Escapee Last Seen In Hicksville

By Danny McCue &amp; Gary McLendon

A 24-year-old man who has been charged with murder in Suffolk County kicked out the rear window of a corrections van and escaped in Westbury on September 7 as he was being taken to Nassau County for arraignment on robbery charges.

Everad Shouder, of Brentwood, remained at large as this newspaper went to press, having eluded authorities since escaping at 5:20 p.m. last Wednesday. As he was able to free himself from both his handcuffs and leg irons, authorities speculate that he may have had a key to his restraints.

"The vehicle was making a left-hand turn from Old Country Road onto Carman Avenue, when Shouder ejected himself out of the vehicle and crossed Old Country Road heading in the direction of Westbury," said Sheriff Joseph Jablonsky.

Describing the scene that followed, Jablonsky added, "The officer did have his weapon out, but as you know, that intersection at that time of day is very crowded, and there wasn't an opportunity to take that kind of action."

After breaking free Shouder traveled along the Hicksville-Westbury border. He ran back across Old Country Road to Duffy Avenue, where the officer in pursuit lost track of him. A red sweatshirt, believed to have been worn by Shouder, was found by police in Hicksville.

Nassau County police have issued a warning to the public, stating that Shouder, who was being held without bail in Suffolk County while awaiting trial for second-degree murder, was unarmed at the time of his escape but should nevertheless be considered "extremely dangerous." He was described as slender, 5-feet-8 inches tall, and approximately 140 pounds. At the time of his escape he was wearing dreadlocks and a red prison jumpsuit. Police asked that anyone believing that they've seen him should call 911.

Deputy Inspector George Morrish of the Nassau County Police said that Shouder is originally from New Cassel and that police suspected he would go there in an attempt to find help. "We have no information that he's at a friend's house now," he said, "but he certainly had friends in the area and the direction in which he fled leads us to believe he may be hoping to come in contact with some of them."

"Timing is everything, and in terms of the escape happening the night before [school started], the timing was very, very bad," said Lt. Robert Anderson, public information officer for the Nassau County Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Joseph Jablonsky said that as part of the massive police presence in the area, officers would be stationed near area schools as a precautionary measure.

Shouder and three other Suffolk County men have been charged with second-degree murder in the death of Carlos Velasquez, 22, who was shot during a robbery at a McDonalds in Central Islip last November. At the time of his arrest in that case, authorities had said that Shouder and his three co-defendants were believed to be responsible for a number of Nassau County robberies. Shouder was on his way to being arraigned for the robbery of a Westbury sneaker store which had occurred in the weeks prior to Velasquez' murder.

According to Anderson, the van was transporting three prisoners, including Shouder, from the Suffolk County Jail in Riverhead to the Nassau County jail in East Meadow, when it apparently got bogged down in traffic on Old Country Road in Westbury. It was then that Shouder, just five minutes from his destination, kicked out the window of the vehicle and made his escape, traveling north along the Wantagh Parkway.

One deputy in the van stayed with the two other prisoners, who did not attempt to escape, while the other deputy chased him on foot. The deputy chased Shouder to Duffy Avenue in neighboring Hicksville. It was then that Shouder, just five minutes from his destination, kicked out the window of the vehicle and made his escape, traveling north along the Wantagh Parkway.

By nightfall officers from Bureau of Special Operations, the Nassau Police Aviation Unit, the New York State Police, the Sheriff's Department, and the Long Island Rail Road Police — some 100 officers in all — were searching the Westbury/Hicksville area, as well as locations in Hempstead and New York City.

According to Jablonsky, Shouder's handcuffs were found inside the van, and his leg irons were found a short distance away at the intersection of Old Country Road and Carman Avenue. Prior to his escape, Shouder had been shackled to his fellow transportees, all of whom had been pat searched at the Suffolk County jail by Nassau Corrections Officers. "I find it highly unusual that someone could get out of both handcuffs and both leg irons," Jablonsky said. At the same time, he added, "The vehicle has been searched; we haven't found anything inside the vehicle, a key or any kind of device that could have been used to do so."

A command post was set up at the scene. By the second day of the investigation, authorities had received several calls regarding possible sightings, but none had proved conclusive.

Speaking of the corrections vehicle itself, Jablonsky described the GMC Suburban, which the department has been using for 10 years and which can hold up to seven inmates and two officers, as "the staple of our transportation fleet. We've never ever had a problem with it, and this particular vehicle was considered to be in excellent condition."

The last time an escape of this kind was attempted was in the late 1960s, when an inmate being transported in a sedan also exited the vehicle by kicking out the back window. However in that case, the escapee was captured immediately.

The two corrections officers who were in the vehicle at the time of last week's escape remain assigned to transportation, pending the outcome of a Sheriff's Department investigation.

The search for Shouder and the investigation into his escape are continuing.

EPA Announces Cleanup

By Gary McLendon

Representatives of the Environmental Protection Agency, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, the Nassau County Department of Health, the Town of Oyster Bay and others recently met with residents of Hicksville to discuss the EPA's planned cleanup of Hicksville's Hooker Chemical/Ruco Polymer manufacturing site.

The meeting, a result of soil, air and groundwater testing at the site, made present the realistic possibilities of the cleanup, while seeking input from the community on its concerns.

The community brought up several issues in the two-and-one-half-hour meeting. Many residents were concerned with the air quality, while others were worried about the soil and groundwater contamination beyond the Hooker/Ruco premises.

"Has anyone tested the soil in our backyards, our or water?" asked Hicksville resident James Fleming. His comments were the first public ones made during the meeting, and were made after an extensive EPA slide presentation.

The demonstration, made by EPA Hooker/Ruco Project Manager Dale Carpenter, briefly detailed the site's history, the EPA's testing procedures, and their recommendations for cleaning up Hooker/Ruco.

The EPA proposed a nine-point cleanup plan that incorporates the following procedures:

- Groundwater extraction to pump contaminated water on the site to the surface.
- Treatment of the contaminated water to remove contaminants.
- Discharge of the treated groundwater to a sump to be constructed on site.
- Additional soil testing in Sump # 2.
- Soil flushing for soils in sump 1 and possibly in sump 2 (if soil in sump 2 warrants it after testing).
- Additional soil testing in the monitoring well E area.
- Excavation of shallow soils in the former drum storage area and possibly Moon-

School, College Enrollments To Increase

School enrollments will increase in New York State this year for the fourth year in a row, according to figures released today by the State Education Department. K-12 enrollment will increase by 1.6 percent this year or just over 52,500 students, the department said, bringing the total K-12 enrollment to 3,180,300 students.

This marks the fourth consecutive increase since the 1989-90 school year when K-12 enrollments dropped to 3,021,644 students. Since then, total K-12 enrollments have increased by more than 158,600 students, or more than 5.2 percent.

College enrollments also will increase this year, the department said, to a total of 1,064,000 students. The increase of 25,134 students is about a 2.4 percent increase over the previous year. Since 1989-90, college enrollments have increased by 60, 662, or about 6 percent.

The increase in total college enrollments, for this year, is the result of across the board increases in all categories. Full time enrollments at public schools will increase by 16, 583 students, or nearly 3 percent; part time enrollments at public and private schools will increase by 900 students, less than one percent.

No Answers In Levine Murder

By Gary McLendon

In the early morning calm of Friday, Sept. 3, Bryan Levine, age 16, was murdered.

Levine, a former Hicksville resident, died from a single gunshot to the head, in Libby Park. He was visiting old friends in the area, prior to his death.

The crime is still under investigation by the Nassau County Police Department's Homicide Squad. At the time of the initial investigation Sergeant William Cocks, described the killing as "a mystery." According to Detective Jack Sharkey, of the Homicide Squad the killing, "is still a mystery."

"There's not a lot of useful information coming in," Sharkey said. However, the investigation is still taking place. "We have six detectives and one supervisor working on the case," Sharkey said.

Libby Park, located between Libby Avenue, Andrews Avenue and Violet Avenue, is a park in the town of Oyster Bay adjacent to the old Willet Avenue School. To residents the park has long been a hangout for area youth. The park sits between industrial and residentially zoned areas, and cars and motorcycles are known to zip up and down Andrews Avenue, on the eastern border of the park. The park's two open entrances on either side of the park allow quick escapability on foot.

According to neighbors, "It's actually a quiet peaceful, older neighborhood." Except at night, in the summer, on weekends...

Bryan Levine was found dead on this bleacher on Friday, September 3. The case is still under investigation. (photo by Cathy Greenfield)

According to neighbors, signs that read "no parking 9 p.m. to 6 p.m.," have been placed at the Violet Avenue entrance of the park to "prevent kids from drinking in front of the houses."

The youths use the park instead. The neighbors, some shaken by the incident, have added what they know about the incident, but many are scared. "We're on shaky ground around here...I'll be glad when they catch the guy," said a neighbor who asked that her name be withheld.

According to Violet Lane resident Larry Leigh, "It has definitely changed things quite a bit." Leigh has added additional home security, and he says, "they've added brighter high intensity street lights in the area right after the killing."

About the incident Leigh, said, "We've had our share of crime in the past, but nothing like this," and added, "it's something I never thought would occur in the area... it's surprising."

The Nassau County Police Homicide Squad requests that anyone who may have seen Bryan Levine between the hours of 12:30 a.m. or later on the morning of Friday, September 3, call the squad at 573-7788.

Local Comedian On The Rise

By Gary McLendon

Hicksville has a bright star on the horizon. His name is Scott Paparcuri. Born, raised and still residing in Hicksville, Paparcuri says that he finds humor living here. "Hicksville is basically a town where people live with their parents until they're 30, while they're waiting for the results of the police test," he joked.

Two years after becoming a fulltime comedian, Paparcuri's career is showing signs of taking off.

"I do comedy of today... of pretty much my life", Paparcuri began... "it's a different kind of world. The MTV, Beavis and Butthead kind of world, I get my material from the way people act".

For example, Paparcuri said, "I have a friend who acts like he is the king of his relationship. He acts like he owns his woman...I'm over his house, and I'm looking to put a drink down and he'll say 'put a coaster on that...she'll kill me.'"

Paparcuri, a 1986 graduate of Holy Trinity High School and a 1990 graduate of SUNY Oneonta, began his career in Hicksville. "The first paid gig I ever had was at the old Cafe Broadway. I would book myself once a month. I did everything, I would seat the people, collect the money, pay the comics... just to have a place that I can do a half hour, when no one would let me do a half hour."

Paparcuri's routines now last up to an hour depending on the venue. According to Paparcuri his material comes from world events and news makers, but he also focuses with a keen eye on everyday happenings. "I was late getting here tonight, excuse me...I was late because there was a cop behind me on the parkway... He followed me for half an hour... it turned out he was a fire chief..."

One of the highlights of Paparcuri's early career came in 1988 when he performed at Chuckles, in Mineola, before 200 friends and family. "It went great", Paparcuri said.

Hicksville's own Scott Paparcuri can be heard on 88.1 FM Monday nights between 9-10 p.m.

Since then Paparcuri has branched out, working in North Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, and Washington. He handles his own act, but pays an agent a finder's fee to find him work.

In addition Paparcuri has appeared on ABC television's America's Funniest People, and has had his jokes published in newspapers.

Although he enjoys stand-up, Paparcuri admits it's not always easy, "the hardest part is finding your character and being able to work in all crowds."

Paparcuri added, "It took me almost four years to find the character I was writing for... and to find material for everyone, you can't go up in front of a crowd of senior citizens and talk about your college days, and vice-versa, you can't go in front of a crowd of college kids and talk about Social Security."

Paparcuri writes all of his own material. "I write during the day and perform at night", he said. In addition, Paparcuri, has just launched his own radio show entitled Uncle "S" and the Funny Bunch, which is sponsored by Governor's Comedy Shop in Levittown. The comedy show can be heard on 88.1 FM, on Monday nights between 9 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Paparcuri is encouraging people to turn down the sound on Monday Night Football, and turn up his radio show.

Paparcuri's radio background comes from working on WGBB comedy show for almost a year. Not one to be limited, he has also launched an acting career. Paparcuri has filmed two episodes of a television pilot called "Reelin."

"It's about a band that lives in a recording studio. I play the part of Digger O'Donnell, a keyboardist and back up singer who's into Oriental girls," he said.

The pilot has yet to be picked up, but even if it isn't, Paparcuri has high hopes for his career. "I hope to star in a movie that I'm writing right now, he said. Either way, he says, he has no regrets, "whatever happens I know that I went for it," Paparcuri said.

With an act described as a mix of Dennis Miller, Dennis Leary, and Dennis the Menace, Paparcuri appears to have the talent to get it. "I want to be able to do comedy and act the rest of my life...I just enjoy making people laugh," Paparcuri said.

and Mazaika of the Bureau of Special Operations at 1:30 a.m., August 27, 1993.

According to detectives, the original incident occurred in New Cassel at 11 p.m., August 26. At that time police officers Carl Re and his partner Robert Reulbach of the Bureau of Special Operations were in the vicinity of Prospect Avenue and reportedly observed a drug sale. The officers approached Maricondo and the juvenile making the sale to him and identified themselves as police. Officer Re grabbed the juvenile who attempted to flee on his bicycle. As officers attempted to arrest Maricondo, the defendant got into his 1984 Cadillac, put the car in reverse, and backed toward officer Re striking his leg. Officer Re pushed the juvenile out of the path of the auto at the same time. Maricondo then put the car into forward gear and drove towards officer Reulbach. The officers each fired one shot at the auto as it attempted to hit them. Maricondo fled the scene and was arrested in the auto a short time thereafter. Officer Re was treated and released at Winthrop Hospital in Mineola for injuries sustained. There were no other injuries.

Beware Of Charity Frauds

Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon says most charitable organizations that operate in the county are legitimate. Unfortunately, there is a certain percentage that take advantage of a consumer through misrepresentation, half-truths, or concealed facts. During the holiday season the number of complaints concerning fraud increases.

Dillon advises residents to get the facts before handing over their money. Here are some questions to ask:

WHO- is the solicitor? Get his name and address.

WHAT- is the full name of the charity? Is it affiliated with an organization you know something about? Can you contact someone at the parent organization about the solicitation? Get a name and number. What written information is available? Is there a financial statement? What is the organization's history?

WHERE- are the offices of the charity, the parent organization? Where are they registered? With what agency?

WHEN- were they organized? How long have they been soliciting in your community?

HOW- will the money be used? How much of your donation will actually go to charitable purpose?

If you suspect fraud here's what you can do:

- 1- DON'T DONATE! If the charity is legitimate, you can give later.
- 2- MAKE NOTES about what happened. Write down as many details as you can.
- 3- Ask the solicitor to call back or get the number where he can be

Fall Brings Bounty Of Activities

Though it has a week left on the calendar and the weather is still fairly warm, summer is just about over. While sun and beach lovers may view autumn's approach as depressing, there are far more things to be excited about:

- The humidity is lower, and even warm days bring cooler nights, more comfortable for sleeping.
- The Tilles Center for the Performing Arts will be opening its season on October 3. Other performances planned include the Gala XIII — A Gold Coast Gala, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Boys Choir of Harlem.
- The Jericho Cider Mill is open. Fresh apple cider and different varieties of crisp apples — what's not to like?
- School and community based sports teams are ready with a new season of exciting games. Go down and cheer them on!
- The Sea Cliff Chamber Players open their season on September 26 with a new Sunday brunch series called, "Musical Cuisine," featuring the food and music of various cultures.
- Fresh Long Island produce is plentiful at local farmstands. Tomatoes and corn are on the wane, but broccoli, cauliflower and squash are coming!
- Community groups and clubs are ready with a new schedule of activities to organize and issues to address — and there are plenty of new friends to meet and enjoy in the process.

These are just a few things to think about, so as you pack away the beach chairs and start wondering what bulbs to plant in the garden, take advantage of the bounty that autumn on Long Island has to offer. Participate in the many events that are being held and get involved in community groups. You've got nothing to lose, everything to gain — and you'll enjoy yourself at the same time.

A Letter from Lulubelle...

...There is great sadness in the land because of the demise of the ice cream soda—not just any soda, but the very special soda that was available at the orange roof—Howard Johnson's...Now you do remember just how luscious it was with the great cone shaped scoop of ice cream leaking down the top and the whole a complete delight?...And now that Howard Johnson's has gone—where?—lost in some stupid corporate shenanigans I suppose—and no one seems to have Howard Johnson's ice cream—supermarkets or anyone—we now have to try to be brave about facing the future knowing that we will never again have the king of ice cream sodas—the one by Howard Johnson...Now I know that you will all write to tell me that your favorite is still available and even better than HJ, but I don't think I can be convinced—but I will try all suggestions—It's really amazing how many of the good old favorites just go...Remember Good Humor bars and those nickle Hersheys that were thin and flat and the 55? ones don't seem to taste as good?...and then there were those—probably revolting—wax bottles that had a sweet liquid that you could drink after biting off the top of the bottle...and those strips of paper with the little dots of candy and apart from edibles—remember the bra that fit you perfectly and you could never find another one...and there was Sweetheart soap, which we used for all the years of our married life, and I didn't mind when they stopped wrapping the soap in tissue paper inside the box—but now they don't even have the soap or the box!...That paring knife that you bought when you were first married and now has a broken handle—well, you can't expect to find the same one—but why isn't there one that's similar?

BON VOYAGE

By Edythe and Jack Shepard

On recounting a perfect travel holiday, we tend to talk endlessly about it and that extends to putting our raves on paper; it's a hopeless task for us to shorten our applause. Thus it was in our recent piece on hotel-barging on the "Joie de Vivre," when we were too long-winded for the page. So, if you'll allow us, may we not add what had to be cut?

Between land forays, we lazed on deck, with splashes in the pool for a cool awakening from our delightful languor. Bicycles on board were used occasionally as we would bike or walk on towpaths to the next lock, usually beating the slow-moving barge. And always, from our craft and in strolls through towns, we shared the tranquil, daily lives of the residents, uninterrupted by tourists (except us).

The motion of the barge is one of peaceful floating, and as we drifted past forests and meadows along treelined paths, cares wafted aloft and worries vanished in a haze of quiescence.

On (Alas!) our last evening, we're joined for a festive dinner by Captain Brian and Renee, and over wines and champagne, we toast to a "Joie de Vivre" reunion. Ladies are presented with long-stemmed roses farewell gesture of a "ne plus ultra" host and hostess. We sail back to Chatillon, from where Brian drives us to Paris; final good byes to the Wests and their wonderful crew, as we preserve memories of sheer perfection in travel. As we write this, we yearn to return!

On to this week's musings: When travelers think of souvenirs, what comes to mind is the blown glass figurine from Venice, the Norwegian sweater, the colorful Mexican ceramic bowl, etc., brought back from trips. But these objects also serve as concrete memories of our sojourns, as we recall how we communicated with dictionary and gestures with the non-English speaking shop owner outside of Athens, to buy a wood painting, and the Lisbon flea market brass bell purchase.

We enjoy the snapshots (may fewer than the huge numbers were used to take of everyone and everything, as novice travelers). But aside from these touchable memories of sojourns, are our intangible keepsakes: the reflection snapshots we hold onto. So join us as we recall some memorable bits and pieces of our recent month on European highways, byways and canals.

Of course you'll view the Arc de Triomphe, France's famed symbol, which towers splendidly over the Etoile, where 12 avenues meet. Don't miss a close-up of its sculptured walls, but unless you have a death wish, don't even think of crossing the rotary streets; use the underpass.

Speaking of traffic, whatever you've heard of Paris drivers, it's true; with every one of them, King of the Road. And what caused us increased jitters was knowing that drivers of "small" cars (and there are plenty of them) don't need drivers' licenses. "Incredible," as we watched these toy-like vehicles whiz 'round the city!

On the subject of "whizzing," although there is little for us francophiles to criticize in Paris, don't take its cab drivers' rudeness personally. Rare is it that he'll smile, much less utter more than mere grunts. One of ours called NY taxi drivers "voleurs" (thieves). Remember too that when your hotel calls a cab (they're difficult to hail on the street) his meter begins from his point of origin. Before we stepped into a called-for-cab, the meter read over $5. They can refuse more than three passengers, and luggage and animals are extra.

Every Frenchman has a dog (which we never saw without an owner) and they are truly cherished and taken everywhere including stores and restaurants. Never did we see an unruly dog; reason, we were told, is that they're all sent to obedience classes.

We wondered, as we toured through seven countries (and especially on big-city streets and shops)...Who is left in Japan? We can vouch for their huge numbers, all carrying filled designer shopping bags.

Sorry folks; we learned that Swiss banks may no longer accept foreign numbered accounts. So all your millions will have to be protected elsewhere.

Our unwavering belief that Italian ice cream is the world's best remains just that. And for a taste of an ambrosial gelato snack, don't miss the Tartufo at Tre Sclini in Rome's beautiful Piazza Navona. It's a chocoholic's dream of a ball of rich chocolate ice cream filled with pieces of chocolate, frozen in a thick, dark chocolate covering. If you sit at the outdoor cafe, you'll pay twice as much as enjoying the palate-pleaser on a piazza bench.

If yours is a taste for a medium (or more than) steak/hamburger doneness, be sure to specify and repeat, "bien cuit" in France. It means well done but we can assure you that it will never be more than medium. Never will you have to complain that it's "trop cuit," since it will never be

New Exhibit Coming To

Nassau Museum of Art

When exciting new exhibitions at museums take shape, their origins are often obvious — retrospectives of famous artists, traveling collections or merely famous works borrowed from other museums. But sometimes they break new ground, as does the upcoming "Image Makers" show at the Nassau County Museum of Art, which opens October 3.

In this exhibition, photography is combined with light, video, sculpture and sound to create high impact imagery. The contemporary work that originated in the 1970s and 1980s has drawn attention for new devotees who, not so long ago, formed the Contemporary Collectors Circle of the museum. The collaboration between the Contemporary Collectors Circle and Constance Schwartz, the museum's director, has led to a stunning exhibition of works by Tina Barney, Cindy Sherman, John Baldessari, Christian Boltanski, Robert Mapplethorpe, William Wegman, Gilbert & George, Carrie Mae Weems and many others.

Schwartz believes that the same compelling factors that have motivated the circle to collect this contemporary art will likewise fascinate visitors viewing this art for the first time. "It is vital to the growth of the museum to increase its audience and membership who encompass different taste areas of expertise, as well as important collectors. The Contemporary Collectors Circle offers the community, via this museum, a fresh new insight into the art of today."

To give added emphasis to this view, the museum will also expand its educational role on Long Island by working directly with local school systems. Special programming has been designed for students in grades one through 12. These programs will explore topics in literature and social studies, as well as environmental and political concerns, as they are depicted in the artist's subjects.

"Image Makers" can be seen during regular museum hours, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. There is no admission charge on Fridays. The museum is located on the north side of Northern Boulevard, in Roslyn Harbor.

The Taste of New York, Karen Gantz Zahler, Addison Wesley Publishing Co., $224 pp., $35.

It's an ominous thought, but judging from the catalogues that are beginning to arrive in the mail, it's the time that the truly organized among us are beginning to make lists of holiday gifts. Books really do make welcome gifts if they are purchased with care and the taste of the recipient considered. If you have a serious cook or serious hostess on your list, you would do well to consider The Taste of New York, written by Karen Gantz Zahler with photographs by Tom Eckerle.

Subtitled, "Signature Dishes of the Best Restaurants," it contains 122 seldom revealed recipes from 58 of the top kitchens of New York, from A, as in Arcadia, to Z, as in Zarela, and including The Four Seasons, Lutece, Le Cirque and La Cote Basque. Zahler presents these recipes with complete lists of ingredients and step-by-step instructions as to how to follow them and includes special notes from the chef on nearly every page. The recipes range from the simple, such as Il Mulino's Tomato-Basil Bruschetta as an appetizer, and one that takes advantage of the current crop of tomatoes, to the fairly complicated appetizer from Canton, Lettuce Wrap with Minced Squab.

Frequently there are twists on familiar recipes that serve to demonstrate why these chefs are out of the ordinary. One such is from PRIX Fixe, where a traditional Potato and Leek Bouillon is transformed with thyme goat cheese gnocchi.

As might be expected, the salad course is among the most imaginative and gives photographer Eckerle the most scope. One salad that is a work of art is the Lobster Salad with Basil-Orange Dressing and Haricots Verts. This is a good example of a dish that is spectacular to look at and would undoubtedly make a cook's reputation and is not really at all difficult to prepare.

The chefs go to town with the vegetables—Crisp Potato and Eggplant Tart from Charles Palmer at Aureole, a Provencale Sweet Onion and Anchovy Tart from Provence and a Pear and Spinach Purée from La Cote Basque. From The Palm comes a recipe for Hash Brown Potatoes that shows what a little extra know-how can do for an old favorite.

The main course might be a Seared Tuna with Potato Purée and Chive Sauce from Tropic or Pheasant with a Fumet of Wild Mushrooms from Le Perigord, but why go on? You get the idea. No one will cook this way every night, but it would be a truly wonderful resource for a great occasion. And at $35, it costs less than dinner-for-one at the restaurants included here.

Smile, You're On Camera

Daisy and Babette don't seem to be too shy about having their picture taken. According to their owner, Mrs. A. Bulkley of Hicksville, the two dogs are good friends. Daisy is two and Babette is one. "They love to roughhouse together playfully and they both let me know if someone is walking outside my house. Babette knows the word "walk" even if I spell it out," writes Mrs. Bulkley.

Some Like It Hot

Ginger Richheimer of Great Neck sent in this photo. She writes, "My cat, Polo, loves the stovetop. Winter or summer, he likes to stick his head down into the metal grids on the stovetop and rest his body against the enamel teapot. Since the pilot lights are totally covered, he can't get hurt, but he loves the indirect warmth. He also loves to curl up in the closet on the top shelf — nestled among my warm scarves."

overdone. They like next-to-raw steak and think you're "toque" (nuts) to order it any other way. On an Air France flight several years ago, we ordered our chateaubriand "bien cuit" and had to send it back twice to banish its blood!

Two complaints about many of our tour hotel-supplies: (common in moderately priced accommodations) Low watt light bulbs, too tiny to read by; also tiny bars of soap, sometimes not much larger than a postage stamp; and no wash-cloths.

On our tours oft-entering and exiting countries, by the time E.S. (who hates numbers with a passion) got the gist of money exchange in one destination, we were on our way to the next. So liras and francs, marks and pounds became a jumble unless J.S. and his trusty currency converter came to the rescue.

And here, we'd better stop unless our recollections, once again, travel off the page.

toring Well E area.

- Monitoring of the groundwater extraction system and groundwater treatment system.

- Institutional controls, deed restrictions and groundwater use restrictions (to limit site to commercial zoning).

According to the Carpenter, implementation of these plans will require the financial support of Occidental Chemical Corporation, the current name of Hooker/Ruco. The cleanup packs an estimated $13.25 million price tag, over a 30-year period.

The EPA's recommendations are the result of 14 years of testing, written studies, negotiation and bureaucratic maneuvering on the part of the EPA, Hooker/Ruco, the Department Environmental Conservation and others.

In 1979 the initial investigation of Occidental began after they made a bid to take over the Meade Paper Company. The problems are the result of waste water containing a carcinogenic compound (vinyl chloride) being discharged into recharge basins (sumps). In addition, contaminants in the form of PCBs were stored in discarded drums in at least one area of the site.

According to the EPA, toxic hazards in the form of shallow soil contamination, deep soil contamination and groundwater contamination exist on the Hooker/Ruco site.

"Sump 1 had the highest level of contaminants," Carpenter said. "The first 10 feet of sump 2 had no contamination. Sump 3 had PCBs present and sumps 4, 5 and 6 have low levels of contaminants in the soils beneath these sites."

According to the EPA, tests in the form of soil vapor samplings, electromagnetic surveys, 50 borings and over 150 soil samples were taken and analyzed for organic and inorganic chemicals at the site.

The report and the meeting, however, failed to adequately address the expressed need for air quality tests to improve the quality of life for residents in the vicinity of the plant. Many residents complained about what they called "the horrible odor" emitted by Occidental. Representatives of the EPA at the meeting expressed their inability to adequately address the air quality issue, because it did not fall into their realm of bureaucratic control or expertise.

The lack of information concerning the air quality issue caused a noticeable murmur in the crowd, especially in light of statements made by various residents detailing respiratory and other health problems.

At this point of the meeting, Town of Oyster Bay Supervisor Lewis Yevoli and town councilman Tom Clark stepped in. They announced their intention to set up a meeting between the Nassau County Department of Health and concerned citizens of Hicksville to discuss the air quality question.

For its part, the EPA announced that it had conducted two air quality tests, both upstream and downstream and that results indicated that the releases were "legally permitted releases." The tests were conducted in 1989, it was later revealed.

In an attempt to refocus the proceedings Kevin Lynch, Superfund chief stated, "We're dealing with historical problems, not existing problems. This site is so unique because most sites are already abandoned."

The site is unique in other ways as well. According to the EPA, contaminants in the soil at the depth of 50 feet have traveled south to south east, and the depth of soil contamination is 125 feet in some areas. The aquifers are 500-600 feet down. "There is no imminent danger to anyone drinking the water," said Yevoli.

The area of contamination, however, spreads much further than the Hooker/Ruco borders. A map projecting the area of soil contamination shown during the meeting revealed that the area runs south from Hooker/Ruco for approximately a mile. "The area is about 2,000 feet wide and runs to around the Hempstead Turnpike area," said Lynch.

According to Carpenter, the EPA plans to stop the southward flow of contaminants on the Hooker/Ruco site by capping the sumps and building capture zones along the southern borders of the property. The caps will provide a physical barrier to prevent the downward movement of contaminants contained in precipitation. Capture zones will catch the water collected on the site, treat the water and flush out the contaminated sumps with the treated water.

As a result of the current situation, Sarah Meyland, of the Citizens Campaign for the Environment, asked that the following procedures be implemented:

- A test of air and soil quality be done in people's homes in order to ease the concern to the residents of these areas.
- Air monitoring equipment be installed in the areas around the plant.
- A health survey be done with residents in the entire community in areas adjacent to the plant (to determine whether a cause and effect relationship exists between the residents' health problems and air/or soil emissions).
- A remediation plan be put in effect to address the possibility of reverse leaching of toxic high density organics in the area.
- The entire area (not only the Hooker/Ruco) be put on a Superfund cleanup list.

In light of the EPA recommendations made during last week's meeting, Carpenter stated that the following objectives are next in line: signing a record of decision by the EPA, soils investigation on site, further investigation of electro-magnetic objects on site, and off site groundwater investigation of the entire plume.

How long will it take to begin the clean up at the Hooker/Ruco site? "One and a half years," Carpenter said.

CRAFTING BOOK REVIEW

By M.B. McLoughlin

It's not too early to start thinking about the holidays. If you want to get a jump on Christmas, now is the time to go to your library and look over the Christmas Craft Books.

"Christmas with Southern Living 1993", is already in and contains imaginative ideas.

You can change an ordinary outfit into a festive one by adding miniature wreaths to button covers (page 78) Instructions are provided for earrings, too.

The directions on how to make handkerchief angels are on page 30. A honeysuckle vine wreath is on page 49. Don't trim back your vines until you see it. Votive candles, red ribbon & Christmas tree balls make a simple, colorful centerpiece on Page 62.

Experience Christmas a few months early this year, then with the gifts in mind, don't miss... easy, inexpensive craft projects for "The Victorian Home" by Joni Fritzie

If you enjoy making Victorian home accessories. You'll love this book. It's full (75) of easy attractive projects for beginners. Each project has a materials cost & the approximate time it takes to make.

Very unusual techniques are used in this new book. See page 14, "Elegant Dining Cloth", where white paint (squeeze bottle fabric paint) is used to simulate embroidery. I'll be trying it myself.

"Painted Glassware", on Page 26, introduces another unique use for squeeze bottle fabric paints. Just think of all the objects around the house that can be improved with these paints. You could paint a coffee mug as a special gift for a friend.

Glass bottles could be recycled by using this technique. Decorate a wide-mouth bottle, fill it with homemade cookies, a great gift idea.

"The Victorian Home", could keep you busy year round.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♦	1♦	1♥	Pass
1NT	Pass	4♥

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

It is easy to win tricks with aces and kings, but much more difficult to win them with deuces and treys. Between these extremes lies the challenge of dealing with the intermediate cards so that they also pull their weight. It is in this area that a player must sometimes exercise tender loving care.

Take this deal where West led the king and another diamond. East took the ace and continued with a diamond. South hopefully ruffed with the nine and West discarded a spade.

So far so good.

Declarer next led a low heart to the jack, losing to the ace, and had to go down one when East returned another diamond. It did not matter whether South ruffed with the seven or the queen; either way, he would lose a second trump trick.

South would have made the contract had he handled his trumps more carefully. It was not difficult to assume that East had the ten of trumps when the nine won the third trick; nor was it difficult to deduce from the bidding that East also had the ace of trumps.

South should therefore have made the first trump lead from the North hand, not his own. At trick four, he should have crossed to dummy with a club or a spade and returned a low trump.

If East followed low, South would win with the queen and lead a low trump back to the jack, knowing that East had started with the A-10-x. If East went up with the ace on the first trump lead and returned a diamond, South would ruff high, play a low trump to the jack, return to his hand to draw the last trump, and claim the rest.

Either way, by making the first trump lead from dummy, declarer could neutralize the defenders' intermediate cards and at the same time promote his own.

Hicksville Scores In Seacrest-Tobay Triathlon

Fourteen-year-old Paul Tanck of Hicksville took first place in the 14- and under age group to pace a large complement of Hicksville residents who successfully completed the Seacrest-TOBAY Triathlon in Oyster Bay on Aug. 29. Paul completed the 4/10 mile swim, 15 Kilometer bike ride and 5 Kilometer run through the hills of Oyster Bay in 1 hour, 27 minutes, 11 seconds.

Among the other Hicksville residents competing in this year's Triathlon were Brian Heneveld (1:13:50), Mary McShane (1:12:29), who finished 6th in the women's 25-29 year age group, John Diel (1:17:59), Peter Magnuson (1:20:25), Patricia Davis (1:33:16), fifth finisher among the 45-49-year-old women, John Lupski, who ran the anchor for the first co-ed team in the combined 105-139 age group in the team competition, Diane Birkel, Rich Kelton and Larry Kruppenacher, who also competed in the team competition.

A $500 check out of the proceeds of the Triathlon was presented to Hicksville's Larry Kruppenacher for the Cystinosis Foundation. Larry's daughter is one of only 400 children in the country who suffers from this dread blood disease, and the Triathlon sponsors were most happy to be able to support this Hicksville family with a contribution to the Foundation.

The Triathlon was conducted under the auspices of the Town of Oyster Bay and its fine Department of Recreation and Parks, and administered by the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club under the direction of Triathlon director Steve Winkler. Technical support was furnished by David Katz of Finish Line Promotions.

Hicksville's Larry Kruppenacher receives check for the Cystinosis Foundation from POBRRC's Mindy Lerner.

POBRRC volunteer coordinator Mindy Lerner organized a staff of more than 100 volunteers to help make the event possible.

"This was a great day for our club, for the town and for all the athletes who took part in the event," observed Triathlon director Steve Winkler. "We were quite happy to have so many of our Hicksville friends on hand, thrilled by the big performance put on by Hicksville youngster Paul Tanck, and happy to be able to help Larry Kruppenacher and the Cystinosis Foundation."
