sesame seeds evenly over paper plate. Microwave 2 to 4 minutes, or until toasted and lightly browned. Combine toasted seeds with half of olive oil in blender container; process to form paste. Add lemon juice and blend until smooth.

Combine remaining olive oil with onion, garlic and cumin in small microwave-safe bowl. Microwave 3 to 4 minutes, or until onion is tender, stirring once. Add to mixture in blender.

Quarter cooled eggplant. Remove skin and seeds. Add to blender container with tomato, parsley, pepper sauce, salt and pepper. Cover blender and process just long enough to blend ingredients.

Serve immediately, or cover and refrigerate overnight to allow flavors to blend and mellow. To serve, spoon mixture into serving dish and drizzle remaining tablespoon of olive oil over top. Garnish with fresh parsley sprigs, if desired. Serve as dip with warm pita bread wedges.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Better communication

Dr. Abraham: You'd think that I'm a little kid the way my folks talk to me. I'm a 16-year-old girl, and I know a heck of a lot more than my parents give me credit for.

Whether it is what is going on in politics (who is for what and why), health (AIDS and other stuff) or sex (and how to prevent what's for), I think I could teach them a trick or two.

They are living back in the time when they were young and everything was a lot simpler than it is now.

I know how tough things are these days, that's for sure. A special friend of mine committed suicide, and I miss her so much. A guy I know almost killed himself on a motorcycle; he just laughed when I had told him to wear a helmet. I've learned the hard way that I was fat because I ate all wrong; I corrected that, finally. And a few of my friends have gone overboard on alcohol and drugs.

I wish I could sit down and talk to my parents about real things like all of those. I guess maybe I haven't tried hard enough. Maybe I should. What do you think? — Wondering.

Wondering: You've done a good job of recognizing your family problems, and have even supplied a hint of what to do about it.

When you start reactivating conversations with your parents, consider beginning where they are (for example, the interests they have, the work they do, and friends they have) and gradually bring in your own interests, activities and friendships. In the same careful way bring up the more serious topics you wrote about to me, perhaps only one at a time and not for their shock value.

It is possible that they know more in certain areas than you now think they do. Whenever that realization occurs to you, it may be that you have hit "pay dirt," an entry to a topic that might be developed in their direction as well as yours.

Patience will be important, but over a period of time communication between you and them could improve, even to the point of mutual enjoyment.

I hope that will happen. Please keep in touch.

Dr. Abraham: I have an older sister who has one baby; she is an absolute doll.

The trouble is that my sister is a worry wart, and she has a dumb husband who goes along with anything she says.

She believes the baby has a hearing problem, but she refuses to do anything about it.

"What if the doctor told me my baby is deaf? I'd just die," is what she keeps saying.

The only so-called evidence she has is that the baby doesn't seem to pay much attention to her, but I tell her she is being foolish. After all, the baby is only two months old.

So why not have a checkup by her pediatrician or anyone that person refers her to? To me that is just common sense. It is stupid fear or worse on her part. And her husband just says time will take care of the whole thing.

What do you think about this? — Hearing Issue.

Hearing Issue: Her husband may not be as "dumb" as you think, his attitude may actually be sensible. However, the pediatric visit could be worthwhile. Having peace of mind is so important for a new parent.

Are there other members of your family to whom she might listen? Think that over, and then talk to those who might be persuasive enough to help calm her down by utilizing a competent medical source (her pediatrician).

Dr. Abraham: I think I've tried just about every diet I've heard or read about. The result is temporary weight loss, but that isn't enough for me.

I won't go into detail about all my experiences on this subject, but believe me that they include a lot of suggestions from almost anywhere I could pick them up.

So here is my question: Is there anything new on this topic that has come to your attention? I'd certainly appreciate knowing about it — Waiting Patiently.

Waiting Patiently: You've shared your need but no specific details for me to work on. Still, a new book that I recently found out about may be helpful to you, especially because it was prepared specifically for teens.

It is titled "Safe Dieting for Teens," and was written by Linda Ojeda (Hunter House).

Some of the points it stresses include healthy eating habits, personal choice, setting realistic goals and exercise. The author also emphasizes healthy, safe weight management and a program that is steady and continuous.

Titles of the chapters in this brief book (just more than 100 pages) can give you an idea of its coverage:

- "Are You Really Overweight?"
- "Girls' Special Diet Dilemma"
- "Eating Disorders"
- "How Not to Diet"
- "Dieting Starts in the Mind, Not the Mouth"
- "Exercise and Physical Activity"

• "Designing Your Own Diet"

• "Eating Out"

In closing, she provides information on calorie and fat grams in common foods and resources that offer more help.

Whether the ideas this book presents are appropriate for you perhaps depends on how they relate to the experiences you have had.

Greek food fit for the gods

By Teresia d'Elgin

A great deal of civilization can be attributed to its foundation in Greek heritage — medicine, mathematics, literature, science, art, architecture — and food. Greek cuisine is as fundamental to our palates as post and lintel construction is to architecture.

According to Eva Zane's book, "Greek Cooking for the Gods" (101 Productions), centuries before the birth of Christ, the Greeks were dining on legumes simmered with olive oil, oregano and bay leaf, lamb roasted with capers and honey-drenched cakes. All this while the balance of Europe was gnawing on raw bones.

The tenets of modern cuisine — stock, herb seasoning, sauces — and methods such as braising can all be attributed to Greek invention.

In "Greek Cooking for the Gods," we learn that Athenaeus, a kind of second century M.F.K. Fisher, wrote an esteemed treatise on food, "The Deipnosophists" ("The Banquet of the Learned"). In it, he describes the fascination of Homer, Herodotus and Sophocles in the origins and merit of many foods. Athenaeus even includes a recipe for "electric ray stewed in oil, wine and fragrant herbs and a little grated cheese."

In spite of this respectful beginning, what most people know of Greek cooking is stuffed grape leaves. And likely they don't even know the main ingredients in these dolmadakia, as they are called.

Greek cooking is a broad and savory subject. Greece has some 2,500 miles of shoreline. As a seafaring population, Greeks exported bouillabaisse, bechamel, mayonnaise, gingerbread and figs — under different names, of course. Likewise, Hellenistic cuisine was enriched by customs from far and wide — paper-thin filo pastry from Persia, rice, lemons and eggplants from India, and thick, strong coffee and skewered meats from the Turks.

DIONYSUS' FARE

Like all Mediterranean countries, Greece produces lovely wines, of which retsina is the best-known. The Athenians, in an attempt to discourage the Persians from drinking their storehouses of wine, added pine resin to it.

The Persians were put off, but the results after aging were exceptional.

Favorite red wines are nemea, othello and pendeli. White wines include demestica, hymettus and the full-bodied robola. Ouzo, an anise-flavored acquired taste, is the Aegean's favored aperitif.

It is not coincidental that Dionysus is as often pictured eating grapes as drinking. It is the custom to quaff while eating an assortment of mezadakis (appetizers) like dolmadakia, marinated mushrooms and little meat triangles called kreatopetes. For dyed-in-the-wool adventurers, try lamb brains marinated with oregano or pickled squid.

With the rocky Greek countryside covered with goats and sheep, goat and sheep cheeses are central to many Greek dishes. Some, like feta, are readily available in this country or can be found in Greek delicatessens. Zane suggests that Parmesan can stand in for kefalotyri, mozzarella for kasseri, and ricotta for mizithra. Manouri, from Crete, is more complicated to duplicate.

A wedge of hot bread, a slice of goat's milk cheese and a local specialty like taramosalata (a fish roe puree) with cucumbers might make a meal with a glass of light wine.

DEMETER'S BOUNTY

Herbs such as mint, oregano, dill, rosemary and thyme are plentifully grown and used in the Aegean. Basil is held in special affection. The tender plants are cultivated with care and used in tomato and/or eggplant dishes.

For many of humble means, a kettle of steamy soup provides the main sustenance.

The most common soup of Athenaeus' time was a thick lentil porridge, soupa faki. An egg-lemon blend flavors many traditional soups with chicken, ground lamb or celery.

Greek salads are not just greens. Eggplant seasoned with onion and garlic, tomatoes crisscrossed with anchovy fillets, or even dandelion greens are some of the flavors.

The arrangement of the vegetables is as important as their flavor, as in the Athenian Salad below. Always rub the wooden salad bowl or platter with garlic first.

Use vegetables to stretch meat and fish portions with elegant dishes like domates yemistes (tomatoes stuffed with beef and zucchini) and moussaka (baked eggplant with lamb).

We require less protein anyway, according to new dietary recommendations, and these recipes make great meals-in-one.

Harvested and milled, wheat and rice round out the offerings from Demeter, Greek goddess of the earth — pastas and pilafs, custard-filled filo and baked halvah made from ground nuts and farina.

Glyka koutaliou (spoon treats) bring back her childhood for author Zane, who was brought up in America by Greek parents. These are candied bits of orange, quince or rose petals.

Holidays virtually erupt in special breads and desserts. Easter brings lambropsomo, and New Year's Day vasilopeta with hot spices permeates every house.

OFF POSEIDON'S HARPOON

In this country, we have to suffer along without some of Greece's most unforgettable fish like red mullet and petalia.

But halibut, striped bass and sea bass can be successfully substituted for Mediterranean fish in traditional recipes like psari plaki (fish baked with tomatoes). Zane includes some intriguing ways to prepare cod, one with spinach and garlic sauce and another with currants.

Each Greek island has its own specialty, like the garides souvlakia (shrimp on skewers) below. Octopus, squid and eel are not uncommon.

PAN, KEEPER OF

THE FLOCKS

If "Greek Cooking for the Gods" is any indication, the eastern corner of the Mediterranean is not without exceptional meat preparation. The recipes range from the elementary "kid on a spit" to artichoke-stuffed chicken and meat sausages in wine sauce. They don't favor beef, which is difficult to sustain, or pork due to the high Muslim population. Meat most often means lamb.

Eggplant stars in dishes throughout the Mediterranean, but none surpasses the fame of Greek moussaka. Some food historians believe that this elaborately layered meat-and-vegetable casserole was adapted from maghnuma, a similar mixture of lamb, onion and eggplant that was common fare on the tables of the 10th century caliphs of Baghdad. The semihard, tangy kefalotyri cheese can be found in Greek delicatessens.

BAKED EGGPLANT WITH LAMB/MOUSSAKA

3 medium eggplants
Salt
½ cup butter
2 pounds ground lamb
Freshly ground pepper to taste
2 onions, chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
½ teaspoon dried fine herbs, crushed
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
1 cup store-bought tomato sauce
½ cup red wine
4 cups store-bought white sauce
3 egg yolks (optional)
Olive oil for frying and for baking dish
About 1½ cups freshly grated kefalotyri OR Parmesan

cheese

Yields 12 servings.

Peel eggplants and cut lengthwise in ½-inch-thick slices. Liberally sprinkle with salt, place on paper towels, weight down with heavy platter, and let stand to drain 30 minutes to 1 hour.

In large skillet over medium-high heat, melt butter. Add lamb, pepper, onions, garlic and salt to taste; saute until meat is evenly browned (about 10 minutes), breaking it up with a fork as it cooks. Add cinnamon, nutmeg, fine herbs, parsley, and tomato sauce; stir, mixing well. Add wine and simmer, uncovered, until liquid is reduced and mixture is quite thick (about 20 minutes). Remove from heat and set aside.

While lamb mixture simmers, prepare white sauce. For a richer sauce, beat optional egg yolks in small bowl and whisk in some of the hot sauce. Add egg mixture to remaining white sauce and whisk to blend well. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Wipe eggplant slices dry. With pastry brush, lightly oil skillet placed over high heat. Quickly fry eggplant slices until golden on both sides but still firm; remove to paper towels to drain. (If you follow this method closely, eggplant will not absorb too much oil.)

Lightly oil 9x13-inch baking dish. Layer half of eggplant in bottom of dish. Spoon lamb mixture over eggplant, sprinkle with layer of cheese, and then top with remaining eggplant. Sprinkle with more cheese and then pour reserved white sauce evenly over casserole. Lavishly sprinkle cheese over top.

Bake until cheese is golden brown (20 to 30 minutes). Do not overcook or eggplant will be too soft. Cool slightly, then cut in 3-inch squares to serve.

• Zucchini variation. For eggplant, substitute 2 pounds zucchini, sliced lengthwise and fried briefly in olive oil.

• Potato variation. For eggplant, substitute 2 pounds of potatoes, cut into ¾-inch-thick slices and fried a few minutes in olive oil.

A mixture of ground beef, grated cheese and minced hard-cooked eggs fills these pastries. If you have fresh filo dough on hand, this recipe can be put together quickly for serving unexpected guests.

MEAT TRIANGLES

(Kreatopetes)

¾ pound lean ground beef
2 tablespoons freshly grated kefalotyri OR Parmesan cheese
1 hard-cooked egg, minced
8 sheets filo dough, thawed overnight in refrigerator if frozen
½ cup butter, melted and cooled
Yields 2 dozen.
Preheat oven to 375 F. In small dry skillet over medium-high heat, saute beef until browned (6 to 8 minutes). In mixing bowl, combine beef, cheese and egg; mix well.
Form triangles, using filo, butter and beef filling, then bake on a baking sheet until lightly browned and hot, about 20 minutes. Cool 2 minutes before serving.

Tips for planting your first patch

Q. What's the best advice for a beginning gardener?

A. While experience is the best teacher, you can always learn from others. Some tips for those just starting out:

- Start small. The first year or two, plan a small patch no larger than 12 square feet. Plan to raise a few varieties of flowers and vegetables that you can sow directly into the garden. It's best to start with favorites. If you enjoy eating peas — plant several rows.

- Know where your water source is located and plant your garden close by. A very common mistake of beginning gardeners is to establish the garden patch too far away from the water source. Who wants to carry buckets of water or drag a hose out to the garden?

- Choose high-yielding and easy-to-grow varieties for your first garden. Try vegetables such as lettuce, carrots, radishes and summer squash. For flowers, consider marigolds, zinnias and alyssum. They are easy to grow from seed and produce reliable, colorful blooms for arrangements all summer long.

- Correct drainage is most important. Even the best soil won't produce if a garden has poor drainage. Raised beds are perfect for water-logged soil, or you can install drainage tiles under the garden; these route the water away from your productive soil.

- Determine the quality of your soil. Good soil is another important factor in successful gardening. Don't worry if your soil is not of top quality, this is one of the easiest things to change! Garden soil lacking in nutrients can be amended by adding organic fertilizer.

Q. Is it true that a toad can work magic in your garden?

A. In three months, a toad can eat up to 10,000 insects! It sleeps during the day and wages war against bugs at night. A toad becomes an adult in one season but waits to mate until age 2 or 3.

Since toads are self-reliant, they require little to keep them healthy and happy. Dampened stones or moist clay pots kept in a cool, quiet corner of the garden will do nicely.

Toads can't tolerate pesticides in their food, so avoid spraying near their area. I think every garden should have a toad!

SURPLUS SEEDLINGS

If you plan to replant surplus seedlings, do so when they have no more than six leaves. Even so, gently lift seedlings by the leaves, never by the stems. A bedding plant label makes a great lifting tool.

Water seedlings before and after planting adding a dose of Miracid, a fertilizer.

Beginning gardeners

- Plant a small patch no larger than 12 square feet.
- Locate your garden close to a water source.
- Plant high-yielding, easy-to-grow crops, such as lettuce, carrots, radishes and summer squash. For flowers, plant marigolds, zinnias and alyssum.
- Use raised beds or drainage tiles to improve soil drainage.

Smart safety tips

Dear Parents: One of the most "plain talk" medical publications I've seen comes out regularly under the heading of Take Good Care of Yourself. A recent issue deals briefly with many topics that fit under its title of "Emergency First Aid Chart." It includes the kind of display that many parents would want to have posted conspicuously or easily available. (It can be obtained at no cost.)

Here are the topics included:

- Severe bleeding, poisoning and shock.

- Burns — first, second, and third degree, plus eye, electrical and chemical burns.

- Poisonous and non-poisonous bites and stings (animal, bee or wasp, black widow or scorpion, snake).

- Electrical shock.

- Foreign objects or chemicals in the eyes.

- Fainting.

- Fractures.

- Head injury/concussion, heart attack, heat exhaustion, seizures.

This information was obtained from the American Heart Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Red Cross.

Q. We have a retarded youngster in our family who is called TMIH (trainable mentally handicapped) at his school. His teachers there have done good work with him, so we are very satisfied.

Still, we are always hoping that more can be done, that he will be able to read more than he does and be better with people, too.

Not long ago we heard of those who are called "six-hour retarded children." What does that mean? Is it possible that our son is one of them? If not, what can we do to have him become one?

A. A "six-hour retarded child" is one who is handicapped only during the school day but who otherwise performs within the normal range.

That means that while he or she is in school, performance is limited because of emotional problems, poor school environment, lack of teaching skills or other limiting factors.

If you feel that what your son is exposed to at school and what you provide for him at home help him reach the limits of his intelligence and abilities, there may be little more that you can do.

But to be sure that his limits really are being reached, continuing communication with his teachers is very important.

What the home and school offer him should be discussed regularly with the school staff and within the family, too.

Fitness Forum

By Charlyn Fargo

There's nothing like nutrition to cause a little confusion.

Take for example, this simple question: Which is lower in fat, roasted chicken or broiled pork loin?

If you answered chicken, you've probably bought into at least a few of these other myths about food:

• Which is better to eat, canola oil or olive oil?

Canola, olive and peanut oils (along with harder-to-find almond, hazelnut and avocado oils) all are classified as monounsaturated fats, says Connie Bussard, a freelance registered dietitian. While canola is the least saturated of any fat (6 percent), it's still a monounsaturated fat, equal in calories to other fats.

"There seems to be some research that if you use more monounsaturated fats, it keeps your cholesterol lower," says Bussard. "But the evidence isn't all that clear that among the monounsaturateds, canola is best."

Polysaturated oils include corn, soybean, sunflower, safflower and cottonseed oils. Saturated fats are those of animal origin, such as butter, the fat in cream and milk, fat in poultry and meat, such as lard.

The exception to the vegetable-oil-is-better rule is tropical oils (coconut, palm and palm kernel oils). While they are vegetable oils, they are highly saturated, like animal fats.

That's good for food manufacturers because saturated fats take a long time to go rancid and stale, but it's bad for consumers because saturated fats in the diet boost blood cholesterol.

• French fries cooked in vegetable oil are better for you than those cooked in beef tallow.

"It doesn't matter," says Bussard. "Fried food still will cause you to gain weight whether it's fried in vegetable oil or beef tallow. People think because it's vegetable oil, it's OK."

Many fast-food restaurants switched from animal fat (beef tallow) to vegetable oil when interest in health issues perked up. It's been an expensive change, says Bussard.

"Animal fats were used a great deal by fast-food restaurants because the oil didn't burn or break down easily," says Bussard.

"When fast-food restaurants went from beef tallow to all-vegetable fats, they went from changing the oil in their fryers one time a week to having to empty their fryers three times a week. That's costing a lot more."

• Thin people can eat all they want and not gain weight.

That's simply not true, even though it may appear to be so, says Bussard.

"Skinny people have a natural selection of lower-calorie food," she adds. "They eat only when they're hungry, stop when they're full and often leave food on their plates and think nothing of it."

"They may or may not have a higher metabolism, but even if they do, it's only slightly higher."

In taking diet histories from the spouses of thin people, Bussard has found the internal cues of when and what to eat seem to be different in those who successfully control their weight.

• Chicken is a smarter choice than beef or pork.

That depends on the breeding of the animal, nutritionists say. Chicken fried to a crunch or smothered in gravy might be higher in calories and fat than a trimmed steak.

The calories-from-fat breakdown for various meats is: skinless roasted chicken, 35 percent; batter-fried chicken with skin, 54 percent; broiled top round of beef, 42 percent; roasted pork tenderloin, 26 percent.

Some people think red meat is not part of a healthy diet.

• Taking vitamins and minerals give you more energy.

"As a nutritive substance, vitamins and minerals are enablers," says Bussard. "They help the chemical process. It's the carbohydrates, protein and fat that give you energy."

There's another aspect to taking vitamins, however.

"If people want to feel better, sometimes that perceived effect is enough to make a difference."

• The best way to lose weight is to diet.

A diet, says Bussard, is a way to lower calorie intake.

"The best way to keep weight off is to make a lifestyle change. A lifestyle change is one of those things you have to keep working at."

"Finally you reach a point where when you do different eating — slipping back into the old habits — and your system isn't used to it anymore."

• Drinking a Diet Coke with a chocolate chip cookie defeats the purpose.

On the contrary, Bussard thinks switching from regular Coke to sugar-free might be wise if you're a person who consumes a lot of soda.

"You have to fit whatever you eat into your overall daily intake," says Bussard. "It's the same as eating fat-free pastry. It has a place, but it isn't without calories."

For overweight people who need to lose weight and keep it off, fat-free pastries may be too tempting.

For people who have never had a weight problem, but need to lower their fat because of cholesterol, fat-free products might be the way to do it.

Bussard looks at artificial sweeteners the same way: "There's a place for them, especially with diabetics, but they're not an edge to losing weight."

Soda has surpassed coffee as the national beverage of choice.

"Switching to a diet beverage may be a first step if you want to manage your weight," says Bussard.

Seasonal fruit is just peachy

Peach flavor is as delicate as dew and lasts about as long. Fresh peach season is not much longer. Not for me frozen or dried. Fresh have it all over anything else, and I'm willing to wait.

When I do spot fresh peaches just coming onto the market, I look for those with cream or yellow background. Not every variety of peach gets rosy cheeks when it ripens.

About two days at room temperature and peaches had better be eaten or cooked. They aren't much good kept longer than that. Remember, they never get any riper. They do get softer, juicier, but the original flavor is the same as when that peach came home from the store.

The nice thing about peaches is that they taste almost as good cooked, frozen in ice cream, broiled, poached or baked as they do eaten out of hand, and that's pretty good. Trouble is, if, like me, you love them, the season is just too short to enjoy all the peaches I'd like to.

That's why I've tossed in a few of my favorite recipes. Do peaches up this way when you're tired of eating them raw and just see how good they are.

PEACH WHIP

2 pounds (8 to 10) ripe peaches
1 or 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 or 2 tablespoons honey
1 egg
Yields 6 servings.

Each serving has about 80 calories, 1 gram fat, 46 milligrams cholesterol and 12 milligrams sodium.

Drop peaches into boiling water for 20 seconds and then plunge into cold water. Remove skins and cut peaches into quarters. Puree in food processor with lemon juice, almond extract and vanilla.

Spoon into saucepan and add honey. Heat through, stirring, until mixture begins to simmer. Stir for about 5 minutes, making sure puree doesn't stick. Remove from heat and cool.

Beat egg in bowl and stir into puree. Return to heat and heat through over low heat, stirring constantly for about 3 or 4 minutes. Be careful that mixture doesn't boil or egg will curdle. Spoon into serving dish or individual cups and refrigerate for a couple of hours.

BAKED PEACHES

3 pounds (12 to 15) peaches
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
Yields 6 servings.

Each serving has about 100 calories, 22 gram fat, no cholesterol and a trace of sodium.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Lightly butter 2-quart baking dish. Blanch peaches in boiling water for 20 seconds, then plunge them into cold water and remove skins. Pit and slice. Toss with remaining ingredients in baking dish. Bake in preheated oven for 45 minutes to an hour. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. In an effort to weatherize our home and make it more energy efficient, we recently added insulation and weatherstripping and tightly sealed any openings. However, since then I have noticed that the air inside is often stale and odors seem to remain longer. Is there something we can do to combat this situation, or is it the price you have to pay for being more energy efficient?

A. In our constant battle against rising energy costs, we sometimes lose sight of a harmful result of airtight houses — indoor air pollution. The problems you describe are typical with tightly sealed homes.

One way to solve them would be to install an air-to-heat exchanger, which draws in fresh outdoor air and exhausts stale air, exchanging heat between the two airflow systems as they pass through the machine. However, you may find that this is an expensive option.

An alternative would be to use an outdoor air intake on your furnace. This allows outdoor air to flow in when there is a negative pressure in the home, as there can be when a wood stove or furnace is running or when you're using exhaust fans.

Outdoor air intakes for furnaces and air-to-air heat exchangers are available from heating and air-conditioning parts suppliers. If you are reluctant to install either device, keep in mind that good ventilation can be improved by just keeping some windows partially open.

Q. I read your column concerning information on the importance of gutters and the types available. My problem is that my existing gutter system keeps getting clogged and water runs over the edge.

I am a widow and I am unable to inspect and clean the gutters myself. Do you know what might be the problem and how it can be resolved? The gutter system is old and may need to be replaced. However, I would like some advice before I contact someone to inspect the system. I don't want to replace the gutters unless its necessary.

A. It may be that your gutters are sagging in some areas. Low spots will trap organic matter and cause clogging.

Sagging gutters can be corrected. Determine the location of a low spot by running water through the gutter and watching for any accumulation. If your gutter system has metal brackets, the bracket can be bent up slightly at the point nearest the low spot in the sun.

If the gutter system is secured by long nails and ferrules (metal cylinders), one or two nails may have to be removed and relocated to raise the gutter system.

Clogging also could be caused by excessive debris buildup. Numerous trees in the area compound the problem of keeping gutters clean. Some homeowners circumvent this problem by installing screens over their gutters. Screen-wire mesh comes in rolls and can be attached over the tops of gutters with clips or screws to keep debris out. Debris shields also are available in vinyl and they simply snap into place.

Shields can reduce the number of times you have to clean gutters, but they can also cause problems if you live in a colder climate. The screens tend to hold ice and snow, which can cause damage to both the roof and soffit as well as the house exterior.

If you decide to have the gutters replaced, there are new plastic systems available that have been designed to maintain the water flow and eliminate gutter-clogging and debris buildup. Permaflow Gutter Guard System and the Raingo Self Cleaning Gutter System are two such products.

Small space can become home office

Q. With the arrival of our second baby, I've decided to start working at home full time (as if anyone with two babies doesn't). The problem is finding office space and making it businesslike enough to work for me (I'm a typical Virgo and must have things in order). Do you have any advice on home offices? — O.R.G.

A. Just because one works at home — an option more and more of us are exercising in these days of easy electronic communications — you don't have to settle for a makeshift office stuck off in the corner of your bedroom. (In fact, psychologists warn married people against working in their bedroom. Seems that old taboo about "office romances" holds even at home.)

Potential office space may be waiting in the attic or garage. Even a hallway or stair landing can often be pressed into service, as long as it offers pleasant working conditions. Don't set up shop in your basement, for example, if being underground depresses you. Your new office should be as cheery, comfortable and efficient as possible or, warn experienced work-at-homes, you'll find every excuse to stay out of it.

Be all business when you furnish your at-home office. Avoid hand-me-downs unless they offer such workaday amenities as generous desk space for your computer and peripherals, good lighting and commodious storage.

Don't worry that you'll need venture capital just to set up. Check out the inexpensive, ready-to-assemble home office furnishings available for stay-at-home workers, like the R-T-A pieces from Sauder Woodworking in this photo.

Set up in a second-floor hallway, they make an almost-instant and highly efficient home office you can buy for less than $600 (plus the cost of a good screwdriver).

Rose Bennett Gilbert is the co-author of "Manhattan Style" and associate editor of Country Decorating Ideas.

EASY OFFICE — With a screwdriver and a few square feet in a hallway, you can set up a home office furnished with ready-to-assemble pieces.

Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked St. Jude, pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen. Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys, 3 Glorias. Say for 9 consecutive days. Publication must be promised. This novena has never been known to fail. Thank you for answering my prayers. V.J.S.

HOLY SPIRIT YOU WHO SOLVE all problems, who light all roads, so that I can obtain my goals. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evils against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you ever in spite of all material illusions. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Say for 3 consecutive days after which the favor requested will be granted even if it appears difficult. This prayer must be published immediately. Thank you Holy Spirit. L.C.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I couldn't help but respond to the Sept. 10th article by a Mr. Goldstone, concerning the public tendency to bash lawyers. I couldn't help but think it odd that anyone should take the trouble to defend lawyers. It's not as if lawyers are likely to wind up on the endangered species list. Still, since Mr. Goldstone did happen to go to the trouble, I think I need to trouble myself enough to make a response on behalf of those who engage in what he calls lawyer bashing.

Personally, I'm sure that the tendency to become a lawyer isn't comparable to any tendency to become a hired assassin. It's clear that these two tendencies are vastly different in terms of the ways in which they manifest themselves. It's possible such tendencies have similar origins, but the resultant consequences remain distinct in the sense that those who fall victim to paid assassins wind up dead, while those victimized by lawyers only wind up wishing they were.

It's clear that, even while I'm trying to be serious, the temptation to make jokes about lawyers is irresistible. How is it possible to explain the nature of this temptation? Should I even attempt to explain it? Such temptations serve as a breeding ground for pretension. Still, it's possible that this breeding ground is the same area from which Mr. Goldstone's article arose. In terms of seriously explaining and exploring a subject that is inherently frivolous, it's possible I might arrive at new heights of absurdity. It would seem, however, that Mr. Goldstone has arrived on that height ahead of me, and pitched his flag on its summit. Well, if the man has gone to all that trouble to pitch his flag then the least I can do is blow my nose in it.

The real question is why would anyone go to so much trouble to defend the legal profession. It occurs to me that Mr. Goldstone's article is something of an overreaction, and I'm not completely sure what it is he's overreacting to. It seems to me that lawyers and the legal profession are fairly represented in the media. More often than not, lawyers are portrayed as selflessly defending the underdog. Look at Perry Mason, Judd for the Defense, and, more recently, L.A. Law and the Law with Michael Moriarty. If lawyer's are getting a bum rap then from what source does this reputation arise? It doesn't seem to be coming from television.

Is it possible that the public has formed an opinion of a subject outside of what's represented by the media? If so, then isn't this a rare and precious event to be cherished for its uniqueness? The idea that people might shape an opinion outside the realm of media representation is sufficient cause for me to pause and catch my breath? If such an opinion has been formed independent of media forces then this is something that needs to be studied and examined by people with the knowledge and skills to do so. Until such a study takes place, however, I'll just go on making jokes about the subject.

If, as Mr. Goldstone says, lawyers are unfairly represented then who, if not the media, is responsible. It seems that a certain stereotype has come to exist in the public imagination. It seems that there is significant number of people who view lawyers as sleazy charlatans. What is it about this particular stereotype that makes it so available to the public mind? Why is it that everyone seems to agree that lawyers represent a class of people it's all right to dislike?

Why is it that the image of the legal profession seems to exist in an atmosphere of invective and hatred? Mr. Goldstone likes to quote Shakespeare in defense of the legal profession. Mr. Goldstone should realize, however, that Shakespeare also managed to find a way to make Richard the Third sympathetic, and this was a man who ruthlessly murdered his brother and two nephews. Ah, there I go, comparing lawyers to murderers again. While such comparisons are unconscious, they also seem to be inevitable.

Mr. Goldstone seems to have a problem with comedians making jokes about lawyers. I wonder why this is, since lawyers certainly don't represent an oppressed class. Considering the fact that the legal profession can be a highly lucrative one, many lawyers can afford to laugh all the way to the bank. Still, Mr. Goldstone finds reason to take exception to those who would poke fun at the legal profession. Mr. Goldstone should take care with this, since, while it's easy to ridicule lawyers, it's as equally easy to ridicule those who would defend them.

I think that Mr. Goldstone might better invest his time in other interests, since defending the legal profession is something better left to lawyers themselves. After all, considering the nature of the profession and the nature of the training to which they're subjected, it would seem clear that lawyers are best left to defend themselves.

Sincerely
Brian Reilly

Devil and Cards pitcher

Q. My father received a Devil and Cards china pitcher in 1909. It is 6 1/4 inches tall, brightly colored, and in perfect condition. Marked in blue on the bottom are the words, "Royal Bayreuth - Bavaria."

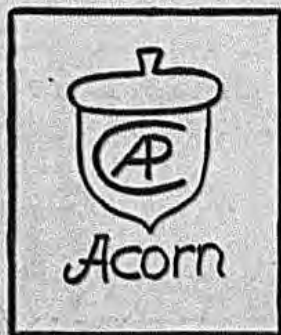

In all my travels I have never seen anything even similar to it. Would you please give me some information about it and its value?

A. Royal Bayreuth was founded in Tettau, Bavaria, Germany in 1794. The Devil and Cards, Sunbonnet Babies, and Rose Tapestry were some of the novelty pieces they produced. The Devil and Cards items were made primarily for export and available in a wide range of items that included ashtrays, pitchers, candy dishes and plates. The blue mark indicates your pitcher was made in the early 1900s. The value would be $400 to $500.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a small vase that I recently found in a box in my mother's attic. My vase is 7 inches high, has mottled brown glaze and is decorated with flowers. I was told it could be rare and unusual.

Any information you can give me I would appreciate.

A. This vase was made by Cambridge Art Pottery in Cambridge, Ohio. The company was small and produced very good art pottery, between 1900 and 1910. Much of their ware has a brown glaze and everything was carefully marked. The market is not flooded with this pottery, so it is a nifty find. Your vase would probably sell in the $115 to $125 range in good condition.

Q. My mother gave me a Currier & Ives picture that belonged to her parents. Across the bottom of the picture are the words "Published by Currier & Ives - 1871 - Entered according to Act of Congress in the Office of the Library of Congress at Washington, 125 Nassau, New York." The title of the picture is "Little White Kitties into Mischief." What do you think my print is worth?

A. Currier & Ives published their lithographs from 1857 to 1907. The mark on each print included the street address in New York City and the date of the original issue. Their prints were a reliable documentation of everyday life in the middle to late 1800s. Some of the typical scenes are of sailing ships, winter landscapes, hunting and fishing. According to the issue date on your print, it was most likely made in 1871. Depending on the size, an original Currier & Ives print of "The Little White Kitties into Mischief" would probably be valued about $135 to $150 in good condition.

Q. A small porcelain pitcher and toothbrush holder were given to me about 45 years ago. They are white and decorated with blue flowers. I think they were part of a wash bowl and pitcher set and appear to be very old. Marked on the bottom of each piece is a crown and the words "Princess - Royal Semi Porcelain - Wood and Son - England."

Could you tell me something about these pieces?

A. Wash sets were popular during the 19th and early 20th century. Usually a set included a pitcher, large bowl, soap dish, toothbrush holder, sponge holder, small pitcher and slop pail. Princess is the name of the pattern. Your pitcher and toothbrush holder were made by Wood & Sons of Burslem, Staffordshire, England between 1891 and 1907. The two pieces would probably be worth about $55 to $65 in good condition.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We recently purchased a parrot from a neighbor who was moving from town. However, we really do not know very much about pet birds. What are the most common signs of illness in birds? We would hate to miss an early sign of disease and let our bird suffer needlessly.

A. Early signs of illness in birds often go unnoticed because of their natural instinct to mask illnesses. It is thought by many authorities that this is a survival technique in wild birds.

One of the earliest signs of illness in birds is a change in the character of their droppings. A bird's droppings consist of three parts: feces, urine and urates.

The color and consistency of the feces varies with different diets. Usually the color is green, black or brown.

Urine normally is clear. Birds on diets high in fruit and vegetable matter have increased volumes of urine. Urates usually appear as creamy white paste.

Other signs of illness in birds include increases or decreases in food and/or water consumption, changes of personality, changes in appearance, changes in respiration, enlargements or swelling of the body, vomiting and discharges from the eyes, nostrils and mouth.

If any of these signs are seen, your bird should be examined by a veterinarian. By the time a bird is showing signs of illness, it has most likely already been sick for awhile. Therefore, it is important not to delay in getting professional help.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last week I had a dozen rolls that had gone stale. My son and I decided the best thing to do would be to throw them out on the back lawn for the birds.

I did this and a few minutes later went back thinking perhaps I should have broken the rolls up a bit so the birds could manage them better. To my surprise the lawn was covered with huge blackbirds that had descended for the feast. I did not want to frighten them away, but I came back twenty minutes later to see if they had any trouble with the rolls. Amazingly enough there wasn't a single roll left!

Your friend,

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

SSI eligibility

By William M. Acosta

Q. A few days ago I saw a poster that advised individuals 65 or over with limited income and resources to apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) at any Social Security office. Next month I'll turn 65 and I thought I'd be eligible for SSI, so I planned to apply until my neighbor told me I'd probably be turned down because I have children who could help support me. Is this true? — S.T.

A. No. Your eligibility for SSI would not be affected by your children's ability to help support you. But, any support they give you would be considered income for SSI purposes and could affect the amount of your payment. For more information, contact your nearest Social Security office or call Social Security's toll-free number, (800) 772-1213.

Q. My neighbor, who is retired, told me that the income he receives from his part-time job has given him an increase in his benefit, in addition to his annual cost-of-living increase. Is this possible? — F.V.

A. Yes. Individuals who return to work after they start receiving benefits may be able to receive a higher benefit based on those earnings. Social Security automatically refigures the benefit amount after the additional earnings are credited to the individual's earnings record. The earnings can be an advantage as long as they do not exceed the exempt amount.

Q. I am blind. Are there special Social Security rules I should know about? — K.C.

A. Yes, there are. Call Social Security's toll-free number (800) 772-1213, and ask for a copy of the new booklet, "If You're Blind...How Social Security and Supplemental Security Income Can Help." It's available in large print, braille and a recorded format.

Q. I've never worked in jobs that were covered by Social Security. I heard that even though I don't have any Social Security credits, I can still get Medicare. How do I arrange this? — M.S.

A. You can get Medicare hospital insurance at age 65 by signing up for it and paying the monthly premium. If you buy Medicare hospital insurance, you also have to sign up for Medicare medical insurance and pay its premiums. You should get in touch with the toll-free number, (800) 772-1213 and schedule an appointment to file for Medicare or if you have any other questions.
