The action followed a growing number of reported clashes with US-led UN forces in numerous Somali locations. The US continued to press for the UN to take command of the military coalition, saying Somalia is ready for a UN peacekeeping force.

Fit Kids Celebrate Dutch's Anniversary

By John W. Garger

Several of Hicksville's elementary schools are celebrating their 40th anniversary this year with special events and fundraisers. Dutch Lane School PTA put on an anniversary celebration event last Wednesday that was both entertaining and healthy.

Entitled "Fit For Kids," the celebration/fundraiser sponsored by the Dutch Lane School PTA, had both parents and children dancing and exercising to music. Fitness instructors Mandy Laderer and Joanne Contegiacomo, led the Dutch Lane students, parents, and alumni in activities that kept the participants moving, smiling, laughing, and at the same time improving their overall health.

"Shaping Up For Another 40 Years" was the theme of the Fit For Kids celebration, and with the enthusiasm displayed during the evening many present students will have a lot of fond memories. "This school is one of the reasons why I moved here," said Laderer as she began the program. She recently moved to Hicksville and has a child in Dutch Lane. "I was impressed with the school and teachers and the special welcome they gave me," she added. Several alumni of Dutch Lane recalled memories of their years at the school, several of them have children presently attending their alma mater.

DUTCH LANE'S STUDENTS, parents, and alumni were "Shaping Up For Another 40 Years" at the Fit Kids Night, held to celebrate the 40th Anniversary of Dutch Lane School. During the evening two local fitness instructors showed the students that exercising can be fun.

Cathy Doyle, who helped organize the Fit For Kids celebration, said Mr. Smith, a sixth grade teacher who just retired, was one of her favorites. She has five children, three who went to Dutch Lane and two currently attending, so Dutch Lane has been a part of her life for many years. "Close Knit" is how she described the school community. The graduates of the school are chronicled in the hallways.

When Cathy Doyle went to Dutch Lane, the graduating class put plaques and scrolls with their signatures on the walls. More recent classes have their names and class photos.

Cathy's husband, Buzz Doyle, also attended Dutch Lane. He remarked how well kept the school was. When he attended some classes were held in the extensions that were attached to the east side of the building. He said that he never had classes in the extensions. His daughter Christine's favorite memories include the sixth grade class trip to Boston and her fourth grade teacher Ms. Richer. She is a senior at the high school.

Kathleen Lyons graduated from Dutch Lane in 1970. She and her classmates thought it was fun to have classes in the temporary structures. She also remembers the school children planting trees in front of the school and dedicating them to two music teachers who died only several years apart. One teacher that she still remembers is Ms. Kiley, her kindergarten teacher. Kathleen's son, Shaun, a fifth grader at Dutch Lane also had Ms. Kiley.

Shaun and his friends took a couple of minutes out of the activities to say how much fun they were having. Eddie, a fifth grader, liked the part when the Theme from Rocky was played and everyone act-

School District Facing Cut In State Aid

By John W. Garger

Governor Mario Cuomo's executive budget proposal released last week would mean a loss of $531,947 to the Hicksville School District, if it is adopted.

The governor's proposal for state aid to schools is aimed at reforming the present system and making the distribution of funds fairer for both upstate and Long Island Schools, but superintendents on Long Island feel he missed the mark.

"The proposal is horrendous," said Superintendent of Hicksville Schools Salvatore Mugavero. Under the proposal Hicksville's aid will be reduced 9.63 percent. Neighboring school districts have been hit just as hard. Jericho School District's aid would be reduced 12.04 percent, Syosset's 10.53 percent, and Oyster Bay-East Norwich's 7.64 percent. "The time is long overdue for the governor to get realistic and stop hurting Long Island School districts," Mugavero added. The governor's proposal would cut as much as 12 percent or more from the amounts given Long Island schools last year.

Senate Majority Leader Ralph J. Marino spoke out against the governor's proposal and seemingly lack of concern for suburban school districts. "I will use the complete power of my office to prevent these cuts from being implemented as planned," said Marino. Out of a total statewide cut of $130 million from school aid, the governor's proposal takes $70 million from suburban districts including those on Long Island, and in Westchester County, according to Marino.

In announcing the formulas, Cuomo said that "the average per pupil expenditure for New York's public schools was $8,658 - third highest in the US and well above the national average of $5,466. State funding for elementary and secondary education, including special education, represents New York's single largest expenditure (in excess of $8 billion in 1991-92)."

Cuomo continued "we've always been generous in our support of education - at every level. We will be again." At the same time he said that he would use his powers under the Moreland Act to appoint a special commission to investigate and report on how the more than $8 billion New York State spends on education is used.

The governor's budget proposes the consolidation of 15 school aid formulas into one comprehensive operating aid formula, which would bring together such items as BOCES, transportation, operating expenses, and allotments for gifted and talented students.

Cuomo wants to apply to the formula what he called "a regional cost index" and to adjust state aid "according to the relative tax effort demonstrated in a school district." He also proposed increased incentives to encourage school consolidations and shared services.

"As school aid and budget negotiations proceed, I will insist that we consider real reform, not just a selective and prejudicial version of it, in order to accomplish the fairness and equity in education funding that we all agree is necessary," said Marino.

"The governor is seeking to lock into the school aid formula a permanent, anti-suburban bias that would penalize Long Island for years to come. The partisan nature of his aid formula changes is evident in the fact that New York City schools would gain a $6 million aid increase next year while Long Island schools absorb a $60 million loss," Marino said.

The governor's proposal must be approved by the state legislature. Given Marino's statement, that approval is not at all certain.

(A. Anthony Miller contributed to this story.)

"Our goal is to have the children actually participate as parishioners in both practice and stewardship."

Hicksvillite To Persian Gulf

Navy Airman Robert Silvia, son of Kathleen Silvia of 18 S. Elm St., recently left Somalia for the Persian Gulf with Air Anti-Submarine Squadron-37, homeported in San Diego, CA as part of the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk battle group. The squadron is supporting the enforcement of the "no-fly" zone cover over southern Iraq in response to recent incursions by Iraqi aircraft.

The squadron, embarked aboard the Kitty Hawk, was part of a three ship task group that was ordered to Somalia to replace the aircraft carrier USS Ranger and its three ship task group in support of the relief effort Operation Restore Hope. The squadron spent nine days involved in the relief effort, playing a significant role in the ability of multi-national forces to secure all eight key relief centers in the famine-stricken country.

The recent tasks of the squadron are textbook examples of the Navy and Marine Corps team exercising their traditional expeditionary roles. On short notice, Naval Expeditionary Forces are poised to respond to crises in distant lands, from the sea.

Catholic School's Celebration

By John W. Garger

"Catholic Schools: The Good News In Education" is the theme that Hicksville's three Catholic elementary schools will use to celebrate Catholic School's Week, from Jan. 31 to Feb. 6.

The three schools, St. Ignatius Loyola, Holy Family, and Our Lady of Mercy, each share in the proud history of Hicksville and contribute to the betterment of our community.

Holy Family School, located on Fordham Rd., was dedicated in September of 1960, just 11 months after the groundbreaking ceremony. Holy Family Parish only opened nine years earlier. Originally in the jurisdiction of St. Ignatius Parish, the increase in population in Hicksville after World War II, made it necessary to establish Holy Family Parish in 1951 and subsequently the school.

To the liking of the students, the first day of classes in 1960 was delayed because of Hurricane Diane. But the children were welcomed to school the next day by Sister Petronilla, the founding principal, and Monsignor O'Day, the founding Pastor.

The school has had only two other principals in its short history. Sister Tarcisius was the second principal of the school, who was replaced 23 years ago by the present principal, Sister Eileen McMahon.

The present day school boasts of many accomplishments and innovative programs. It was awarded the Presidential Excellence In Education Award in 1989-90 and has many longtime and dedicated faculty, according to Sister Elaine, a teacher at the school. "The parents involvement is also a plus. Whenever help is needed, they are right there," said Sister Elaine.

Holy Family has an enrichment program for the seventh and eighth grades that includes a regents biology course and a sequential mathematics one course. Students can take computer literacy classes starting in the third grade and first through sixth graders participate in a growing healthy program that develops both a healthy attitude toward the self both psychologically and physically.

An innovative math program has the fifth and sixth grade students doing book reports on mathematical subjects, such as the history of mathematics and the metric system. Students also can take Spanish classes and participate in the school chorus.

Holy Family has classes from pre-K to eighth grade and has seen a steady enrollment of over 600 students.

St. Ignatius Loyola School was founded in 1907. The original school, fronting Broadway stood next to the church. It was opened, to 104 students, by Rev. Lawrence Fuchs, and he administered it for three years until Sister Bonaventure and Sister Honorata, Amityville Dominican Sisters, arrived. Sister Bonaventure became the school's first principal and was succeeded by 11 other Dominican Sisters until 1984 when Ms. Jacqueline Burdi, a lay principal became administrator.

In 1923, what is now called the "Old School" was erected at a cost of $100,000. Hicksville residents made it a community project by volunteering to do all the excavation work themselves. The school had a large auditorium and 10 classrooms and held 350 students. By 1926, a staff of nine sisters and one lay person was instructing 485 students.

An addition to the old school was built in 1949. Built to house the kindergarten programs today it houses the school's library. Again in 1953 an addition was built. Two classrooms were added to the front of the school and a third was remodeled. For the 1953-54 school year, St. Ignatius had the highest enrollment of all county schools with 1,258 students.

In 1961 a third school was dedicated. It stands today on East Cherry St. With the opening of the new school an additional 550 students were added to the enrollment, bringing the total to 1,600 pupils. The bishop had requested that there be no more than 50 students to a class in 1961, which is more than double the class sizes of today.

St. Ignatius has seen increasing enrollment over the past several years according to principal Jacqueline Burdi. The 345 students have access to a computer laboratory and the seventh and eighth grades are taught computer skills as well as having other areas of instruction integrated with computer instruction. The computers are also used by the eighth grade in preparing a graduating class yearbook. Along with typical auxiliary courses such as art, music, and library sciences, St. Ignatius has a foreign language enrichment program and a school choir. A new science lab will also be completed this year.

In addition to pre-K through eighth grade classes, the school boasts of a nursery school program for three-year-olds. St. Ignatius also offers a full-day kindergarten class.

The school's principal, Ms. Burdi, has a high regard for her predecessors. She feels the Dominican Sisters have laid a solid foundation at St. Ignatius that is still very evident today. "Our goal is to have the children actually participate as parishioners in both practice and stewardship," said Burdi. She points out that the students participate in the first Friday Mass of every month doing readings, petitions, and joining in song. Academic standards are high at the school. "Those academic functions are coupled clearly with training our children in Catholic practices and inculcating them with Church traditions to enhance faith formation," said Ms. Burdi. She added that "We have the presence of education oriented priests who interact with our children both in the instructional setting and informally."

Our Lady of Mercy School, located on South Oyster Bay Road, was also carved out of the original St. Ignatius Parish jurisdiction. The parish was founded in 1953, and nine short years later the school was officially opened.

Our Lady of Mercy School has always had the constant and loyal help of the church parishioners. The congregation raised $550,000 for erection of the school building, that was $50,000 more than the goal set by Pastor Schwebius.

Sr. Mary Natalie was the principal at the school's opening in January of 1962, she was reassigned that same year and replaced by Sister Mary Thecla. It was during the term of Sister Thecla that many of the traditions and the reputation of Our Lady of Mercy School became firmly established in the community.

As was evident with the fundraising campaign for the founding of the school, family involvement has always been a cornerstone. Mother-volunteers serve as recess supervisors, others serve as library

Dr. Michael and Eileen Garger

Michael Garger Weds Eileen Rose

More than 250 family members and friends celebrated the marriage of Dr. Michael Garger and Eileen Rose, at a memorable ceremony and reception held at Anam's in Hicksville.

Right from the start, Mike and Eileen put their own personal touches on the wedding. During the ceremony, Mike and Eileen exchanged vows that they had written themselves; a friend, Leslie O'Horowitz read a poem that he had written for the bride and groom; another friend, Fran Goldenberg sang Rising In Love; and Eileen's sister Linda read an Apache wedding prayer. At the end of the ceremony the newlyweds strutted down the aisle to the tune of James Brown's I Feel Good!

Immediately following the ceremony, family and friends joined the happy couple for a reception that featured, Rythm

Ignition, a eight piece band that had everyone on the dance floor.

Attending Eileen was her daughter Abby Daito, the maid of honor, and bridesmaids Stacey Feldman, Diane Fishman, Ellen Silverstein, Regina Perman, and Eileen's sister Linda Schellin. The best man was Mike's brother Tom Garger. The groom's other brothers, John, Jim, Mike, and Andy, along with his friends Mike Harvey and Mike O'Grady served as ushers.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Garger of Hicksville. Eileen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Rose formerly of Brooklyn, now residing in Florida. Dr. Garger is a chiropractor with an office in Hicksville. Eileen is an art teacher in the Valley Stream School District. The happy couple are presently residing in Valley Stream.

Kiwanians Mark International's 78th Year

Hicksville Kiwanis members celebrated Kiwanis International's 78th birthday during Kiwanis Anniversary Week, January 17-23. They also marked the 75th anniversary of Kiwanis in New York State.

The occasion was celebrated recently with a formal presentation of a large donation to the newly formed Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset. This new center offers the highest level of care available to injured children, and is made possible by contributions from Kiwanis Clubs in the Long Island/Metropolitan area.

The first Kiwanis Club was chartered in Detroit, MN and has grown to 8,900 clubs and 330,000 members in 83 countries around the world. Clubs sponsor community service projects and raise funds to meet local needs.

Hicksville Kiwanis serves our community in many ways, including: sponsorship of a Boy Scout Troop, student scholarships, supporting athletic programs, and providing assistance to families and children in need. The recent holiday season was an especially busy time with food baskets donated to local families, a clothing drive, a Christmas party and visit from Santa for needy local children, and the sponsorship of a young girl from Lima, Peru in need of a life saving heart operation.

Last year, Kiwanis Clubs around the world raised and spent more than $65 million and donated more than 22 million volunteer hours on community service activities, with special emphasis on meeting the needs of young children. Membership is open to all area residents and employees who share a special concern for service to the Hicksville community.

KIDS PLAY

What You Think Is The Best Of 1992

At the close of last year, we put some questions to our Kids Play readers. We wanted to know who they thought was the best, what they liked the most.

And, we heard from many of them. What follows are the tops for the year, from the Kids Play perspective.

1. Best male singer: Michael Jackson got the most votes, with Axle Rose of Guns and Roses and Anthony Kiedes of Red Hot Chili Peppers.

Best female singer: Whitney Houston took first in an overwhelming vote. Paula Abdul snagged second place and Madonna came in a distant third.

2. Best actor honors went to Martin Lawrence of the television show of the same name, with Tim Allen and Ed O'Neill also gaining support.

Best actress: One of the closest ones in the poll, but Rosanne managed to edge out contenders Christina Applegate, Tisha Campbell, Candice Bergen and Mayim Bialik.

3. King of the cartoons is Ren and Stimpy. Tiny Toons just barely grabbed second place away from Bobby's World.

4. Who wins the cartoon popularity contest? Babs Bunny beat out Mr. Personality himself, Homer Simpson, and Bobby of the show of the same name.

5. Then we hit the kids with a tough question: what's your favorite subject? While we expected to see a lot of blanks, it seems school is a fun place for our readers. The top subject is history (social studies). Much to our surprise, computer class was less popular than math and English, the second and third place choices.

6. Snacking is a very individual art, we found. There was no clear winner in this category at all, but, since we have to, we're giving the top honors to potato chips. What we did learn was that today's kids are healthier than we thought, with a couple even listing apples.

7. No category told us more about the healthful habits of our Kids Play readers than the "favorite cereal." After reviewing the replies, we know why the cereal aisle at the supermarket is so crowded. Again, it was hard for us to pick a clear winner, as just a handful of votes separated the nominees. But, for 1992, our Kids Play readers say that Honey Nut Cheerios are the best, followed by Frosted Flakes and Golden Grahams.

8. There was no competition in the video game category. Sega Genesis is the best there is by far, with Super Nintendo coming in a very distant second.

(See next week's issue for the remainder of our 1992 winners.)

ACTING OUT the story Stone Soup are ESL students Peggy Bastouns, Monica Chuchon, James Mao, Mrs. LaBarbera, and Norberto Cabarcas.

Innovative Programs Help ESL Students

The third grade English as a Second Language students in Mrs. LaBarbera's program at Lee Avenue School recently dramatized the story Stone Soup for Mrs. Geandomenico's afternoon kindergarten class.

The ESL students read the story and acted it out, props and all! The kindergarten children were learning about healthy foods and were very interested in the ingredients in stone soup. Each child ate a delicious bowl of hot soup containing all the healthy ingredients from the story.

The ESL students at Old Country Road School held their third annual International Lunch. The students in Mrs. Helene Stopek's class performed favorite folk tales and entertained family and friends with original stories about their native countries.

Family members in turn provided authentic foods from their native countries for the luncheon. The students and their guests sampled delicacies from India, Bangladesh, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Columbia, Korea, Russia, Turkey, and the Philippines.

The group was pleasantly surprised when Mr. Llantia, a parent in the group, sang songs about New York, his new home. Students and families enjoyed sharing this warm and enriching educational experience.

The students in Fork Lane School have also started an interesting ESL program. Anxious to help their new classmates learn how to speak and read English, third graders at Fork Lane devised a valuable way to share their reading skills.

The students in Mrs. Anne Bergeron's class recorded on cassettes popular easy reading books from the school library. ESL students can now hear their classmates narrate favorite stories as they read along in the book.

aides. Several parents also serve on the parish school board and advise the principal and pastor on the needs of the parents and students.

Sister Margaret O'Connor replaced Sister Thecla in 1968. Sister O'Connor served until 1970, when Sister Kathleen Hennessy was appointed principal. It was under the direction of Sister Hennessy that the first school board was established.

The current principal, Sister Joanne Deegan, brought her own style of leadership to a thriving and well established school. Since she has taken over Our Lady of Mercy School has been awarded an United States Department of Education's Elementary School Recognition Award, and a New York State Education Department recognition award.

The school has a structured music program for grades kindergarten through sixth, and also boasts of a Glee Club and an instrumental music program that is the largest in the diocese. Sister Joanne has also introduced a Pre-k program, computer literacy program and Computer Center/Research Room. The school also has the latest in gymnastics equipment.

Under the leadership of the principal and Pastor Monsignor Boesel, Our Lady of Mercy looks forward to a future as bright as its past.

ed out boxing moves. Fifth grader Jessica's favorite part was called freeze frame. Their friend Tim said that he was having a good time and would do it again.

Kathleen Pascucci, an alumni of Dutch Lane, attended the anniversary celebration, but doesn't have any kids attending the school. She was there with her sister. Kathleen wanted to help celebrate the anniversary because she remembers coming to Hicksville when she was in the fifth grade. "It was a smooth transition. The staff was very warm and helpful," she said. Her children now attend school in a neighboring district, but she will always remember the people at Dutch Lane fondly.

Money raised from admission to the event will be used for student enrichment programs. The idea behind the evening was to celebrate Dutch's 40th anniversary, raise some money for PTA functions, and get the kids to have fun exercising. All three goals were met.

Building Community At Holy Family

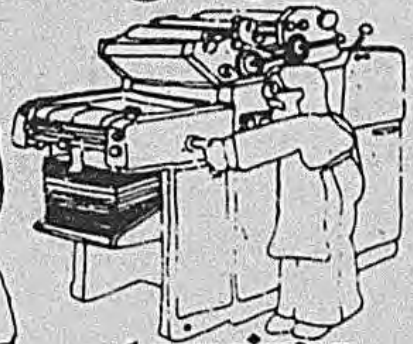

The theme for Holy Family School, chosen in September, was to build community through various activities. To help families in the Parish Outreach Program, the children from grades five through eight sponsored a Walk-A-Lap.

For every lap the students walked they received 25 cents from each sponsor. Each lap was about 4/10 of a mile around the perimeter of the school. The students were able to raise $812, through this effort, which they gave to Sister Joan O'Connor for her program.

Sister was very grateful to all the children and told them how proud she was of their generosity. The students also took pride in helping build good community.

Crying Time Again

It's that time of year again; the time when the powers that be in Albany create a budget package that many argue is unfair to education.

Governor Mario Cuomo has long been a target of Long Island's criticism, particularly for his cuts in aid to Long Island's schools. Cuomo considers many of the region's districts to be rich and believes that if we want the added perks, we alone should foot the bill for them.

In difficult economic times, many agree with Cuomo, who also endorses downsizing and consolidation. And, this year, his arguments are finding new allies.

As taxpayers, we understand that reductions in state educational aid mean increases in local property taxes if there is not an equal amount of reduction within the school's budget.

While Cuomo calls us rich, our legislators say we're not and they do what they can to reinstate the aid. It is much of the same each year. Cuomo threatens, Marino negotiates, budgets are delayed, school districts suffer from the delay and, when the final dollar is finally agreed upon, it's difficult to say who actually won. In some cases, while it looks like we get less, we get more. In others, while it looks like we get more, we get less.

The bottom line? The need for reform has never been more apparent. It's time we stopped the music and brought an end to this mid-winter dance.

In the next weeks, representatives from Long Island schools will travel to Albany to lobby for more aid. We support their efforts to get our region "our fair share." But, we ask that they expend equal energy in pushing for the reforms we need. High taxes will destroy Long Island, few will argue that point. We must find a way to fund education without breaking the backs of the taxpayers.

If this battle over the bucks continues, the only losers will be the children we must educate.

Southwest Civic Lending A Hand

The newly formed Hicksville Southwest Civic Association recently participated in the Adopt-A-School program. A Letter from Lulubelle...

... I always get my money's worth from my efforts at my Christmas decorating since I get almost a month's worth of enjoyment from just about Thanksgiving until the second week of January... And how I do hate to take them down... It's a huge job since I decorate every spot if it's not something that walks around... This year my theme was "We believe in Santa Claus" and I have been collecting those "Clothique" Santas until this year I have nearly fifty to make little vignettes on every surface... But now, that means that all of these Santas have to be carefully packed away so that they won't crumble during the summer... And one of my friends gave me all of her antique ornaments for the tree and you can picture how carefully I pack them away... We are the last people on the block to take down our outside lights... We use our Christmas tree dishes for a whole month and all the red and green tablecloths we can find... We have Christmas dish and hand towels and dozens of red candles... So, by now, you know that I can be called a "Christmas nut" — and how I do love it!!!... It's no work at all because it's such a joyous holiday... I do hope that you love it too, and had a wonderful holiday this year.

Yours, Lulubelle

P.S. I should have mentioned that, above all, we do remember that it is Jesus' birthday, and once, long ago, when my grandchildren were very small, one of them said, "If it's the baby Jesus' birthday, how come we don't have a birthday cake?" and so, every year we have a lovely ice cream cake decorated in red and green writing saying "Happy Birthday baby Jesus".

Volunteer Fair At C.W. Post

If you've ever considered volunteering your time to an organization but weren't sure where to begin, the C.W. Post Campus of Long Island University's volunteer fair can put you on the right track.

The Campus' Volunteer Center will sponsor the informational fair on Wednesday, Feb. 3, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Hillwood Commons lobby, for anyone interested in learning more about volunteer opportunities. Representatives from several non-profit organizations including the Interfaith Nutrition Network, Big Brothers/Sisters of Nassau County and Middle Earth Crisis Counseling and Referral Center will be available to answer questions.

The volunteer center provides counseling for prospective volunteers and matches them with a suitable job. Volunteer opportunities are available on campus and across Long Island. Some jobs are also available throughout the United States and in other countries.

"We saw a need for volunteers in the community and the surrounding campus and decided to set up the center to assist students and area residents in finding volunteer work," said Nitin Bedi, coordinator of the center and a graduate student.

"Volunteering benefits students in many ways, including helping them stay in touch with the surrounding community and providing personal satisfaction," added Bedi, a Brookville resident. "Many of the agencies offer extensive training which can benefit future careers. Just the experience of helping their fellow man is gratifying for many."

The services of the volunteer center are open to C.W. Post students and members of the community. Center hours are Monday through Thursday, 2 to 5 p.m. and Friday, from 10 a.m. to noon. For more information, contact the center at (516) 299-2229.

Over 20%

of your customers from last year won't need your services this year!

It's true! Think about it:

- Some of your older customers have passed away.
- Some of your customers have moved away.
- Some got mad at you and won't be calling.

National averages prove that in any community an average of 20% of the population shifts each year.

To put it into better perspective, how would you like to lose 20 cents of each dollar that you have or have your paycheck reduced by 20%?

Not too inviting is it?

Maple Sugaring Time For LI

FOR A SWEET winter pastime, visit Clark Gardens this weekend and learn about the art of maple syruping. Virginia Dankel, park naturalist and north shore resident, leads the demonstration. Photo by Tina Palmquist

By George Wallace

According to Native American legend, syrup used to flow full, rich and sweet from the maple tree. But when the Creator came down to see how things were going in the world, He found that everybody was lying around on their backs with their mouths open, letting maple syrup drip into their mouths. So He went down to the river, got some water, poured it into the tops of the maple trees thereby diluting the syrup.

"Now," said the Creator, "people will not get so fat. They will have to work to get maple syrup. This is how it is going to be from now on!"

Creator as the world's first fitness advisor? Simply playing hard to get? Whatever the implications, this legend accurately reflects, at least in part, the intricacies of acquiring maple syrup from its source. As illustrated in "maple sugaring" demonstrations to be found in Long Island parks this winter, the process is as rigorous as the result is sweet.

Such general human lessons may be found in maple sugaring expeditions like the ones conducted by Virginia Dankel, park naturalist at Caumsett State Park in Lloyd Harbor. And yet there is a fairly pragmatic, feet-on-the-ground lesson to be learned as well. "There is still so much around us in the natural world, if you know how to look for it," says Ms. Dankel.

She should know. At Caumsett last weekend, and at Clark Botanical Gardens in Albertson this Saturday, the Great Neck resident is teaching visitors precisely how to look for it. In both parks, maple trees will be found with plastic jugs hanging from their sides, syrup dripping generously into them from the obliging red maples.

Any maple, says Ms. Dankel, will produce syrup. Sugar Maple. Norway Maple. Red Maple. Swamp Maple. And you don't have to look for one with a plastic jug on its side to identify it in the winter, either. "Look for a tree with opposite branches, not alternating," she told a group of about 20 visitors at Caumsett last weekend. "It's most likely a maple, although it is possible it will be an ash."

Last weekend's jaunt in the Caumsett woods was considerably more productive. "We're looking for a sugar bush," she announced. Sugar Bush, being a large stand of maples in one location. Soon, Ms. Dankel had the group preparing spiles — or taps, for you keg-beer fans — out of red sumac branches, drilling with an awl, and hammering a spile into a likely looking maple.

Visit Clark Gardens this weekend.

The Fire Department's First Fifty Years

PROTECTION HOOK AND LADDER Company One as they appeared in 1893, the year the Hicksville Fire Department was founded. This Company along with Independent Engine and Hose Two and Citizens Engine Company Three formed the Hicksville Fire Department.

On February 15, 1893 there was a joint meeting of the existing independent fire companies at the Grand Central Hotel. The purpose of the meeting was to establish a department incorporating the three existing companies, Protection Hook & Ladder 1, Independent Engine & Hose 2, and Citizens Engine 3, and to elect a fire chief to oversee affairs at fires.

ARNOLD G. HEITZ was elected the first chief of the Hicksville Fire Department.

Arnold G. Heitz was elected the department's first chief receiving 32 of the 51 votes cast, with Harry Nichols being elected as Heitz's assistant chief. It didn't take long for Chief Heitz and the membership to tackle their first blaze, three days later on February 18 at 11:40 a.m. a cry of fire went out at MA Lauck's building on Broadway, seven cisterns (wells) were emptied before the fire was put out.

The purchase of a new steamer in 1895 for Company Three saw the old ship's pump placed in storage at Rohrbachs Place. The department paid rent for use of his barn. Calmness remained over the department for several years until the efforts of Hartmann Rohrbach to incorporate the fire department paid off. On August 22, 1902 the people of the hamlet elected a board of supervisors with Ernest Liebke elected as president, and Charles Fassbender, John Hahn, Henry Stolz, and Henry Puvogel elected as supervisors.

As the town continued to expand, so did the need for another fire company. So on January 8, 1904, 19 men formed Volunteer Hose Company

Four. It pleased the members to elect ER Day as it's first foreman and AL Dauch as his assistant. The company was given a small hand drawn hose reel to use and paid rental fees of $1 per month for the use of Rohrbach's barn.

On November 4 of 1904, the Hicksville Fire District put to a community vote, a proposition to appropriate $6,000 for the building of a fire house on Mary St., in the center of the hamlet. The vote was 60 in favor and 42 against, with the fire supervisors announcing a tax increase from 16 cents to 24 cents on every $100 of owned property. A special ceremony was held with many prominent citizens attending as the cornerstone of the new firehouse was laid by Ernest Liebke (the oldest fireman at that time).

The firehouse opened with a wide spread celebration on May 30, 1906, bringing together the four fire companies into one house and now having a meeting place. They had previously held meeting at different places around the hamlet including the Winsdor Hotel, Beckers Brewery, Reinhardt's Inn, and the Grand Central Hotel. The original firehouse still stands today, across from the present headquarters. It is a restaurant known as Peppercorns.

A Note From The Editor

Chief Patrick Scanlon will be kicking off the Hicksville Fire Departments 100th Anniversary Celebration at the department's monthly meeting at Peppercorns Restaurant. To assist the department in celebrating their centennial, the Hicksville Illustrated News, offers its readers this special supplement of the first 50 years of the Fire Department's history.

The supplement was made possible by the cooperation of the Hicksville Fire Department, especially Assistant Chief Karl Schweitzer, and the support of local merchants who share in the proud history of Hicksville.

Take your time reading the text, browsing through the photos, and noticing the supporters. Just before the big carnival and parade in June, we will publish another supplement with the second 50 years of the fire department included. Enjoy.

The membership needed a hand cooking refreshments during dinners and other affairs, when Mrs. Hanna Weiss assisted forming the core of the Ladies Auxiliary. On February 7, 1912, seven ladies came together and said the membership would include wives, mothers, widows, sisters, and daughters of firemen. The Ladies were to hold their meetings on the second and fourth Wednesday afternoons at the firehouse at 2 p.m. Dues were established at 10 cents.

A special meeting was held on March 28, 1912 at the Firehouse to vote an appropriation of $1,500 for the purpose of installing an up-to-date fire alarm system consisting of an electric box system and siren, which cranks out a mooring sound.

On January 11, 1917 Volunteer Hose Company Four received a new Ford Chemical apparatus, which cost $1,426.30 and in less than a year later Company Two received the other Ford Chemical apparatus in the amount of $1,573.42. The purchase of these two apparatus proved to be beneficial as they performed with great efficiency at the St. John's Orphanage (where Broadway Mall stands today) when it succumbed to fire.

The board of fire commissioners voted on an appropriation of $3,000 for the purchase of a new Diamond T Hook and Ladder for Company One.

The expectations of the members of the department was fulfilled in 1925, after receiving three new engines for Company Two, Three, and Four. The three "white" fire apparatus' cost $20,000 and two of these were able to flow 350 gallons of water per minute. The other truck was a chemical truck with two sixty gallon copper-lined chemical tanks and 250 foot hose.

A parade went through the streets, past the home of Ex-Chief Henry Menge (Hicksville's last surviving Civil War Hero), and proceeded with ceremonies at fire headquarters, while Commissioner Henry Clay Simons and Ex-Chief Andrew Hebrer spoke a few words before the members settled down to a meal prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary.

The years went by uneventful and the department has been playing host to the Annual Labor Day Parade and Drill since 1925, and successfully raised funds by raffling off chances to win a car. The winner had the opportunity to win a Chevrolet, Ford, or Whippet, for a dollar.

In the same year, Volunteer Hose Company Four decided they did not want to take care of the Larabee Emergency Car and with assistance from the other companies passed a resolution to organize another company. On September 14, 1928, 12 members gathered at the law office of Leucker and Duffy and officially organized Emergency Company Five. It pleased these men to elect Valentine Kerbs as captain, with Calvin Van Winkler, and Harry Borley as his lieutenants.

The Hicks (the department drill team) were formed as one team under the watchful eye of team captain Anthony Adesio, and utilized the Emergency Car as their racing car.

The beginning of the 30s had seen the depression hit Hicksville while the membership continued to grow. The bright spot in the 30s was Hicksville's Drill Team. They captured a New York State record for "B" Hose at Floral Park in 1930, and in 1931 captured the State Tournament as overall winners in Troy, NY. The team was able to set five new records under the leadership of John Jeanson.

The ever-growing department ran out of space for storage and the membership outgrew the firehouse, so under Fire Commissioner William Braun, the present structure was erected by Joseph J. Gunther of Valley Stream. The new firehouse was built on the existing property, but not before the original firehouse was jacked up and moved across the street. There is a story that says it took two days to move the old firehouse across the street, so custodian Louis Munch and his family slept in the old firehouse while it laid in the middle of Marie St.

In 1934, after 20 years of service as the department's physician, Dr. August Rave was succeeded by Dr. Walter Stillger, with residence and practice on continued on page 7a

Ladies Auxiliary Organized 1912

LADIES AUXILIARY of today. A strong and integral part of the fire department, the Ladies Auxiliary assist in many different functions.

On February 7, 1912, the Ladies Auxiliary was organized by Mrs. Hanna Weiss and seven ladies, with the assistance of Judge Andrew Hebrer.

LADIES AUXILIARY of the Hicksville Fire Department in front of the original fire house on Mary St.

Membership was open to wives, mothers, widows, sisters, and daughters of firemen. The Ladies held their meetings on Wednesday afternoons at 2:00 p.m. in the firehouse, dues were set at .10 per month.

The object of the Auxiliary was to render assistance wherever possible to the firemen and to promote sociability among the members of the Auxiliary.

In 1936 the Ladies purchased new Marching uniforms, they were a blue flannel suit with Red Ascot and a blue sailor hat. Shoes cost $2.98 and stockings were move when the ladies won first place in a Westbury parade.

In less than a year later, the ladies held a 25th anniversary party at the firehouse with a full course turkey dinner at $1.25 per person and a half barrel of beer for $10.00. Charter member and founder Mrs. Hanna Weiss became an Honorary member at this meeting.

On August 26, 1946, the auxiliary received new uniforms, they were to be white dresses with an overseas blue hat with red trim. The Ladies used these uniforms in 1967 to capture their first New York State Marching Champion trophy.

The ladies developed a float for the 100th Anniversary Parade in 1968, when Company #1 celebrated their founding. The float depicted a member of the Auxiliary serving coffee to the men fighting a fire.

The highlight of 1974, was when the ladies took first place in the New York State Parade, and they also took the Nassau County Drill Team Association Award. It was decided in 1976, that the Ladies would change their uniform and Mickey Wells (Auxiliary member), would make them. They would be a red jacket, red skirt, blue tank top with red trim and blue shoes. The marching ladies once again took top honors in New York State in 1976.

It pleased the Ladies Auxiliary in 1978 to see Mrs. Rita Schlosser installed as the president of the organized in 1981, however, didn't achieve success until 1991 coming in first place and winning the playoffs against Massapequa.

The Marching Ladies for the second time in 74 years received top honors by taking the Nassau County Marching trophy home again.

Entering into their 81st year, the Ladies Auxiliary continues to assist the firemen during fires, emergencies, and special events by preparing refreshments and organizing events.

The ladies are guided into the celebration of the Department's 100th Anniversary with Lynn Schweitzer as president, Mary Chiz as vice president, Ellen Mulligan as recording secretary, Christine Newins as treasurer, and Marie Kelly as financial secretary.

LI Library

Folly, Susan Minot, Houghton Mifflin/Seymour Lawrence, 278 pp., $19.95.

Susan Minot reinforces her reputation with her second novel, Folly. Set in Boston beginning in 1917, Folly evokes the novels of Edith Wharton, Henry James and J.P. Marquand.

The material she is writing about is the world of the upper class Bostonian, beginning during World War I and concluding as World War II looms. The protagonist is Lilian Eliot, who is 17 when the book begins, a well brought up young woman with character and intelligence who is not quite sure what she wants out of life. "The problem with you," her friend, Dolly Cushing tells her, "is that you are too nice." Lilian secretly hopes that no one considers her something as bland as nice, and knows that everyone does.

Into Lilian's proper Bostonian society comes Walter Vail, handsome and alien. He comes from New York, which means that Lilian's father does not find him quite trustworthy. Walter is in the army, on his way to France and Lilian falls in love for the first time. She dreams about Walter and the life they will lead after the war, but Walter only writes to her once and does not come back to America after the war. In time Lilian hears that he has married a French woman and is living in France.

Lilian's life in Boston goes on much as usual. Her friends marry young, produce children and begin to live the lives their mothers led giving luncheons, teas, birthday parties for the children and working for good causes. Lilian has a few suitors but no one suits her until Gilbert Finch appears on the scene. Gilbert is part of the same social set as Lilian. He is a quiet man, not much of a conversationalist, but Lilian feels he has about him "an aura of goodness." With Gilbert, "she felt returned to herself. Instinctively they knew one another." Gilbert and Lilian marry, have three children, but the reader wonders if they ever really know one another. "Gilbert did not care for talk. As far as he could see, most people in the world talked too much already and he would rather not add to the din."

Life for Lilian has become a cocoon and sometimes she finds herself stirred by a vague uneasiness. "Upon inspection, she saw it involved the extent to which she felt attached to Gilbert. She knew he loved her and that she loved him, but the knowing of it was one thing. She didn't always feel it." Into the cocoon, comes Walter Vail, now a widower. Lilian, plans to greet him, coolly but politely, but she reckons without the essential passion of her nature that has lain dormant for 20 years.

Lilian's world is at once so normal and familiar and still so remote, her story will stay with the reader long after Folly is finished.

Did You Ever Wonder...

One of the most perplexing theories about our so-called "solid Earth" is the notion that all the land on Earth isn't sitting still but sloshing around like toy boats in a wash tub on which small boys are banging hammers!

This notion is technically known as global plate tectonics, an almost universally accepted theory. Although the idea that pieces of the Earth are in constant motion and that the continents had once been attached to each other goes back hundreds of years, it was formally put forward first by Alfred Wegener in his 1915 book, The Origin of the Continents and Oceans. A German meteorologist and naturalist, Wegener was interested in the seeming alignments of the continents. Like a jigsaw puzzle waiting to be put together, the Atlantic coastlines of South America and Africa looked like they could be snapped together into a fairly neat arrangement. When Wegener learned of the discovery of fossils in Brazil that were similar to those found in Africa, it added fuel to his notion that the two places were once connected. Based on these and other bits of physical evidence, Wegener proposed the idea that the continents had once been a giant single mass, which later split.

Wegener's theory of "continental drift" was largely dismissed in his day, principally because he was unable to explain the forces that could propel such enormous landmasses.

Wegener died in 1930 and in the 1960s evidence collected, showed that Wegener was on the right path.

British geologist S. Keith Runcorn was one of the first champions of the revised notions of continents being connected. Wegener's theory of continental drift has evolved into what is now called "plate tectonics theory."

Continental drift is out because it is now known that more than just the continents are on the move. The Earth's crust is divided into mobile sections called plates. Some of these plates contain continents, or large parts of them; others carry the sea floor.

The plates—Canadian geophysicist J.T. Wilson first used the term plates in 1965—move over the Earth's superheated, molten core, pushed and pulled by convection currents in the molten material generated by the heat of the Earth's core.

The plates average from 30 to 50 miles in thickness and move at rates as great as a few inches per year. They may be as large as a few thousand miles across—the North American plate stretches for 6,000 miles from the Pacific coast to the mid-Atlantic—or as little as a few hundred miles across.

It is hard to imagine such massive pieces of rock cruising around the planet's surface. The key to their movement is the flexibility of the upper part of Earth's mantle—the layer beneath the crust—which is partly molten. As the plates "float" on this elastic moving mantle, they play a planetary game of hockey, jostling each other for position. And they are not finished yet.

(This is an excerpt from Kenneth C. Davis' book entitled Don't Know Much About Geography).

Trashasaurus Visits Fork Lane School

TRASHASAURUS VISITS FORK LANE SCHOOL. Every eye in the room is on the giant soda can "Trashasaurus" as students from the Fork Lane Kindergarten listen to him discuss the value of recycling. A representative of the Star Flower Environmental Group, disguised as the Trashasaurus, visited the class to educate the students about recycling paper and bottles. The program underscores for the children the importance of preserving the world.

Otto The Auto Visits Burns

The Automobile Association of America recently brought "Otto the Auto" to Burns Avenue School. Otto taught the children in grades K-2 how to read and use street signs safely. Students in grades three, four, and five learned about bicycle safety, including the proper use of helmets, hand signals, and how to conduct a safety maintenance check of their bicycle. Mr. Al Telta from AAA gave this valuable presentation to the students.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

There are pitfalls in most hands in bridge. The difficult part is first to recognize them, and then to take the proper steps to overcome them. Here is a case that illustrates the point twice. South is in four hearts and West leads a club. Declarer wins, but what should he do next? His first duty is to count his losers. South sees there are no spade or club losers, and that he must lose a diamond, come what may. He can therefore afford to lose one or two trump tricks, but not three. So, to maximize his chances, he cashes the ace of trumps at trick two. After both defenders follow low, South leads the deuce of trumps toward dummy's 10-7. This guards against either defender having started with K-J-9-x. West can do no better than win with the jack — on which East shows out — and return the eight of diamonds. Again declarer must play carefully. West is unlikely to have a singleton diamond; he is far more likely to have at least two cards in the suit. Accordingly, South ducks the diamond eight at trick four. East wins with the nine and returns the king of diamonds. South wins with dummy's ace and plays the ten of trumps. West takes his king but the battle is over. Whatever he returns, declarer draws West's last trump as soon as possible and makes the contract. But note that if declarer relies on an early heart finesse by leading a heart from dummy to his queen, and plays the ace of hearts after he regains the lead, he loses three trump tricks and goes down one. Note also that if declarer wins West's diamond shift in dummy at trick four, he also loses three trump tricks and goes down one against best defense. It's a simple hand, really, but declarer must tread cautiously.

In its first year of existence, the football and cheerleading program was a big success, with 25 Hicksville boys (11 year-olds) and 15 girl cheerleaders involved.

The awards night went well with every football player and cheerleader receiving a trophy. The event was catered by Brettons Deli of Bethpage, and the evening was topped off with a guest speaker.

Gary Marangi, a former professional quarterback in the NFL, spoke to all in attendance. He talked about all levels of football, from midget play to the professionals. He cautioned the young players on the dangers of steroids and drug abuse. Marangi played with the Buffalo Bills for three years and spent one year with the Cleveland Browns.
