Students Get Ready For The World

By Keysha Hedgepeth

Making the transition from school to the work force is not as easy as it used to be. Many entry level positions now require a college degree. According to "The School To Work Transition" (government accounting statistics,) only 15 percent of incoming high school freshmen nationwide are expected to complete four years of college within six years of high school graduation. Hicksville High School is addressing the issue with its Job Placement and Internship programs. The goal is to smooth the change from school to the work environment, while providing participants with valuable professional experience.

The Job Placement Service was instituted by Nancy DeSorbo under the direction of school superintendent Salvatore Mugavero. It was created to address the needs of the business community and students seeking part-time employment. DeSorbo, a business teacher at the high school for 21 years, relates "the superintendent contacted me late last spring and asked me to coordinate the program. My role is to match a top-quality student to the needs of the business."

Students enrolled in the service do not need to be seniors. However, they have to meet New York State Department of Labor work guidelines and be enrolled at the high school. Transportation is solely the responsibility of the student and employers have the option of employing them after school or on weekends. Salary starts at minimum wage.

DeSorbo explains that service is attractive to students because it delivers more than a paycheck. "It's good for the students to get work experience in the real world and see how an office operates on a daily basis" she says. For business the appeal is different. "It gives the community a feeling that these are great kids."

The Internship Program originally came under the umbrella of the Job Placement Service but became one of the duties of the new Guidance Chair Evelyn Acosta, when she started in July. Acosta notes that one the goals of the program is to "Let students take a look at their own skill and see how these abilities fit into career opportunities."

Internships are strictly for credit and students work between 5-7 hours per week. Students seek their own placement and can earn up to a credit if they participate for a full year. Professional sponsors can be in a variety of areas, including business, communications, education, health and legal. To supplement the internship, participants are expected to attend monthly seminars in which they participate in business-related activities. They are also given assignments such as resumé writing. Guest speakers are often invited to address the group.

"At Hicksville High we want to make sure that the students have good academic and marketable skills," explains Acosta. "We are also interested in developing appropriate work place behavior." She noted that these skills don't necessarily come with maturity. Many times youth will see an adult as a "parent-supplement" and not as professional peers. Among the essential skills to be acquired are punctuality and the ability to interrelate.

Since students are responsible for transportation to their internships, many have elected to do their internships in the school, administrative building or surrounding elementary schools. Several are working in the nurses' and guidance offices or aiding teachers as tutors at the high school.

On the other hand, there are those pursuing their goals directly. For instance, there's one young woman who is interested in being a physical therapist, as

Voters To Make Decisions Nov. 2

By Caroline B. Smith

Nassau County's leadership, either incumbent or anew, will be decided in days to come, as the race for county executive, presiding supervisor, supervisor, judgeships and other posts draw to a close. From the war chests, come "the big guns," in some cases, big dollars. Candidates ride the political wave, bringing new meaning to the oft used phrase, "politically correct," by offering sweeping change, and promising to cut government cost and lower taxes.

A federal court has decided that the current legislative body, the board of supervisors, which has governed Nassau County for the last 55 years, violates the constitutional principle of one man, one vote, and a Commission on Governmental Revision has been appointed, mandated to present a plan for change by the end of 1994, to be implemented by the end of 1995.

On the ballot, two resolutions, one in the Incorporated Township of Hempstead and one in the Incorporated Village of Floral Park, both seeking to establish a Service Award Program for Active Volunteer Firefighters of the Hempstead and Floral Park Volunteer Fire Departments.

On the state level, there are three proposals:

Proposal No. 1-this proposal would amend Section 2 of Article 8 of the State Constitution to give local governments, and school districts flexibility in relation to the manner of contracting, paying and refunding local debts. The proposal would authorize an alternative with regard to the payment of debt. The amendment would authorize local governments and school districts to issue debt which does not pay interest annually:

Proposal No. 2-The State Constitution currently provides that indebtedness contracted on or after January 1, 1962 and prior to January 1, 1994, for the construction or reconstruction of facilities for the conveyance, treatment and disposal of sewage, shall be excluded from the constitution debt limits of counties, cities, towns and villages. The proposed amendment would extend for ten years, until January 1, 2004, the period during which sewer debt shall be excluded from the constitutional debt limits of counties, cities, towns and villages.

Proposal No. 3-The State Constitution presently requires that State debts (other than short-term debt authorized by Section 9 or Article 7 and debt on account of invasion, insurrection, war and forest fires authorized by Section 10 of Article 7) be paid in equal annual installments of principal. This amendment, if approved, would amend the manner of contracting, paying and refunding state debts. The proposed amendment authorizes, as an alternative, principal payments or contributions to a sinking fund in installments that result in substantially level or declining debt service payments. It would allow the state to issue bonds calling for other methods of payment (e.g. zero coupon bonds). In addition, the proposed amendment expands Article VII's existing provision regarding the refunding of state debt by specifying when refunding bonds may be

Jericho Dentist Promotes A Candy Buy-Back

Dr. Peter Blauzvern, Jericho dentist, is doing a candy buy-back after Halloween (November 1 and 2) to insure a safe, healthy holiday for all children. Specifically one dollar will be paid for each pound of candy turned in.

Dr. Blauzvern has this program to preserve children's teeth and reduce hyper-activeness. This program also rewards those who do not eat the candy by letting them earn a sense of responsibility for their well-being.

Dr. Blauzvern's office will be serving sugar-free punch the week of Halloween. For more information contact him at 681-5800.

Men's Club Of Beth Torah Hosts Breakfast

On Sunday October 17, the Men's Club of Temple Beth Torah held its annual parent and child breakfast. This activity is a traditional event which has been ongoing for over 10 years.

Over 275 parents and children enjoyed the usual staples of bagels, tuna salad, egg salad, pizza bagels and French toast. This year white fish salad and scrambled eggs were added to the menu.

Business Wins Beauty Contest

The Hicksville Chamber Of Commerce has initiated a Beautification Award to recognize local businesses that have maintained their property and made Hicksville an attractive place for residents and patrons. This year Dr. Dean Evan Hart of Woodbury Optical on Woodbury Road became the first recipient of the award. He received the honor at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Tuesday Oct. 19, 1993.

Hart and his staff of approximately 15 diligently work to maintain the garden. "Everyone in the office gets involved," commented Dr. Hart. "We don't hire landscapers or gardeners, we just figure out what will look good and go for it."

In early spring Hart's "botanical garden" displays thousands of colorful tulips, daffodils, crocuses, irises, and other spring beauties. Later in the season lilies, gladiolas and tabitiens emerge. Annuals such as Impatiens, wildflowers, marigolds, sunflowers and snapdragons also make an appearance. "My gardens inspire my employees, increase office morale, and give workers a feeling of working someplace special," notes Hart.

Hart reflects "A beautiful exterior attracts patients. It seems that passers-by are attracted more by our appearance, even more than my advertising." He continues "The care and concern for the appearance of Woodbury Optical Office is carried into the commitment to excellent care and quality to whomever comes into our office."

Hart, lectures internationally and is published globally on eye care issues. He has, in addition to his doctorate, a separate graduate degree in biology which provides background for his ability to create his floral displays.

Civic minded, he is the founder and director of the Contact Lens Research Foundation, Inc. This is a non-profit group that provides research for the benefit of contact lens wearers, receiving financial support from leading international institutions.

Hix National Consumer Week

By Keysha Hedgepeth

Mail Fraud is a problem that affects all of us. Hicksville Post office is hosting National Consumer Week. It started on Monday October 25 and it will be ending on the 30th. During "Consumer Week" there are "Open Houses" and videos. There will be an Open House today (contact the Post Office for details).

The "Consumer Week" is one of a series of programs instituted since Henry W. Johnson III came aboard as Postmaster General. A former Postmaster in Bethpage, Johnson came to the job in April. "The goal is to promote consumer awareness of the types of scams that go on," says Henry W. Johnson III. "It is big business and hard to control."

For customers who were unable to attend the "Open Houses" there is a variety of literature available on the subject. Highlights include sections on information on Work-at Home Schemes, Charity Fraud, Insurance Fraud, Investment Fraud, Home Improvement Fraud, Lotteries, and Chain Letters. The pamphlet also instructs the customer what to do if they have been conned.

Mail Fraud is any scheme to get money from the customer by offering a product, service or investment opportunity that does not live up to its claims. Work-at-home schemes such as "envelope stuffing" are one of the most common forms of fraud. Usually there is nothing to suit but instructions to place ads like the one that was received.

1 In 9 Gets Involved In Awareness Month

By Keysha Hedgepeth

October is Breast Cancer Awareness month and Long Island Breast Cancer groups are mobilizing to inform the public about the disease. 1 in 9 Breast Cancer Coalition is among those who have both conducted and participated in Awareness Month programs.

On Wednesday Oct. 27, Fran Kritcheck spoke before Hicksville's Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon. She addressed issues pertinent to women on Long Island as well as quoting statistics about the growing number of victims each year. However, this is hardly the beginning of their efforts; 1 in 9 has been involved in programs from Long Island to Washington DC.

The month started off with the "Breast Cancer Day Of Unity Rally" at Old Bethpage restoration center on Oct. 5. Over 500 individuals attended the hour-long event. Highlights included a "living" map formed by Long Islanders; each standing near their town. A second cloth map became a petition in which signatures were collected to be hand-delivered

Board President Presides At Convention

Helen M. Lafferty, president of the Hicksville Board of Education presided at a clinic to educate board members and superintendents at the 74th annual convention of the New York State Boards Association in Syracuse, New York. The seminar was held Thursday, Oct. 14, through Sunday, Oct. 17.

The topic of the panel was School Community Relations. "This panel provided board members with information about how to build and maintain good community relations," said Lafferty. "It showed us how to avoid obstacles that hinder working together, while giving us tools to identify needs and issues that are important to the community."

The convention had the highest attendance of any education related convention held in the state outside of New York City. There were more than 60 topical panels, 10 workshops and 250 exhibits showcased during the event.

Board Of Education Meeting

On Wednesday, October 20, the Hicksville Board of Education held its monthly regular meeting. Among the issues discussed was new lighting at Hicksville schools and Energy Grants.

It was recommended at the meeting that the board approve moving forward with the New York Power Authority Proposal for the installation of new lighting in the Old Country Road, Lee Avenue, Fork Lane, Dutch Lane and Burns Avenue schools. The renovating will be completed over the next seven months.

Energy Grants were also discussed. Among the necessities were elementary school lighting, chillers for the administration building and a water heater for the high school. The grants will also cover oil burner replacement and window replacement in all schools. Funds for the projects were recently made available through a 48.6 million dollar petroleum overcharge fund.

The next Board of Education meeting will be at the Middle School auditorium, Wednesday, Nov. 17. It will begin at 8:00 pm.

TO YOUR HEALTH

By RICHARD H. BLAU, M.D.

Neck Pain May Result from Arthritis

A common medical problem referred to a rheumatologist is chronic neck pain. Neck pain may affect many Americans some time in their life.

Frequently, neck pain results from arthritis of the spine, spasm of the neck muscles, inflammation of the joints in the neck, or pressure on the spinal nerves. This pain can occur at rest, or with movement, such as turning the head. In fact, anything that puts pressure on the spine may result in neck pain.

The discomfort of neck pain may be only an occasional dull ache, or a severe, sharp, debilitating pain. Most acute neck pain resolves by itself. However, if the pain is very severe, persists, or is associated with pain or numbness in the arms, you should consult your physician.

Proper treatment can only begin once the cause of the neck pain is known. A comprehensive examination, including a complete medical history, and a physical examination are usually required. X-rays, as well as blood tests, may be needed to aid in the exact diagnosis.

Fortunately, most neck pain can be successfully treated without the use of surgery. Depending on the diagnosis, and if your symptoms do not improve, you may be referred to a rheumatologist (a specialist in arthritis and muscle disorders).

Your rheumatologist can establish an individualized medical program. This may initially involve rest, analgesic medication, and local heat. Special anti-inflammatory medications, specific exercises, and physical therapy may also be required if the pain is persistent. You should keep in mind that most neck pain will improve with prompt medical attention.

to President Clinton. In the following weeks they hosted a variety of workshops, fairs, rallies and speaking engagements.

Oct. 18, brought the next major event. 1 in 9 in conjunction with the National Breast Cancer Coalition hosted a rally in Washington DC, outside of the White House. Five members of 1 in 9 attended the rally. Their efforts were fruitful and the President invited the representatives into the garden to talk. "He's really personable," says Fran Kritchek, 1 in 9 vice-president. "He let us know that our voices were being heard, that the issue (of Breast Cancer) is important to him."

1 in 9 Breast Cancer Coalition has quite a social presence. Recently they met with Governor Cuomo when he visited Bennett Labs in Copiague. Bennett Labs created a new mammography machine and Gov. Cuomo traveled there under the guise of new jobs on Long Island. 1 in 9 saw the opportunity to bring their own agenda to the event.

The group will wrap up their "October Awareness" activities with an Oct. 30, congressional hearing. Gary Ackerman, 1 in 9's federal representative will be hosting the session. Future events with the group will deal with "Environmental Impact". They will be hosting a symposium on the subject on Nov. 15 and 16.

Stolen Car Injures Hicksville Man

Suffolk County police arrested a Bayshore man on Wednesday October 20 and have charged him with possessing a stolen car after he became involved in a collision which seriously injured a Hicksville resident.

Early Wednesday morning uniformed police officers spotted the allegedly stolen 1986 Mazda, travelling North on Route 110. When the officers gave chase, the car, travelling at high speed, went through a red light at Jericho Tpke and Rte 110, striking a westbound 1991 Jeep. The Jeep was driven by Gary Noto, 35, of Hicksville.

Winfield Savannah, age 17 of Bayshore was arrested. Savannah was admitted to Nassau County Medical Center with serious but not life-threatening injuries. Noto was taken to Huntington Hospital and placed in the intensive care unit. He has very serious injuries but is expected to live.

Savannah is held at NCMC pending his arraignment on charges of Criminal Possession Of Stolen Property and Assault (for recklessly causing injuries to Noto). In addition, Savannah received numerous traffic violations. There were two other passengers in the Mazda and they were admitted to Huntington Hospital with serious injuries.

Now It's Up To The Voters

With election day just days away, candidates for public office are crowding the field to get in the last word. In Nassau County elected officials who never before faced serious challenges are running the races of their lives. And many of the voters are taking an interest in local elections for the first time.

In the past the conventional wisdom has been that only the party regulars vote in off-year elections. When there is no presidential, gubernatorial or congressional contest, registered voters often stay home on election day. It shouldn't be that way this year.

When all is said and done, it is often the local candidate who has the most effect on our lives. It's the county executive who negotiates with the police and whose success or failure in those negotiations may result in our being able to find a policeman when we need one. It's the town supervisor who gets the snow off the street so we can get to work the day after a snowstorm and the town councilman or woman who hears our request for a stop sign or a no parking sign on our corner. It's not the governor we call when we're having problems with noise or traffic or garbage.

History was made in Nassau when Judge Arthur Spatt declared its board of supervisors form of government unconstitutional. A commission is now studying alternate forms of government to offer to the public in a referendum and whatever they propose will mean a changed system. The person who is elected Nassau County Executive will preside over those changes. He may become the chief executive with a county legislature in place. In fact, that is considered to be the most likely result of the commission's deliberations. But his voice will have considerable weight, whatever else changes in the county.

The endorsement we make once again this year is of our readers. It's no good the day after election day bemoaning the loss of a candidate we liked but didn't bother to vote for. We urge all our readers to evaluate the candidates, consider the issues, and get out and vote on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

A Letter from Lulubelle...

...Were you a depression kid?...I read the statistics, and I note that 40% of the workers were unemployed, but that means that 62% were employed...so if your Father had a job, you were probably quite comfortable, since everything was so cheap in those days...But, by "depression kid", I mean that your Father was unemployed or, maybe, sometimes employed and things were tough...Did your Mother send you to the door to say to the bill collectors, "My Mother told me to say that she's not home"...or did she send you to the lighting company office to ask for an extension so they wouldn't turn off the lights?...And did they sometimes turn them off anyway and you sat in the dark for a few nights until your parents could find the means to turn them on again...and did your Mother send you to the store for a pound of chuck chopped and to tell the butcher that she'd pay him next week?...and did the kindly butcher look harried, but give you the chuck chopped anyway?...and did you sew most of your own clothes from very nice material which cost 19¢ a yard?...and did you know the outlet shop where buttons were 2¢ on a card?...and did you wear $1.98 shoes and take them to the shoemaker many times?...and sometimes when the gas was turned off, did your Mother cook on a kerosene stove that smelled up the house?...And did you, anyway, think you had a great life because your parents loved you so much and made you feel so very special—and you were never hungry...I hope you did.

Yours, Lulubelle

People Who Work Hard Should Excel!

I have recently read the article "Thrown Out For Being Too Good." In my opinion these are two women who have tried their best and I feel they should be commended. Is that the way the U.S.T.A. rewards their players by getting them thrown out? This is a complete outrage!

Hicksville's Debbie Salline and Plainview's Susan Grant-Dandaeu are hard working tennis players and they deserve to compete in the beginner 2.5 level. If they are that good they should move on to a higher level. People that work hard should excel, not to be put down or penalized for their overwhelming talent.

Sincerely,
Christine Single

PS. Debbie and Susan, if you guys are that great you should train for the US Open and show the USTA that there's nothing wrong with being the best.

BON VOYAGE

By Edythe and Jack Shepard

We recently attended a New York City seminar sponsored by the Vermont Ski Areas Association (for the sole purpose of reportage, since neither of us has ever been on skis). The state is one of our favorites, its governor was speaking and we wanted to learn more about its leading sport. He reported that Vermont saw an increase in skiers from the previous season's 3.8 million to 1992-93's 4.1 million.

Its famed Killington Ski resort is spending $5 million on new programs and improvements and the state's other ski resorts, including just-reopened Ascutney and Stowe Mountain, Sugarbush and Mt. Snow, Jay Peak and child-oriented Smuggler's Notch and Okem, are just some of its ski sites, with magnificent scenery in addition to top notch skiing.

New England abounds in ski resorts, with its upper regions a (mostly) dependable snow area. Maine's Saddleback and Sugarloaf, New Hampshire's Loon Mountain and Jackson Mountain (and New Hampshire is offering an interchangeable Family Ski Pass at 16 resorts for week-days, with accompanying children, 12 and under, free. For information on the $159 pass and resorts, call (800) 887-5464).

Massachusetts's Mt. Tom and Snow Basin, Connecticut's Mohawk Mountain and Powder Ridge...are just a few of closer-to-us resorts. The Poconos' ski offerings include Tanglewood, Big Boulder and Shawnee Mountain; New Jersey's Hidden Valley and Cragmeur; and New York's Hunter Mountain, Windham and Catskill resorts are among the many ski areas. Farther upstate, Adirondack sites include Lake Placid, scene of two winter Olympics and Whiteface Mountain.

For longer ski vacations where the East's Currier & Ives scenes change to the awe-inspiring Rockies, our western slopes, from Arizona to Wyoming, offer hundreds of ski resorts which beckon skiers from beginners to Jean Claude Killys. From Aspen to Willamette Pass, skiers can zip down the trails or enjoy cross-country skiing across snow-sculptured landscapes. California lists famed Squaw Valley and Lake Tahoe (for ski and slots) among its many resorts; for a quieter holiday, Taos in New Mexico and Utah's Alta are peaceful spots, where eating and skiing it off are sole activities. Idaho's Sun Valley is "in" with 13 miles of cross-country trails, 64 ski runs, gourmet restaurants and discos. The more casual Club Med Copper Mountain in Colorado boasts 76 runs, with sparse accommodations and buffet meals on an all-inclusive plan.

Considered by many to be America's premier ski resort, Colorado's Aspen boasts a swinging image, with luxury accommodations, boutiques, dining and extensive nightlife, in addition to tops in skiing areas. It is here and in Vail where the international jet set skis and socializes. Nevada has daytime skiing and nighttime gambling and add Oregon, Wyoming, Montana and Washington (and their neighbors) to the list of ski states; some offering the sport from November to mid-June. In addition, our mid-west ski regions, although not possessing the longest trails, greatest vertical drops or widest bowls of the west, account for 20 percent of the US ski terrain.

All ages take to the slopes and skiers insist that you're never too old to ski. To prove it, Elderhostel sponsors cross-country ski and study programs for over 60s. Cardiologist Marvin Mosler calls cross-country skiing, "Great exercise for seniors. It's very healthy and conditions the heart to function more efficiently."

Family skiing vacations are becoming increasingly popular, with added children's facilities at many resorts and special instruction programs for toddlers and

Great American Art Event

The Second Annual Great American Art Event is scheduled for Friday, November 19 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday, November 20, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Huntington Hilton on Route 110 in Melville.

There will be free admission to the main ballroom so Long Island artists can meet with over 50 national manufacturers and suppliers who will showcase and demonstrate "state-of-the-art" materials and equipment. Among the many companies participating are Alexander Art, American Artist magazine, Binney and Smith Art Supplies, Grumbacher Paints and Brushes, Koh-i-noor Technical Supplies, and Winsor and Newton Art Supplies. Visitors to the show will also have the opportunity to purchase art supplies from the vendors at below wholesale prices.

There will also be ongoing seminar and workshop programs on an extremely low cost basis. Topics will include Airbrush Basics, Figure Drawing, Mixed Media, Color Theory, Freelance Illustration, Photography and many more. These seminars and workshops will be conducted by outstanding art experts such as Stephen Doherty, Robert Paschal, Peter Sheehan, and Peter West.

This exposition is being coordinated by Alan Jacobowitz of Pearl Art and Craft, Inc of East Meadow. For further information on this event or to receive a free brochure and a $5 gift certificate, call Alan Jacobowitz at 731-3700.

Singles Concert Social

The Joffrey Ballet will perform on Friday, November 5 at 8 p.m. as part of the Tilles Center's third consecutive season of concert socials for singles.

In the past the series have included offerings as varied as grand opera, modern dance and intimate cabaret and chamber music. Blending sparkling entertainment with stimulating social gatherings, each of the six events of the 1993/94 Singles Series includes a pre- or post-concert dessert social or buffet supper at either the Top of the Commons restaurant or The Hillwood Art Museum, both located in Hillwood Commons adjoining the Tilles Center.

The all-inclusive Concert Social ticket price is $35 per event. For further information, call 242-3111.

Free Heart Health Program

With the holidays just around the corner, it's time once again to focus on families, friends and most importantly — your own good health. Winthrop-University Hospital, in conjunction with the Long Island Heart Council, will hold a free program to promote heart health, including cholesterol and blood pressure screening, on Thursday, November 4, at Winthrop's Conference Center, 101 Mineola Boulevard in Mineola, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Screenings will include recommendations for heart healthy living and nutritional counseling. The program is free, but registration is required, so call 663-2234 to reserve your place.

Arts And Crafts Fair

The Oyster Bay High School Parent, Teacher, student Association is seeking craftspersons and vendors of homemade items to participate in an Arts and Crafts Fair that it is sponsoring.

The Fair will take place on Saturday, Nov. 13 and Sunday, Nov. 14 in the Oyster Bay High School cafeteria. Oyster Bay High School is located on East Main Street in the Hamlet of Oyster Bay.

The Camera As Palette At Nassau Art Museum

Photographic imagery, blended with other media in many cases, has become the art form most closely associated with the 1970s and 1980s and forms the nucleus of an exhibition now running at the Nassau County Museum of Art.

Titled "Image Makers," the show pays homage to the emergence of photography from its journalistic origins into the mainstream of art. This trend hit its stride during the past two decades with artists such as Robert Mapplethorpe and Tina Barney leading the way.

According to Franklin H. Perrel, curator of the exhibition, those aware of this evolution can now trace it through its various stages.

"The camera was first used as a medium for both artistic expression and the dramatization of social issues," he said. "Its full integration into the artist's choice of media, along with oil, water color and sculpture, did not reach maturity until about twenty years ago."

The exhibition will continue until January 2. Museum hours are from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, with free docent tours available on Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m. Admission is $3 per person, $2 for senior citizens and students.

The entrance to the Nassau County Museum of Art is on the north side of Glen Cove Road, in Rockville Centre. For further information, call 484-9338.

Coromandel Sea Change, Rumer Godden, Quill/William Morrow, 259 pp., $9.

Coromandel Sea Change was first published in 1991 as a hard cover book and is now available as a quality paperback.

Rumer Godden is well known to the reading public, having published more than 20 novels, 10 collections of short stories, a number of non-fiction works, volumes of poetry and 22 books for children. Among her more well-known works are Black Narcissus and China Court.

Many of her books are set in India, and Coromandel Sea Change is one of these. This is a story of a week in the life of Patna Court, a family hotel in Madras in India, ruled over by "Auntie Sanni." Auntie Sanni's grandfather had started the hotel in the 1890s but the house was older than that. "Built by some nabob of the East India Company in the 18th century to catch the sea breezes," Aunt Sanni says.

Arriving in Patna Hall on the week of the story are a number of politicians and campaign workers preparing for the imminent election. Chief among these is Krishnan Bhanj, a charismatic young leader with unorthodox campaign techniques. Other guests at the hall are Sir John and Lady Fisher, old India hands who always take their vacation there; Professor Aaron, the leader of the International Association of Art, Technology and Culture and 18 American women archaeologists, professional and amateur, who are members of his group; and Blaise St. John Browne and Mary Browne, who are on their honeymoon.

It is Mary Browne, "slight, her overlarge spectacles making her look like a schoolgirl," who becomes the catalyst of Coromandel Sea Change. Mary is only 19. Her father is in the British diplomatic corps and she has married Blaise, who had been on her father's staff. They are in India on their honeymoon and will remain there for Blaise is now posted to Calcutta. The two young people quickly find that they do not know one another very well. Blaise is irritated by Patna Hall with its fairly primitive facilities while Mary is enchanted by everything about it. While Mary looks along the beach and sees "small lanterns under a darkness of trees," Blaise looks for hangars in the closet and finds none.

Their differences are compounded when Mary becomes involved with the election and with Krishnan. Tragedy is the result of this sea change. Readers will think of E.M. Forster and of The Jewel In The Crown, but Godden's voice is distinctly her own.

A second major scheme deals with false investments opportunities. Investment in oil, gold or precious gems are often promoted. Individuals who participate are often given a false sense of security by the receipt of dividends. However these 'benefits' are not paid from profit but from recent victims. To check if an opportunity is legitimate check with Consumer Affairs office or Better Business Bureau.

Johnson explained that it is not the responsibility of the Post Office to regulate "junk mail" unless it is blatantly obscene. "Once you purchase products through the mail your name is on "hot list", he notes. "Your name is worth between 5 and 15 cents depending on the kind of 'hot' list it is." However, consumers can contact the Direct Mail Association and request that their name be stricken from all mailing lists. The association will then contact all their members and all reputable firms will then voluntarily remove your name."

Throughout this week customers are encouraged to bring suspect mail to the Post Office. Members of the Postal Inspection Service will be available for consumers to talk with about the issue as well.

The Postal Inspection Service is the oldest law enforcement institution in America and the only institution that handles problems with the mail. Hicksville Post Office is the major mailing institution on Long Island.

Wholly Halloween?

By Ed Walsh

On Halloween, hordes of tiny ghosts, ghouls and goblins will descend on suburban neighborhoods looking for lots of loot. But these trick-or-treaters may be tricked by their own door-to-door ritual. Each year the media reports on kids who have died or narrowly escaped injury because some adults put poison, pins, razor blades, laxatives and ground glass into handouts.

Add to these hazards of Halloween the muggers and molesters who exploit the carnival spirit to claim fresh victims. And let's not overlook the vandals who prey on public and private property with impunity. We homeowners will shudder as soon as the sun sets on All Hallows Eve, and who knows what malicious mischief the night marauders are planning. In the past they've roared down our quiet streets indiscriminately throwing bottles and other ammunition. Fences have been destroyed while planters and pumpkins have been picked off front lawns and wrecked.

The egg tossers are a special menace when they select human targets. Several years ago, a Long Island teenager heading home from a Halloween party in Westbury was hit in the face. Eggshell fragments lodged in both eyes causing hemorrhaging. A surgeon removed them but the victim needed long-term treatment.

In my hometown egg bombers caused the cancellation of a highly successful community program sponsored by civic groups. The annual Halloween kiddie parade up main street was discontinued because trouble-makers "egged" costumed contestants.

Poison, pins and projectiles aren't the only Halloween horrors that plague our children. What about psychological hazards? The practice of demanding handouts door-to-door is nothing more than mild extortion. Translated, trick-or-treat means "give me something or else." Is this what we want kids to learn? Encouraging this something-for-nothing attitude influences a child's values. Is it any wonder those cute little goblins get greedy around Christmas time, making excessive demands on parents and feeling cheated if Santa Claus fails to deliver the goodies. Halloween's "gimmee" attitude subtly fosters manipulation and creates a serious social liability in later life.

What a shame that this once happy-go-lucky holiday featuring harmless fun and frolic has succumbed to the sickness of society. Despite the drawbacks, we need not abolish Halloween. Let's rehabilitate it so that it conforms to its original purpose. Literally, Halloween means "hallowed evening". Seventh century Christians baptized ancient Druidic festivities and converted the pagan holiday into a holy day—the vigil of All Saints. This celebration focused on the good deeds of God's superstars. People were encouraged to emulate them.

Likewise, our observance of this "hallowed evening" could be a time when

Nassau Residents Pay The Highest Taxes in the United States Yet, the incumbent County Executive claims he's "held the line on taxes."

When the middle-class homeowner must pay in excess of $100 per week for real estate taxes alone, in the words of Presidential candidate Ross Perot, "it's time to pick up the shovel and clean out the barn"

Elect Ben Zwirn County Executive

As North Hempstead Town Supervisor, Ben Zwirn proposed tax cuts in each of his four budgets. From a 19.5% General Fund tax cut in 1991, to a 24% garbage tax reduction in 1993. Ben's 1994 budget brings spending down to 1982 levels and the lowest tax rate since 1975...A record he's proud of. Ben's goal is to make Nassau an affordable place to live again for you, your children, and for businesses

Following are some facts from County Tax Records. You know that Gulotta's tax hikes have shaken you up, Tuesday, November 2, is your turn to shake him up.

Following is an example of an average middle-class homeowner's tax burden in Western Nassau County. Amounts will vary depending upon your school, and special district taxes, and the assessed valuation of your house.

Assessed Valuation	Annual	Weekly
5,000	$3823	$74.00
6,000	$4588	$88.00
7,000	$5352	$103.00
8,000	$6117	$118.00
9,000	$6881	$132.00
10,000	$7645	$147.00

These figures do not include the hidden Real Estate Taxes paid to LILCO (approx. 17%) or to private water companies. Nor do they include sales taxes, fees or tax increases that may be announced after Election Day, as usually happens in Nassau County.

The Incumbent County Executive's First Five Years

1986 County General Fund Tax Levy was $121.2 million
1991 County General Fund Tax Levy was $208.3 million

That's a 72% increase, while inflation for the same period was up less than 18%!
In fact, in one year alone, County General Fund taxes went up a whopping 64% charity prevails. Those kids who collect for UNICEF exemplify that spirit of generosity. They beg not for themselves but for needy neighbors around the world. Their fund raising is not only fun, it fosters selflessness.

Surely, similar opportunities for service exist in every community. The trouble with Halloween is that we expect too little of it. Why not channel youthful energies. Kids could beautify parks, perform home chores for the elderly, visit pediatric wards, homes for the aged and shut-ins. Older youth could help organize neighborhood parties to teach tots the delights of apple bobbing and nibbling donuts off a string. This could help eliminate the risky ritual of begging of sugar-laden treats door-to-door.

If more communities would sponsor such alternative celebrations, we worriers could convert a liability into an asset. Halloween could become "Children's Day," with an emphasis on giving instead of constantly getting. What an ideal preparation for the great feasts of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The idea of a National Children's Day is not far-fetched. For the past several years, a young girl from the state of Washington has been lobbying by letter for officials to establish such an observance. Why not on Halloween? Iowa and Massachusetts already celebrate Youth Honor Day on October 31. What better way to honor youth than by helping them serve their communities. It gives kids a chance to practice what they hear preached about being good citizens. As Plato observed, "What is honored in a country will be cultivated there."

There's no great trick to treating the trouble infecting Halloween. Adults' enthusiasm coupled with youths' idealism could be the brew with which we might purge this "hallowed evening" of its after bitter aftertaste. And that could be the start of something big.

well as having a desire to work with handicapped children. Her internship is at Empire State College in Brookville where she helps with the Equestrian classes for handicapped individuals. "She has taken her two interests and matched them in a very nice way," says Evelyn Acosta.

Other students are working in diverse settings such as a dentist office, hospital and high-tech electronic service center. Students interested in early childhood intern at the nursery schools. Acosta would like to increase the minimum amount of time they spend on their projects to 10 hours. "The more time they spend on the site, the more valuable the experience," she reflected.

Both Evelyn Acosta and Nancy DeSorbo would like to expand the business reservoir for internships and the Job Placement service. On October 19, DeSorbo addressed the members of the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce in order to solicit support from members' businesses for the program.

The Federal Government doesn't get it. The State Government doesn't get it. The School Board doesn't get it. And worst of all, Democrat Supervisor Lewis J. Yevoli JUST DOESN'T GET IT!

Yevoli is complaining that his proposed budget was rejected. Yes, the Republican Town Board rejected Yevoli's proposal because...

In Yevoli's 1994 budget proposal, spending was higher, your tax cut was much lower and Yevoli actually tried to give raises as high as $10,000 to the political cronies on his personal staff. It's all there in black and white.

Court Buffs Meet With D.A. Dillon

Nassau County District Buffs recently met with the "Court Buffs" in Mineola. The group of retired residents observe criminal trials on a regular basis. The members come from various communities in Nassau County. Left to Right: Jim Canniff, Carle Place; Leo Calasante, Port Washington; Fred Paparcuri, Hicksville; Sal Mangano and Joe Macaluso of Plainview; Dante Claffa, Rockville Centre; Ben Gonsowski, Farmingdale; John White, Mineola and Jim Di Benedetto of Seaford.

nurseries for infants. Vermont's Smugler's Notch's new lift and trail has been installed for young skiers and New Hampshire's Attitash Ski Area teaches children's skills on a storybook-theme terrain. Most resorts offer the sport to novice, intermediate and advanced skiers, with packages for every need; from lodging to lodging cum skiing, with rental equipment, transportation, lift tax, instruction and use of all indoor and outdoor facilities. Many areas feature high cuisine along with high peaks. But you can surrender to epicurean temptations, knowing that tonight's sorbet will be slalomed off on tomorrow's slopes. Last year's skier visits in the U.S. increased 4.5 percent over the 1991-92 winter, with 53.1 million ski-people participating. Colorado led the nation in ski visitors, with California and Vermont and New York, fourth in ski tourism last season. "Unlikely" ski sites can be found on top of a volcano on Hawaii's big island, on Israel's Golan Heights overlooking armed personnel carriers, and in Virginia and Georgia's Blue Ridge Mountains. Your travel agent can fill you in on ski resorts and you can contact the state's Chamber of Commerce for ski area information. Resorts will send brochures and details and airlines offer good values in fly-ski packages.

Mortgages for every size and shape of home.

You don't have to run all over the place. Or make a million phone calls, either. Not when you can find the right low-rate mortgage right here in the neighborhood, at your local Emigrant Savings Bank branch. You'll get the information you need—as well as responsive service from an Emigrant Mortgage Consultant, who will meet with you at your convenience at our branch, or at your office or home. Stop by the Hicksville branch today and ask for the manager, John Schnitzler. He'll be glad to show you why, for any size or shape of home, the best place to find the right low-rate mortgage is right here in the neighborhood. At Emigrant.

IF YOU TAKE A CLOSE LOOK, THERE'S ONLY ONE REAL CHOICE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Did you know Denis Dillon's Democratic opponent is actually just another Republican?

Isn't it time Nassau County had a real choice for District Attorney? One who'll face today's complex issues with sound judgement and fresh ideas.

As Nassau District Attorney, Mark Morgenstern will seek to:

•Increase sentences for crimes against seniors and children.

•Create programs to rid our schools of drugs and violence.

•And, as the only real Pro-Choice candidate, aggressively defend every woman's right to choose.

That's why, when you consider your choices for District Attorney, there's only one choice.

Reelect COUNCILMAN LEN SYMONS

"... Another warm endorsement goes out to Councilman Leonard Symons who is seeking reelection. Symons is one of the most independent and progressive political thinkers in local government today, and we enthusiastically endorse his bid for reelection. He has continuously shown that he's willing to vote his conscience, at times going against his own party to do what he believed was right for the people. He deserves to be reelected and the people deserve to be represented by such a fine councilman."

NYS Funding For Nassau County Libraries

Governor Mario M. Cuomo announced that a total of $128, 130 in funding has been distributed to five libraries in Nassau County through the federal Library Services and Construction Act.

The Libraries and corresponding amounts are:

Bethpage Public Library $45,485
Garden City Public Library $24,150
Henry Waldinger Memorial $24,300 (Valley Stream)

Hicksville Public Library $6,160
Lakeview Public Library $28,035

The funding is part of $871, 177 awarded to public libraries across the state. These funds supplement more than $73 million in State aid to public libraries for operating and construction expenses in the 1993-94 budget.

Libraries are permitted to use these federal funds to build new facilities, acquire or renovate their buildings. They can also purchase new equipment and pay construction expenses such as architect fees or land purchases with these funds.

A School Above The Rest

According to the Bureau of Propriety School Supervision report, the court Reporting School of Hicksville has a total completion rate of 72.2% compared with 26.5% for the total state. The figures reflect enrollment, completion rate and professional placement of students from July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992.

"This school's success also surpasses the national average by more than 62%," said William Oliver, past president of the National Court Reporters Association. "The national average for students completing a court reporting program is approximately 10 %."

Court reporters deal with a variety of issues including environmental law, drug regulation and the financial marketplace. Mary Hauptman is the current president of the Court Reporting Institute. This is the second year in a row that NYS statistics placed the school at the top of their field.

596 runners recently participated the Town of Oyster Bay 5 Kilometer Run at Fireman's Field.

Local Runners Score In Oyster Bay Festival

On Saturday October 16, the 1993 Oyster Bay Festival at Fireman's Field in Oyster Bay, 596 runners gathered for the TOB 5 Kilometer Run. Age group winners from Hicksville included John Lupski, who took top honors in the 40-44 age group in 17:36 and Mike Bradley first in the 30-34 age group with 18:42. Liz Flavahan was the 4th woman overall across the finish line in 19:43.

The runners started off in front of Fireman's Field, headed down Lake Avenue and up the hill to the Planting Fields Arboretum, before turning downhill and heading to the finish back at Fireman's Field.

The run was conducted by the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club, with POBRRC President Mike Polansky serving as Race Director, with a strong assist from Club Volunteers Coordinator Mindy Lerner, Logistics Director Don Butchin and a crew of 50 volunteer race officials from the Club. Technical assistance was provided by David Katz of Finish Line Productions.

Grass Roots Alliance

Chemical Bank has extended its annual New York City Marathon Sponsorship to include the Achilles Track Club, a not-for-profit organization which supports and trains disabled athletes world-wide.

The goal of this years effort is to communicate powerful messages about overcoming obstacles by focusing disabled athletes who face seemingly unsurmountable challenges everyday.

"Achilles athletes know what it's like to be told "No, you can't" and be counted out of the game," says Dick Traum, President of the Achilles Track Club. " Yet each of them has set a goal and realized that the best thing about barriers is breaking through them.

Chemicals new campaign includes addressing student assemblies at over 25 schools throughout the New York metropolitan region as well as branch wide banners symbolizing the winning Spirit of todays disabled runner.

The campaign will also indirectly support a select group of Achilles runners by inviting customers to pledge a contribution based upon the completed distance of the designated Achilles runner in that branch.

Chemical will then match each customer contribution dollar for dollar and donate all funds generated to the Achilles Track Club. In addition, a set of commemorative trading cards featuring these athletes has been created to acknowledge their personal, professional and athletic achievements and will be distributed to kids throughout the area.

The Achilles Track Club is a not-for-profit organization with chapters in 23 countries world-wide. It is affiliated with the New York City Road Runners Club, which has organized the New York City Marathon since 1970.

Leukemia Society of America, Golf & Tennis Outing

The Ninth Annual Leukemia Society of America, Golf & Tennis Outing included 20 Tennis players and over 100 Golfers. The Outing recently took place at the Garden City Country Club. Over $45,000 was raised for Leukemia research and patient aid. An exciting exhibition was given by Chuck Workman of the PGA Senior Tour.

Walking For Your Health

Walking is one of the best exercises people suffering from Arthritis can do. With the popularity of walking in Malls, the Arthritis Foundation, located in Melville, will hold it's first mall walk program. The walk will be held in two locations Walt Whitman Mall, Melville and Sunrise Mall in Massapequa. Both events will be held December 11, 1993, at 9 am.

There is no entry fee, but preregistration is preferred. The walk is 5K (3.1 miles) or 6 laps around the mall level. Walkers who raise $50 or more will win more prizes.

Overall winners Mike Anderson and Eileen Barnes Corley are presented with award plaques by Bob Conners of the State Bank of Long Island TOB Councilman Len Symons and TOB Supervisor L. Yevoll.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you think the government should set limits on violence on TV?

Callers Doubt Ability Of Aristide In Haiti

Most callers to Input do not believe that Father Aristide will be able to bring democracy to Haiti in answer to this question: "Do you think that Aristide will be able to provide a workable government for Haiti?" Here are some of the answers:

BE CAREFUL

In answer to your question which appears to hedge the point of whether Aristide is a representative of democracy or just another way to govern and exploit the people. Since Pappa Doc left the country things have not been much better than when he was exploiting the Haitians. The army did its share of corruption and Aristide is said to have done some things also. I have little faith that things will be better if the U.S. and U.N. go all out and bring in Aristide even though he was elected. L.D.

HE WAS ELECTED

The point is not whether Aristide will be better. He has been chosen by the people in an election and should be allowed to assume his role as president. We believe in democratic forms of government so we should help him to set one up. Certainly the army has no right to decide to ignore the election. M.F.

HANDS OFF

I don't believe the U.S. should become involved in Haiti, either through the U.N. or on its own. We should keep hands off because no matter what our good intentions are they will be distorted into calling everything we do imperialism. Clinton should not be allowed to send troops to Haiti and Congress should hold up any funds that would allow him to do so. F.G.

KEEP BLOCKADE

I do not think that Aristide will even be alive a month after he goes to Haiti. Many of his associates have already been assassinated by the army and they will kill him as well. Unless we are prepared to have a mini war in Haiti we should not interfere. The blockade is the best we can do. G.S.

ARMY IN CONTROL

There is not much to go on to believe that Aristide can do anything even if he returns to Haiti. The army is in control as it has been for several years and it will kill anyone who disagrees with it. We could go and overpower the army, but this would require resolution on our part and we do not have it. When the going gets rough, as it did in Somalia, we will have to back away because the public does not want a war and if our President thinks they do, he will be sorry. What happens in Haiti will have to be determined by that country. N.C.

UNTRIED LEADER

Aristide is really an untried leader. He is good in oratory, but he does not have the battlefield respect that is shown in Cuba for Castro. I believe Aristide will fail and could lose his life in trying to lead Haiti at this time. B.V.

RESCUE HAITI

If the U.N. is really anything at all it will have to help Aristide rescue the country from the army. Aristide was elected in a free election and if we really believe in democracy we have no choice but to defend it in Haiti. True, there is no oil there so we don't get excited, but the more we take part in things and just give out platitudes the more the world will disrespect us. The U.N. is in a similar position. H.N.

ELECTED OFFICIAL

It is not for us to say if Aristide can lead or not. He was elected and has the right to just as Clinton is President of the U.S. even though I did not vote for him, he has the right to govern. We should help him get a chance. K.H.

NO FAITH IN ARISTIDE

Many years ago in line with my corporate responsibilities I made a visit to Port Au Prince and my recollection is one lacking in mental comfort. I spent some time down at the pier where a lot of native workers were congregated and can only recall a distinct feeling of complete unease. Since then, many changes have taken place in Haiti mostly to the detriment of the populous with the fervent hope that Father Jean Bertrande Aristide would eventually return to power restoring national peace. Quite honestly, I don't believe that the nation is ready to accept such a peaceful solution as much as I would like to see it. It's a shame too in consideration of a comparison with the tranquil existence of their immediate neighbor the Dominican Republic. Try as I may, I just can't feel that Aristide would be able to provide a workable government in Haiti. P.G.S.

WINE TALK

California meets Burgundy

By Richard Nalley

It is easy to see why the most annoyingly self-satisfied of all wine snobs are Burgundy lovers. The famous red wines of Burgundy (Bourgogne on the French label) are undeniably great drinks: velvety, spicy, smoky and packed with the essence of crushed berries.

These Pinot Noir-based wines are also hyperexpensive and notoriously difficult to figure out from their labels. People who understand these wines, and can afford them, sometimes get the idea that they belong to a very exclusive club.

Well, they are going to have to broaden the membership. At some point the Burgundy snobs will have to concede that California — and Oregon — are making some lovely Pinot Noir. It doesn't happen every vintage, and so far the wines don't threaten the celebrated mantles of Romanee-Conti or Chambertin, but U.S. Pinot Noir can lay claim to some very seductive wines. And the cool, delayed harvest of the 1991 California vintage seems to have produced a number of them.

Of course what you are paying for in the greatest Burgundies is a kind of layered complexity and their ability to develop a remarkable range of exotic flavors and aromas over time. If the U.S. wines so far show only occasional flashes of this, it seems undeniable that they can be at least as good as and usually better than Burgundies in the under-$20 range.

And the good domestic Pinots — though they tend more toward richness — have much of the same food-loving flexibility as the great Burgundies. These are wines to order when one of you is having tuna steak and the other beefsteak.

Here are the best California Pinot Noirs recently sampled.

WINES $10 AND UNDER

A truly Pinot-y tasting Pinot Noir at this price level remains something of an elusive target. The best of those I've tasted lately is the Buena Vista 1991 Pinot Noir, Carneros, a medium- to light-bodied wine with some berry savor and great food flexibility.

Several others won't really give you an idea of what Pinot Noir is all about but fall into the "decent red wine" category at a decent price. These include the juicy, easy-drinking Monterey Vineyard 1991 "Classic" Pinot Noir, the fruity Corbett Canyon 1991 Pinot Noir, and the spicy, light Charles Krug 1991 Pinot Noir.

WINES $12-$16

There is a notable step up in varietal character among wines at this price level.

Gloria Ferrer, a winery on the Sonoma side of the Carneros region that joins southern Napa and Sonoma, is known for its sparkling wines, which include Pinot Noir as part of their blend. To my knowledge the Gloria Ferrer 1991 Pinot Noir, Carneros, is the winery's first effort at a still wine, and it's a lovely one. A wine with a spicy perfume and notes of citrus and caramel (honest), it has a fine delicacy that sets it apart from the overrich style of some California Pinot.

The Chateau Souverain 1991 Pinot Noir Winemaker's Reserve, Carneros, makes more exuberant use of the Carneros fruit than the wine above, with a heavier extract of fruit and tannin. At least in the wine's youth this is nevertheless very lively and comes across with flavors of berry, allspice and vanilla.

Other recommended Carneros wines recently tasted include the juicy, fruity Sterling 1991 Pinot Noir, Winery Lake Vineyard, a wine with a medium-bodied charm, and the Clos du Val 1989 Pinot Noir Carneros, a rich wine with lots of soft tannins.

The Wild Horse 1991 Pinot Noir, Santa Barbara County, comes from a cool growing area that, like Carneros, is emerging as one of the New World's premier Pinot Noir growing areas. It is absolutely delicious, packed with juicy, crushed-berry flavor with a tart, grapefruit-like element to give it extra interest.

Another winner from Santa Barbara County is the Cambria 1991 Pinot Noir, Julia's Vineyard, Santa Maria Valley, a lush, perfumed wine with a flavor reminiscent of ripe black cherries and a bit of zip to it.

From the Pinnacles area of California's central coast that produced the Pick of Week below is the Gavilan 1991 Pinot Noir, Monterey County, from Chalone Vineyard.

It is elegant and light, with a light, bright red color to match, and a delicious fruitiness — a sophisticated, easy-to-drink wine that will go with a wide range of foods.

A tasty wine with a different stylistic goal in mind is the Benziger 1990 Pinot Noir, Sonoma County. This is a wine for flavor lovers, with a wafting perfume of smoke, gardenia and wild cherry. Its oak treatment is just on this side of too much, giving it vanilla and a toasty quality, but also a dose of tannin that detracts a bit from the wine's pure pleasurableness.

PICK OF THE WEEK

Pinnacles 1991 Pinot Noir, Monterey ($15). This is a rich, perfumed beauty, luscious but with a fine balancing acidity, a touch of toasted oak and loads of savorable fresh berry.

DINING GUIDE

HOME ENTERTAINING

A Halloween that's twice as good

By Carol Cutler

Halloween is always a lot of fun. Smiles break out when the tiny goblins and Mickey Mouses appear at the door. In not-too-formal offices, employees are encouraged to wear something in the spirit of the day. Grown-ups have taken over the holiday in a big way in the last few years.

This time you can have a two-tiered party. Invite neighborhood children in after their appointed rounds for a hot dessert. In most cases they will have had supper before going out, that is, if they are not too excited to eat.

But there will be real excitement when they see your Pumpkin Surprise. The pumpkin does triple duty in this dessert. It is the baking vessel, the serving container and part of the finished product, too. There always is a look of surprise and delight when the steaming hot pumpkin comes to the table.

Then the next party is yours. It begins after the children have been taken home. You will be more relaxed if dinner is completely done in advance. Make a stew, a hearty soup or a pre-baked casserole that only needs warming up a bit.

Serving a cold main course is another direction to take, especially if you prepare another hot Pumpkin Surprise for dessert. There are many possibilities. Consider cold sliced meats or chicken, poached salmon or other large fish, pates or terrines, even ample salads such as pasta, chicken, turkey or shrimp.

This Halloween, the whole day can be a party. Have your children, and a few others if you like, come in the afternoon to help clean out the pumpkins and toast the pumpkin seeds for munching. Scooping out the seeds and fibers from inside the fruit can be a tiresome chore in some specimens. In others, they pull out easily, but one can never be sure.

After you cut off the tops, arm the children with sturdy spoons and lots of newspapers. First the fibers and seeds are pulled out, then any remaining fibers are scraped out.

The seeds should be rinsed under running water, spread on paper towels to dry, then scattered on a lightly oiled cookie sheet. Bake them in a slow 250 F oven for about 1 1/4 hours, or until completely dry. Turn the seeds occasionally during the roasting.

Reward each of the children with a handful of seeds to nibble on; keep the rest to serve with cocktails at your second party. Any leftover seeds should be stored in an airtight container.

PUMPKIN SURPRISE

- 1 (4- to 4 1/2-pound) pumpkin, preferably with stem intact
- 12 gingersnaps
- 2 medium apples, unpeeled, quartered, cored and sliced thin
- 2 medium bananas, peeled and sliced
- 1 cup pineapple tidbits (if canned, reserve juice)

- 6 tablespoons brown sugar
 - 1 to 1 1/2 cups orange juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
 - 1 tablespoon orange liqueur (for adults only)
 - 1/2 tablespoon oil
- Yields 6 servings.
Preheat oven to 350 F.

With strong, sharp knife, cut off lid from pumpkin and put it aside. Scrape out seeds and fibers. Place pumpkin on baking dish or large pie dish, one that can be taken to dining table.

Crumble 4 gingersnaps into bottom of pumpkin, then layer in half the apples, bananas and pineapple. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Repeat with 4 gingersnaps, remaining fruit and 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Make final layer of remaining 4 gingersnaps and 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Do not completely fill pumpkin shell; leave about 3/4 inch at top.

Mix 1 cup of orange juice with any reserved pineapple juice and cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and orange liqueur, if using. Beat juices together and pour over fruit and gingersnaps; liquid should be barely visible through top layer of crumbled gingersnaps. If necessary, add a little more orange juice.

Replace lid on pumpkin, making certain it fits well; follow cutting line. If fit of lid is not tight, place a piece of aluminum foil over top. Pour oil on paper towel and rub surface of pumpkin to give it a shine.

Bake for about 2 hours or until pumpkin flesh is soft. Test by removing pumpkin lid and inserting a small, sharp knife into pulp.

The baked pumpkin should be served very warm but not piping hot. Present it at the table as it is, remove lid for everyone to see steam rise, and use 2 long spoons for serving. Fruit and pumpkin pulp are scooped out together.

KITCHEN KIDS

By Rena Coyle

Harvest muffins

Warm muffins on a cool fall morning make a very special beginning of the day. They are easy to make and, best of all, they bake in a short length of time. Your kids can decide in the morning to make any of these muffins, and they require little, if any, advance planning.

In developing these recipes, I kept in mind ingredients that you probably already have around the house. But if you find your kitchen without certain ingredients, don't fret; often they can either be eliminated or exchanged with other ingredients.

For example, if you don't have canned pears for the Pear and Apple Muffins, use a fresh chopped apple or canned peaches instead. Remember that nuts always can be interchangeable, or eliminated all together.

Another idea is to exchange listed spices with ones you already have in the cupboard. If you don't have nutmeg, use ground cloves or cardamom instead.

When cooking or baking with your children, you do need to be prepared and organized in advance. But remember that once you have selected a recipe to prepare, use your imagination as well as your child's to fill in the spaces where the recipe's ingredient list doesn't match what you have in your cupboards.

Baking is one of the easiest areas to start your kids off in the kitchen. With parental guidance, toddlers will happily pour and mix whatever ingredients are laid out for them. Older children can make any of these muffin recipes on their own.

As these children become more proficient in the kitchen, they can add their own signature ingredient to their favorite breakfast muffins.

PEANUT BUTTER AND BANANA MUFFINS

Vegetable spray
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 banana
½ cup peanut butter
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup roasted peanuts
¼ cup sour cream
Yields 12 muffins.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Baking time: 25 minutes.

Utensils: 12-cup nonstick muffin tin, measuring cups and spoons, 2 mixing bowls, electric mixer, rubber scraper, oven mitts.

Spray vegetable spray in and around muffin cups. Set aside. Preheat oven to 450 F.

Combine flour, baking powder, cinnamon and nutmeg in mixing bowl; set aside. Peel banana and break it into small pieces; set aside.

In second bowl, beat peanut butter and sugar together. Stop and occasionally scrape down sides of bowl. Add eggs, one at a time; blend. Add banana pieces and blend. Add flour mixture, half at a time, and mix on low speed until blended. Add peanuts and sour cream. Blend until smooth.

Spoon batter into muffin cups until two-thirds full. Put on oven mitts and carefully place tin in oven; bake for 25 minutes. Turn off oven and, with mitts, remove tin. Let muffins cool 5 minutes before removing from pan.

CRANBERRY NUT MUFFINS

Vegetable spray
1 cup cranberries
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ cup butter
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
½ cup applesauce
1 cup walnut pieces
Yields 12 muffins.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.
Baking time: 25 minutes.

Utensils: 12-cup nonstick muffin tin, strainer, food processor, 2 medium mixing bowls, measuring cups and spoons, large mixing bowl, electric mixer, large mixing spoon, oven mitts.

Spray muffin tin with vegetable spray and set aside. Preheat oven to 400 F.

Rinse cranberries in strainer under cold water. Shake off excess water. Put cranberries in bowl of food processor and process into rough chop. Scrape berries into mixing bowl and combine with ½ cup sugar.

Measure flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg together in mixing bowl. Set aside.

In another bowl, cream butter and remaining sugar together until blended. Add eggs and blend on low speed. Alternately add flour mixture and milk, half at a time, until both are completely blended.

Using spoon, stir in cranberries, applesauce and walnut pieces until they are mixed thoroughly throughout batter.

Spoon batter into muffin cups until each cup is two-thirds full. With mitts, place pan in oven and bake for 25 minutes. Once muffins are golden brown, turn off oven and, with mitts, remove pan. Let muffins cool for 5 minutes before removing them from pan.

PEAR AND APPLE MUFFINS

Vegetable spray
1½ cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
4 pear halves
½ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
2 large eggs
½ cup milk
½ cup applesauce
Yields 12 muffins.

Preparation time: 30 minutes.

Baking time: 30 minutes.

Utensils: 12-cup nonstick muffin tin, measuring cups and spoons, mixing bowl, electric mixer, rubber scraper, spoon, oven mitts.

Spray muffin tin with vegetable spray and set aside. Preheat oven to 400 F.

Combine flour, baking powder, cinnamon and ginger in mixing bowl; set aside.

Break pears into small bite-size pieces; set aside.

Combine butter and sugar in mixing bowl, and beat until blended. Add eggs and blend. Alternately add flour mixture and milk, half at a time, until both are blended. Add pear chunks and applesauce; blend.

Spoon batter into muffin cups until they are two-thirds full. Put on mitts and carefully place tin in oven and bake 30 minutes.

Once baked, turn off oven and, with mitts, remove tin. Allow muffins to cool for 5 minutes before removing them from tin.

HARVEST CORN MUFFINS

Vegetable spray
1 cup flour

¼ cup stone-ground cornmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup milk
¼ cup sour cream
¼ cup maple syrup
2 eggs
¼ cup pecan pieces
Yields 12 muffins.

Preparation time: 20 minutes.

Baking time: 25 minutes.

Utensils: 12-cup nonstick muffin tin, measuring cups and spoons, mixing bowl, electric mixer, rubber scraper, kitchen spoon, oven mitts.

Spray muffin tin with vegetable spray; set aside. Preheat oven to 350 F.

Combine flour, cornmeal, baking powder, baking soda and salt in mixing bowl.

Add butter together with milk, sour cream and maple syrup; blend. This mixture will be lumpy. Add eggs and blend. Scrape down sides of mixing bowl with rubber scraper and blend smooth. Stir in pecans and mix just until they are scattered throughout batter.

Spoon batter into muffin tins until they are two-thirds full. With mitts, place tin in oven and bake 25 minutes, or until they are a golden brown. Turn off oven and, with mitts, carefully remove tin. Let muffins cool for 5 minutes before removing from tin.

KITCHEN HINTS

Neater brownies.

Brownies are an all-American treat. Here's how to cut them so there are fewer crumbs.

1. Refrigerate brownies in pan to firm chocolate before cutting.
2. Turn out onto dry, clean surface and cut upside down to keep top from crumbling.
3. Use a sharp serrated knife; wipe after each cut to prevent dragging.
4. For fudgy brownies, dip knife in hot water before cutting.

For dessert, serve up Blueberry Angel Cake — prepare the simple sauce to pour over a bakery-bought cake while family members or guests clear the table.

BLUEBERRY ANGEL CAKE
 ¼ cup sugar
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
 ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
 ¼ cup hot water
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 2 cups blueberries, rinsed and drained
 1 (14-ounce) angel food cake
 Yields 6 servings.
 Preparation time: 15 minutes.
 In small saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and nutmeg; gradually stir in water and lemon juice. Over medium heat, cook and stir until mixture thickens and comes to a boil, about 5 minutes. Add blueberries, cook and stir until mixture comes to a boil. Serve warm over slices of cake.

QUICK TIP
 When the jelly gets low, heat the jar in a pan filled with water, then pour the heated "jelly syrup" over pancakes, waffles or slices of pound cake.

Vegetables are healthy Chinese offerings

The news that popular dishes from Chinese restaurants were high in fat, sodium and cholesterol rattled the chopsticks of many diners who think eating Chinese means eating light.

But just when you thought it was safe to order some takeout, the evaluation of Chinese food — the most popular ethnic food in this country — was just a start for the Center for Science in the Public Interest. In January, the center nutritionists will evaluate Italian food, this country's second most popular ethnic food, followed by a survey of Mexican food.

It is often the Americanization of the Chinese dishes that causes the problems. The more traditional the approach to Chinese food, the more likely the meal will be more healthful. That means using more rice and vegetables.

If you're concerned about the nutritional content of food served in your favorite restaurant, one alternative is to cook at home. It's more time-consuming, but you know exactly what you're getting, and cooking time is short once the prep work is done. And you can still have leftovers to take for lunch the next day.

To increase carbohydrates, include rice, and make sure it's steamed rice, not fried. (Federal guidelines say 60 percent of daily calories should come from carbohydrates.)

For dessert, pick up a bag of fortune cookies in an Asian market: The cookies contain only 30 calories each and almost no fat.

This recipe follows the new federal government nutritional "pyramid" guidelines — high on vegetables and carbohydrates (noodles) and low in fat. It's from "The Light Touch Cookbook," by Marie Simmons (Chapters Publishing).

VEGETARIAN CHOW MEIN

- 1 pound fresh Chinese egg noodles OR 8 ounces dried linguine
- ½ teaspoon sesame oil
- Pinch of salt
- 1 cup trimmed snow peas (about 3 ounces)
- ½ cup reduced-sodium vegetable broth
- 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- 2 tablespoons reduced-sodium soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon sesame oil
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon peeled, finely chopped fresh ginger
- 2 garlic cloves, peeled and finely chopped
- ¼ pound shiitake mushrooms, stems discarded, caps quar-

- tered OR ¼ pound white button mushrooms, sliced
- 2 cups diced (about ½-inch) bok choy
- ½ cup slivered (2x¼-inch pieces) carrot
- ½ cup slivered (2x¼-inch pieces) red bell pepper, seeds and ribs removed
- 1 (6-ounce) can sliced bamboo shoots, drained and rinsed
- 1 (6-ounce) can sliced water chestnuts, drained and rinsed
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons thin diagonal-sliced green onion tops for garnish

Yields 4 servings.

Cook Chinese noodles in boiling, salted water for 2 to 3 minutes or linguine for 8 to 10 minutes; drain. Rinse with cold water; drain and toss in bowl with ½ teaspoon sesame oil and pinch of salt; set aside.

Blanch snow peas in boiling water 2 minutes; drain and rinse with cold water; set aside.

In small bowl, combine vegetable broth, sherry, soy sauce and sesame oil; add cornstarch and whisk until blended; set aside.

Heat large (12-inch), non-stick skillet over medium heat until hot enough to evaporate a drop of water upon contact. Add vegetable oil, ginger and garlic; stir-fry 10 seconds. Add mushrooms and stir-fry 30 seconds.

Stir in snow peas, bok choy, carrot, red bell pepper, bamboo shoots and water chestnuts. Turn heat to high and stir-fry until vegetables are heated through, about 3 minutes.

Add broth mixture and cook, stirring, over high heat until liquid boils and thickens slightly, about 2 minutes. Transfer half of vegetable mixture to side dish. Add cooked noodles to skillet and stir to blend and heat through, about 1 minute. Add a grinding of black pepper.

Transfer noodle mixture to serving dish.

Top with reserved vegetable mixture and sprinkle with chopped green onions.

Baking mixes put quick meals on table

Bread and pastry creations are among autumn's favored offerings, and premade baking mixes — such as Bisquick — bring gastronomic success to the grasp of even the most hurried chef.

While making bread and pastry dough from scratch is a time-consuming proposition, baking mixes minimize the effort.

FAJITA PIZZA

- ½ pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 bell pepper, cut into thin rings
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- ¼ cup salsa
- 1½ cups baking mix
- ½ cup boiling water
- 1½ cups shredded mozzarella cheese

Yields 1 (12-inch) pizza; 3 to 4 servings.

Preparation time: 30 to 35 minutes.

Preheat oven to 450 F.

Cut chicken into thin strips.

In large skillet, heat oil. Add chicken, cook and stir 3 minutes. Add bell pepper and onion; cook 3 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Remove from heat; stir in salsa and set aside.

To prepare pizza crust, combine baking mix and water; beat vigorously 20 strokes. Turn dough onto surface generously dusted with baking mix. Knead 60 times or until smooth and no longer sticky. With hands dusted with baking mix, press dough into 13-inch circle on cookie sheet or press in pizza pan; pinch edge to form ½-inch rim.

To assemble pizza, sprinkle ¾ cup of cheese over crust. Top with chicken mixture; sprinkle on remaining cheese.

Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until cheese is melted and bubbly.

BROCCOLI-HAM CALZONE

- For Mornay sauce:
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 tablespoons baking mix
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- For crust:
- 1½ cups baking mix
- ½ cup boiling water
- For filling:
- 1½ cups chopped fully cooked ham
- ½ cup chopped broccoli
- 1 teaspoon dried minced onion
- 2 tablespoons dried bread crumbs
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tablespoon water

Yields 1 calzone; 4 servings.

Preparation time: 45 minutes.

To prepare Mornay sauce, melt margarine in saucepan over low heat; stir in baking mix. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly; remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly; boil and stir 1 minute. Stir in cheese; heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until melted. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 400 F. Lightly grease cookie sheet.

To prepare crust, mix baking mix and water; beat vigorously 20 strokes. Turn dough onto surface generously dusted with baking mix; knead 60 times or until smooth and no longer sticky. Roll dough into 12-inch circle. Place on cookie sheet; set aside.

To make filling, combine ham, broccoli, onion, bread crumbs and ½ cup Mornay sauce in small bowl. Place ham mixture on half of crust. Moisten edge of crust. Fold other half of crust over ham mixture to form half circle; press edge with fork to seal. Cut 5 (1-inch) slits in top of crust.

In small bowl, mix together egg yolk and water; brush over crust. Bake 25 minutes or until golden brown. Serve with remaining mornay sauce, gently reheated.

CHICKEN POT PIE

For bottom crust:

- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 cup baking mix
- 2 tablespoons milk

For filling:

- ¼ cup margarine
- ¼ cup baking mix
- 1½ cups chicken broth
- 1 cup frozen mixed vegetables
- 1 teaspoon dried minced onion
- 1½ cups diced cooked chicken

For top crust:

- ½ cup baking mix
- ½ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon margarine, melted

Yields 1 pot pie; 6 servings.

Preparation time: 45 minutes.

Preheat oven to 400 F.

To prepare bottom crust, cut margarine into baking mix until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Stir in milk until mixture begins to form a ball.

Pat on bottom and up to rim of ungreased 9-inch pie tin. Bake 5 minutes; set aside.

Meanwhile, prepare filling. Melt margarine in saucepan; stir in baking mix. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly; remove from heat. Stir in chicken broth; add vegetables and onion. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Stir in chicken.

Pour chicken mixture into bottom crust.

In small bowl, mix together all ingredients for top crust until smooth. Pour evenly over chicken mixture; spread gently to edge.

Bake 25 minutes or until golden brown.

For me, nuts are a symbol of the holiday season. As I was growing up, we always had a particular centerpiece on the table throughout autumn and winter: a bowl of mixed in-the-shell nuts. Filberts, almonds, Brazil nuts, pecans. We'd sit around the table chatting, reading or doing homework, shelling nuts and munching away. So the centerpiece had to be regularly replenished — it was too tasty to last long.

Chopped, slivered, halved or whole, nuts add a wonderfully crunchy texture to microwaved foods. In baked goods and candies, try walnuts, pecans, almonds, peanuts or peanut butter. Add slivered almonds to green beans, walnuts or pecans to baked squash, cashews or peanuts to chicken salad or stir-fried shrimp and snow peas.

Nuts are packed with nutrition, too. Almonds, for instance, are high in vegetable protein and riboflavin. And they're one of the best sources of vitamin E. Almonds also provide magnesium, phosphorus, copper, iron, calcium, zinc, niacin, thiamin and folacin.

Unfortunately, in addition to great flavor, crunchy texture and a variety of nutrients, nuts also add quite a few calories. One ounce of almonds has 170 calories. The same amount of pistachios or cashews contains 160 calories, while an ounce of walnuts packs a hefty 190 calories. Chestnuts are lowest of all nuts in oil, so they're lower in calories, too: only 190 calories for 3 1/4 ounces.

Hard nut to crack? To more easily shell Brazil nuts, pecans, walnuts, filberts or almonds with less breakage, place 2 cups in-shell nuts and 1 cup of water in a covered glass dish. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 2 to 4 minutes. Drain, cool slightly, then crack. (Be careful — there may be hot water inside the shell.) One pound of in-shell nuts will provide about 2 cups shelled nuts.

When buying shelled nuts, find the freshest ones possible. A good bet is your local health-food store, where turnover in nuts is high, so they're likely to be fresher. And here you can often find shelled nuts in bulk bins at lower cost than in a supermarket package.

Chestnuts do roast nicely on an open fire, as the song says, but you can also enjoy chestnuts with the help of your microwave. Slash nuts on the rounded side, without cutting through to the meat. Place chestnuts in a glass casserole dish with water to cover and microwave at HIGH setting until water boils. Let stand about 10 minutes, then drain and peel. Spread on paper towels to cool.

The rich flavor of nuts is enhanced when they are roasted. To roast nuts in your microwave, spread about 1 1/4 cups shelled whole or chopped nuts in an even layer in a 9-inch glass pie plate. Microwave at HIGH setting 4 to 5 minutes, stirring every minute.

Nuts can easily turn rancid during storage due to their high oil content. Store nuts in an airtight plastic bag or container and refrigerate or freeze to retain freshness. Frozen chopped, ground or whole nuts will stay fresh in the freezer up to one year. Freeze salted or spiced nuts no longer than six months.

NUT AND HONEY ACORN SQUASH

2 small acorn squash (about 1 pound each)
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
2 tablespoons butter OR margarine
2 teaspoons honey
Salt and pepper to taste
Yields 4 servings.
Preparation time: 5 to 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 13 to 17 minutes (plus 10 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Pierce each squash several times with fork. Place on paper towel on oven floor and microwave 12 to 15 minutes, until squash softens, turning and rearranging every 4 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes.

Cut squash in half, scoop out and discard seeds and fibers. Fill squash cavities with a quarter of nuts. Top each with 1/2 tablespoon of butter or margarine and 1/2 teaspoon honey.

Arrange squash halves on microwave-safe serving plate and microwave 1 to 2 minutes longer. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and serve immediately.

ALMOND LEMON CREAM SOUP

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
1/2 finely chopped roasted almonds
2 cups half-and-half
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
Yields: 6 to 8 servings.
Preparation time: 5 to 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 8 1/2 to 12 1/2 minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM (50 percent power).

Place butter in 1 1/4-quart microwave-safe casserole. Microwave at HIGH setting about 30 seconds, to melt. Stir in flour, salt, paprika and pepper until smooth. Slowly stir in chicken broth, then add almonds. Cover casserole with lid and microwave at HIGH setting 3 to 5 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes, until mixture boils.

Stir in half-and-half and lemon rind. Cover and microwave at MEDIUM setting 5 to 7 minutes longer, or until heated through (do not boil), stirring every 3 minutes. Serve in small bowls and top each serving with a sprinkle of parsley flakes.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Can't deal with friend's prejudice

Dr. Abraham: I think a person I know is so narrow-minded that I am thinking about lopping him off my friendship list. Life is just too short to put up with his kind of prejudice.

The one that bothers me most (and he has other prejudices, too) is his attitude toward this special girl in my life. I am serious enough about her to think that maybe someday we will get married. I've never known anyone who is so wonderful.

What bothers him is that she walks with a small limp. It doesn't bother me at all. In fact, I don't pay any attention to it. I love her too much to even think about it.

I guess you would call it a fetish or obsession or whatever that he has about it. I never have a conversation with him in which he doesn't refer to it.

I have told him that I am fed up with hearing about it all the time from him, and if he continues, it will be the end of our friendship. So he said, "Go blow. See if I care."

He knows as well as I do that she had a partial leg amputation because of an auto accident. It wasn't her fault at all.

What do you think I should do about him? — Prejudiced Guy

Prejudiced Guy: Unless he has other qualities that you appreciate or enjoy, you might as well accept his apparent decision to call it quits about your friendship.

This prejudice, as well as others he has, may be enough for you to seek more congenial male relationships.

Dr. Abraham: A friend of mine wants to have sex with me, but he never mentions it. I can tell by the way he looks at me even though we have never talked about it.

I am not at all interested in him, for lots of reasons. There is another guy I really like better. Sex is not on the schedule for me with either of them because I am just not ready. I am too busy with school stuff and fun to get involved at all.

What should I do about him? — Waiting

Waiting: I have a feeling that you already have your answer which is — nothing.

You apparently don't need or want him, and your life is full enough already. So stay clear and stick with what you know you want to do, keep up with "school stuff and fun."

Dr. Abraham: My girlfriend has what I think is a silly idea, but she is really stuck on it. She thinks that certain colors people like indicate how smart or dumb they are.

For example, her favorite color of all is purple, and she wears it most of the time. In fact, one of the things she always wears is purple.

She says purple represents how smart she is and some other colors people choose show how dumb they are. (Orange and yellow are in the dumb group of hers.)

To me that is plain foolishness. How about to you? — Color Happy

Color Happy: I tend to agree with you, but if it makes her happy to have such beliefs, and you want to keep her as a girlfriend, try to avoid this subject whenever you can.

Dr. Abraham: This fellow who is a good friend of mine has a girlfriend who is out of this world. She has it all — beauty, smarts and a smile that knocks me over.

I'd sure like to know her better and maybe even spend some time with her, but I'm not smart enough to figure out how to do it.

Besides, my friend may not like that at all, and I would hate to lose him. He has been my best buddy since we were little kids.

But on the other hand, there she is, a real knockout.

So what should I do? — Getting Frantic

Getting Frantic: It may be easier to tell you what NOT to do, and that includes getting involved with her, messing up your friendship with him, or taking the chance of being rejected by her AND losing his friendship.

You are edging into a dangerous area, one that is a No-No, an un-touchable that good friends force themselves to avoid.

Dr. Abraham: My girlfriend loves tennis almost more than anything, I guess. Having her go overboard about sports would be all right with me, but not tennis.

I think it is a miserable sport, just hitting that silly ball back and forth. Who cares anyway? I certainly don't.

Now if she liked football that much (at least watching it), I would understand her better. Or maybe even baseball would be a heck of a lot better, but tennis? No way.

She said that if I don't quit complaining about tennis she will quit me. So I stopped talking against it, but she already knows how I feel. Whenever I bring up football or baseball, she yells and screams.

I just don't know what to do. We are both 14 years old so we at least have that in common.

Any advice, Dr. A.? I sure need it. — Tennis, Ugh!

Tennis, Ugh! Do you have anything else in common? If not, maybe it is time for each of you to seek a more compatible friend.

All sports you mentioned are very popular, so it should be easy to find kids who are football or baseball fans, or both. In fact, you may find some with whom you can share other enjoyable activities as well as a sports interest.

Cooking Corner

Crazy about cod

By Charles Britton

I love it. My wife hates it. The line of division runs right down the middle of our household, and the subject, of course, is the issue on everyone's lips these days: salt cod.

The dispute is all my fault — naturally. She has never forgiven me for a dish of it that I made once. You see, my wife hates salty food, and salt cod is, well, salty. Or rather, it will be if you don't soak it properly.

As I keep trying to tell her, it's not supposed to be salty at all. I just got a little impatient that one time and didn't let the process run its course. She admits this in principle. Recently a friend served us some fish cakes made with salt cod that she agreed were absolutely delicious.

Still, whenever I suggest preparing it, she makes a face.

Maybe a full appreciation of salt cod requires taste buds rooted in Mediterranean preferences. Among the Italian forebears on my mother's side, it was baccala, and you would find stiff flats of it, stacked up like cordwood, in ethnic markets. Spaniards know it as bacalao; the French call it morue.

To the Portuguese, it's bacalhau, and they probably do more with it than any other people. It is, indeed, something of a national specialty because the sailors of that maritime people catch cod in great quantity off of North America, and for centuries they have shipped it back to Europe in salted form.

Salting was a primary means of preserving foods before refrigeration became common, and in those days there was an insistent demand for anything that would keep.

Although salt cod is well-known in many European nations, it took hold most strongly in the Catholic lands of the south, probably because the faithful used to be required to observe many days of abstinence, including every Friday, when meat had to be banned from the tables of the pious. That was when Friday was fish day, and even in areas where people could obtain a fresh catch, they tended to favor salt cod.

Elizabeth David, still the best writer on traditional French cuisine, tells of the dreadful poached salt cod that would appear on Fridays, even among bourgeois families who ate delicious meals the rest of the week. In this case, salt cod showed its penitential aspect.

When prepared with ingenuity, however, the robust, unabashed flavor of salt cod amounts to a passion. Adolphe Thiers, president of France and founder of the First Republic, was so fond of it that, they say, he died after eating too much Brandade de Morue, a much admired salt-cod puree. He was, after all, a native of Marseille.

Over in Nice, there is supposed to be a society devoted to the preparation and consumption of Estockificada, a stew of salt cod and lots of good things. And the Portuguese still honor the memory of Gomes de Sa', a restaurateur of Porto and inventor of the nation's finest bacalhau dish.

So the world chooses up sides. You can stand with the lovers of baccala in its myriad forms, or you can agree with my wife. In fact, I'd be just as happy if you did take up your stand with her. That way, you would leave more salt cod for the rest of us.

Salt cod takes on a number of forms, more or less dry and salty. You can find it in characteristic small wood boxes in the refrigerator cases of some markets. Ethnic stores may carry the fully desiccated form.

Nomenclature becomes complicated. To me, baccala has always meant the dried slabs of fish sitting on the counter at the Italian market. But some books I have consulted say that this term really means the more moist form of salt cod. The dried stuff is stockafisso — the Italian idea of "stockfish," from "stock," German for "stick": fish that is as dry as a stick.

• Preliminary preparation: In whatever form, salt cod has to be soaked thoroughly before being used. The process can take from 12 to 48 hours, depending on how salty the fish and how dried out it is.

In Provence, a traditional method calls for tossing the fish in a running stream and leaving it there for a day or two. In less rustic surroundings, place the fish, cut in chunks as convenient, in a glass or ceramic bowl with cold water to cover generously. Cover the bowl and refrigerate. Change the water from time to time. The fish is ready when it's essentially free of salt; you can taste it to tell.

The supermarket variety of salt cod, usually imported from Canada, may take the minimum time; the fully dried type can take the maximum, especially if it has been around for a while.

For most dishes, the cod should then be poached; this is also a way of extending the keeping period for an extra day or so.

The Spanish method is to place it in a saucepan with cold water to cover generously. Bring to a boil. Immediately drain and cover again with cold water. Bring to a boil for a second time. Turn off heat, cover, and allow fish to cool in the liquid.

Alternatively, simmer the cod in water to cover until it flakes easily, 10 or more minutes.

• Storage: Unsoaked salt cod, particularly in its stockfish form, is supposed to last forever, but it is well not to put that reputation to the test.

If the fish is somewhat soft, as in the boxed form, refrigerate for no more than three weeks; the stiff form can be well wrapped and refrigerated for up to three months. Once soaked, salt cod is as perishable as regular fish and should be treated the same way.

Salt cod has a special affinity for potatoes, a combination exploited in many dishes, including this, a Provençal speciality and my favorite way of preparing this food. For this, you need the dried form of cod, which is the origin of the name.

Mireille Johnson, from whose "Cuisine of the Sun" this is taken, advises that the "hardest, driest cod" is best for this dish.

ESTOCKAFICADA

(Dried Cod and Vegetable Stew)

2 pounds dried cod, soaked according to preliminary instructions but not necessarily poached

Olive oil

5 cloves garlic, chopped (or more to taste)

4 large onions, minced

3 bell peppers, seeded and sliced

8 tomatoes, fresh or canned, peeled and quartered

2 bay leaves

Several sprigs of fresh thyme

OR 2 teaspoons dried

Several sprigs of savory OR 2 teaspoons dried

Pepper to taste

1½ cups dry white wine

8 large boiling potatoes, peeled and sliced ½-inch thick

½ cup pungent Mediterranean-style olives (ideally the Niçoise type, available in specialty markets)

4 tablespoons chopped parsley

Olive oil in cruets

Yields 6 servings.

With your fingers, shred soaked cod, removing any bones and skin. In large saucepan or Dutch oven, heat olive oil. Sauté cod for 2 or 3 minutes. Add more oil if necessary and garlic, onions, peppers, tomatoes, bay leaves, thyme, savory, pepper and wine. Simmer, covered, for 1½ hours.

Add potatoes and cook until they are tender, another 20 to 30 minutes. Just before serving, add olives and parsley. Check seasoning. Serve with cruets of olive oil, to be added to taste to each portion. Serve with crusty bread.

Variation: Instead of savory, use basil.

The most famous salt-cod dish is Brandade, so beloved of M. le président Thiers. It is one of those traditional French dishes that has a considerable romantic haze around it.

David's account, however, is clear-eyed. It comes from her classic "French Provincial Cooking" (first published in 1960 and reprinted many times since): "This is not really a dish to be made at home and, indeed, nowadays, the majority of housewives in the Languedoc and in Provence buy it ready-made for Friday lunch."

Briefly, you start with 2 pounds soaked and poached salt cod, drained and flaked, with a clove or two of garlic added to the pan.

"In separate small saucepans, have some olive oil and some milk. Keep all three saucepans over a flame so low that the contents never get more than tepid. Crushing the fish with a wooden spoon, you add, gradually and alternately, a little milk and a little olive oil, until all is used up and the cod has attained the consistency of a thick cream." (Here David probably was thinking of the thick English cream, for the Brandade should hold on a spoon.)

"All this, however, is quicker said than done. It requires great patience and considerable energy."

Nowadays, Brandade is more approachable, thanks to the food processor. Anyway, if you want to taste it, you can't run to the little shop on the rue d'Avignon in Nîmes that David mentions.

One issue about Brandade is whether la véritable recipe contains potatoes. The Nîmes version, which many regard as the original, does not, but other formulas often do, as in this modernized version.

BRANDADE DE MORUE

(Processor Version)

1 pound soaked, poached salt cod, prepared according to preliminary instructions

1½ cups of baking potatoes

1 clove garlic, or more to taste

Olive oil

Milk

Salt and pepper to taste

Yields 4 servings.

Shred cod, removing skin and bones.

Peel and boil potatoes until tender; drain.

In food processor, puree 1 or more cloves of garlic. Heat cod in frying pan with little olive oil. Add potatoes to garlic in processor. Process to puree. Add cod and continue to process, adding dollops of milk (or cream) and olive oil until you get a smooth, thick creamy texture that holds its shape. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Brandade is served warm with rounds of crusty French bread, toasted.

The Portuguese relish the combination of salt cod and eggs. Proportions are quite variable.

BACALHAU DOURADO

(Salt Cod With

Eggs and Potatoes)

3 medium potatoes

Olive oil

¾ cup chopped onion

1 pound salt cod, soaked, poached and shredded

6 eggs, beaten

Salt and pepper to taste

Parsley

Yields 4 servings.

Fry potatoes in olive oil until brown. Keep warm, while sautéing onion until tender. Return potatoes to pan, along with cod. Add beaten eggs and cook, stirring, until the mixture is done to taste. Add salt and pepper. Sprinkle with parsley.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

If meteorologists' predictions come true this year, much of the country will suffer bitter-cold temperatures and tremendous amounts of snow. This weather could prove stressful, even deadly, to lawns everywhere.

However, your lawn doesn't have to take a beating this winter since proper preparation this fall will spare it from the ravages of ice and snow and help it return strong, healthy and with deep-green color in the spring.

Offer the following tips to make time spent on the lawn this fall effective, efficient and easy.

OVERSEEDING

If the summer months have thinned your lawn, fall is the time to thicken it by seeding over the existing lawn, a process called overseeding. Before applying seed, use a sturdy rake to remove leaves and to loosen thatch and soil.

Spread the seed by hand for small areas. For large areas, use a cyclone or drop spreader at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds of seed for every 1,000 feet.

Rake lightly until soil barely covers the seed. Water as frequently as needed to keep the soil surface moist until the new grass grows in. Then mow as usual to keep the grass at a height of 2 to 3 inches.

SPOT PATCHING

If there are bare, dead or damaged sections in your lawn, spot patching will return the green to these areas.

Using a sturdy rake, form grooves in the soil surface in afected areas. Add a small amount of fertilizer and rake the area smooth. Then apply seed and re-rake. Tap lightly with a spade to firm up the soil. Keep the seeded patch moist until the seedlings germinate.

Mow the existing grass around the patch as often as needed to keep it from shading the new seedlings. As the new grass develops, cut it at the same height intended for the entire lawn.

DORMANT SEEDING

Dormant seeding is an old trick of the trade for landscape professionals, but it is a practice that few homeowners know about. Basically, dormant seeding is seeding a lawn in fall and winter when the earth is cold or frozen, preferably just before the first snow. It works best in parts of the country that have traditionally cold winters with lots of snow, such as in the north.

The reason why dormant seeding works so well is that the normal freeze-thaw process of winter settles the dormant grass seeds deep into cracks and crevices in the earth. It works ideally if snowfall then blankets the seeds to protect them from the drying wind.

As winter ends, the dormant seeds awake in good contact with the soil and are ready to germinate with the first rain of spring.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham

Parents can lose their tempers, too

Q. I'll admit that I lose my temper sometimes, but I do my best to control it. That is where my husband and I differ. He feels that if I let it all hang out, I'll feel better.

I think I do quite well by controlling myself, even occasionally apologizing to my kids, who are often on the receiving end of my temper. They have adapted to my sudden spurts and quick recoveries, and don't seem much worse for having seen me in my weaker moments.

Nobody is perfect, of course, and they (as well as I) are getting used to that fact.

Do you think it would be better if I let loose every so often as my husband suggests? He concedes that it should be my decision.

A. Don't most of us experience your kind of temper release once in a while? Of course, we do.

You seem to have accepted the way you are, with brief displays of temper and a speedy return to normalcy. And your husband's attitude that this issue is yours to handle appears to be a settling factor, too.

Unless other readers disagree and provide me with the reason why, this looks like a non-problem not worth much concern.

Q. A neighbor of mine read or heard somewhere that a survey was conducted about parents' communication with their kids. He didn't remember anything more about it, just that it was interesting.

I really am in need of anything that can help improve communication with my own kids. They are 8- and 10-year-old boys.

With all the serious stuff that they and I face together in the years ahead, whatever relief to the age where they now are will probably be helpful.

I look forward to reading your response. Thank you very much.

A. What you heard about may be "The MCI Friends & Family Survey," which was released several months ago. It was aimed at parents of 7- to 9-year-olds, so the information provided may be of direct value to you.

One part of it is headed "Sex, Drugs and AIDS: Talking with Children About the Sensitive Issues of the '90s." It stated that 7 years old may be the right age to talk with children about drugs, and 9 could be appropriate for sex and AIDS. Of course, there is a vast range of maturity levels among children, so parents should take that factor into consideration.

A more extensive publication from the same source discusses topics like these: issues and concerns facing the American family, working mothers and child care, family relationships, between parents and children, ties among friends and family, the ideal American family and friendship.

Prepare your lawn for winter

Thicken a thin lawn by overseeding in the fall.

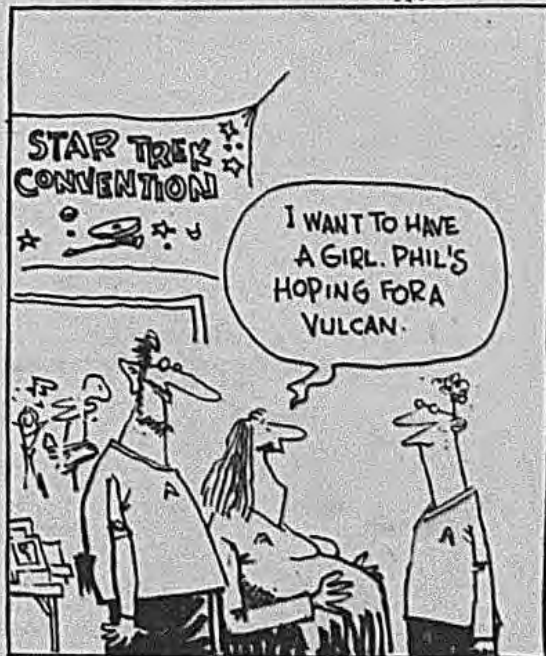

Before seeding, use a rake to remove leaves and loosen soil.

For small areas, spread seed by hand; for large areas, spread by cyclone or drop spreader, using 2 to 3 pounds of seed for every 1,000 feet.

Rake until soil lightly covers seeds, and keep soil surface moist.

Fitness Forum

By Jeanne Beach Eigner

Fitness wear gets a funky new look

It's natural enough, the juxtaposition of California-style athleticism and the fashion industry at the recent Action Sports Retailer Trade Expo.

After all, sportswear has influenced fashion since Coco Chanel invented it. That influence on modern American culture may have really peaked when President Truman showed up in a Hawaiian shirt.

But the whole concept and this expo are also a little strange.

"There are several things about this show that are remarkable," commented Julie Logan, West Coast editor of Glamour magazine, walking through the crowds jammed around booths on the floor of the convention center.

Some booths are re-created storefronts and interiors, some boasting specially built interior fittings, murals, jungles of potted ferns and palms, runways where bikini-clad models pace, videos of athletes endorsing styles. Others are bare bones — folding tables with merchandise piled on top.

"This," Logan said, "is one of the first times ever that 14-year-old males have been this fashion-conscious — and that the industry has been conscious of them. That bodes well for the industry because these guys will take an interest in fashion and sportswear with them throughout their lives."

Well, let's hope that interest matures; a generation of grandfathers with their boxers coming out the top of their bluejeans could be odd. But keeping up with fashion could be worthwhile, and staying active is a good idea for everybody.

High-top tennis shoes are big, right?

So Na Na, a shoe manufacturer, makes tennies with high tops that lace up to the knees in red or green or purple canvas. Put platform soles on those trotters and bingo — the Southern California surf culture's answer to the urban-grime chic of Dr. Martens.

Did the dandy look influence Primitive Prints' line of volleyball shorts? They have models of velvet trimmed with tasseled fringe, shorts of satin and lace, edged with embroidered trim.

Actually, the whole thing started when some professional volleyballers began a contest to see who could come up with the ugliest shorts for beach play.

So what will athletes and sportsters — and those who want to look like athletes and sportsters — be wearing?

Just about everything.

Snowboarding is as hot as a snow sport can get. It has all the fun of surfing, skiing and skateboarding — and the clothes for those sports are hot, too.

There are lots of earth-tone anoraks and hiking shorts in heathered tones, greens and grays and browns. The "Northern Exposure" mountaineer, rugged-outdoorsman look is certainly big.

But neon is far from dead. Bathing suits, wet suits, caps, duffel bags and more turn up in screaming shades of pink and green.

For every pair of earthy, lug-soled "street hikers" is a pair of slick, black and neon plastic Rollerblades.

For every pair of baggy jeans is a skintight pair of bicycling shorts or blading leggings.

The jeans are big and baggy for several reasons; mainly because skateboarders like them loose for those flying moves and because graffiti artists and taggers can get several cans of spray paint into the oversize pockets.

The ultimate statement — and you may have heard this before — is whatever you do, just do it.

If you thought some classic dishes were out of your life forever, think again. With '90s-style cooking almost anything can be modified in such a way that the fat and calories are down, but flavor isn't compromised.

COQUILLES ST. JACQUES

- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 pound scallops, rinsed and drained
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon finely minced lemon zest
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- ¾ cup low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 tablespoon unsalted light butter, softened
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 4 teaspoons whiskey, Scotch or Irish
- Freshly ground pepper
- 4 tablespoons finely grated Gruyere cheese (or Swiss)

Yields 4 servings.
Each serving has about 180 calories, 8 grams fat, 54 milligrams cholesterol and 290 milligrams sodium.

Heat ¼ teaspoon of oil in heavy skillet. Add scallops, garlic and lemon zest. Sauté quickly, stirring and shaking pan until scallops turn opaque and start to brown. Add wine, bring to boil and remove from heat. Let cool 10 minutes.

Drain scallops and reserve liquid (about ¼ cup). Add enough chicken broth to make 1 cup.

Now put butter and flour in small bowl and blend. Bring chicken broth mixture to a boil in a small saucepan and add butter/flour, called beurre manie, bit by bit, stirring after each addition. Continue stirring until broth is thick and smooth. Lower heat and simmer for 5 to 6 minutes. Add sauce to scallops and set aside.

Heat remaining oil in small skillet and add mushrooms. Sauté for 2 or 3 minutes and set aside. Spray baking shells or shallow oven-proof dishes with non-stick coating. Preheat broiler. Combine mushrooms and scallops. Divide mixture among baking dishes. Splash each with 1 teaspoon of whiskey and top with pepper and 1 tablespoon of cheese. Place shells in baking sheet and shove under broiler, about 6 to 8 inches from heat. Watch it and pull shells out when cheese is melted and begins to brown around the edges. Serve at once.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. I plan to install ceramic tile in our bathroom. I think I can handle the job fairly well with one exception. There are several places on the wall where I have to make small holes in the tile in order to mount new fixtures. Some years ago, I watched a professional do this with a screwdriver, but I don't remember exactly how he did it. Can you help me?

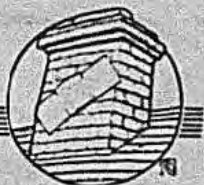

A. Today there is a much more efficient method of drilling smooth holes into ceramic tile. Black & Decker markets a Glass & Tile Drilling Set that includes four drill bits that will fit any 1/4-inch or larger portable drill.

A variable speed drill, with its lower speed settings, will give best results. Application of a lubricant, such as mineral spirits, to the bit is recommended to keep it cool.

Since you inquired about the screwdriver method, following is a description of that procedure: To make a hole in ceramic tile, first place a nail set at the spot where you want the hole to be. Then tap the nail set lightly with a hammer. This will gradually chip away the glaze at that spot until there is a small indentation.

Place the blade of an old screwdriver in the indentation, holding it straight up and down. With a twisting motion, keep working the blade into the opening. Do this carefully and without haste. In a few minutes the blade will come out the other side of the tile.

Q. The concrete floor in my basement is constantly dusting. We sweep it, but the dust reappears. It looks like the floor is wearing away in spots. What causes this problem and is there a way of correcting it?

A. This kind of dusting problem can be caused by installation errors. For example, using a mix that is low on cement and high on water, curing a concrete pad too fast or using aggregate contaminated with silt or other impurities.

One way to correct a dusting surface is to grind off the thin surface layer to expose the solid concrete underneath. This is usually followed by the addition of a new surface layer to assure a satisfactory finish.

Another method is to apply a surface hardener. This treatment will not convert a basically bad concrete slab into a good one, but it will improve wearability and reduce dusting of the surface.

Before application of the surface conditioner, wash the concrete floor with plain water to remove loose dust. A heavy-duty, wet-and-dry vacuum does a good job of getting water and dust off the floor.

After the floor dries, apply a concrete surface treatment containing magnesium fluosilicate, zinc fluosilicate or sodium silicate. These preparations will form a chemical bond with the cement on the surface and stop the dusting.

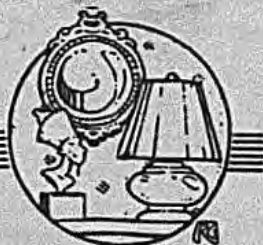

The treatment is usually applied in two or three coats, letting the surface dry between each application.

These chemical products won't be available at your standard hardware store or home center. Look for them at a masonry supply outlet or ready-mix company.

For more information on concrete installation, treatments and repair, write for the free catalog of publications made available by the Portland Cement Association, 5420 Old Orchard Road, Skokie, Ill., 60077-1083. There is a small charge for individual publications, but the information is well-worth the investment if you are contemplating a do-it-yourself concrete project or are having problems with cleaning or repair of a concrete surface.

Color is common denominator

Q. Tell me about sisal carpeting, which seems to be more and more popular these days. I would like to know how to pronounce it — is it "see-sal" or "sigh-sal"? — and I would like to know if it is still considered a summertime thing, only for informal rooms. — V.S.

A. Say it "sigh-sal" — and lay it in any room in the house anytime you wish. Example: The handsome bedroom in the photo we show here, dressed in antiques and Laura Ashley's best fabrics, is floored in sisal year-round.

As you have observed, today's sisal rug-makers are literally spinning straw into gold as their natural-fiber carpeting regains something like the popularity it enjoyed in the last century. Back then, however, straw carpeting was indeed a summertime thing: Every spring, every devout Victorian homemaker rushed to strip off winter's woolen carpets and spread her floors with sisal rugs. It's no wonder: Sisal was cool and fresh-looking.

Also, it was — and still is — inexpensive enough not to worry about, so sisal could go easily in the living room at the beach, on the front porch, under the dining room table.

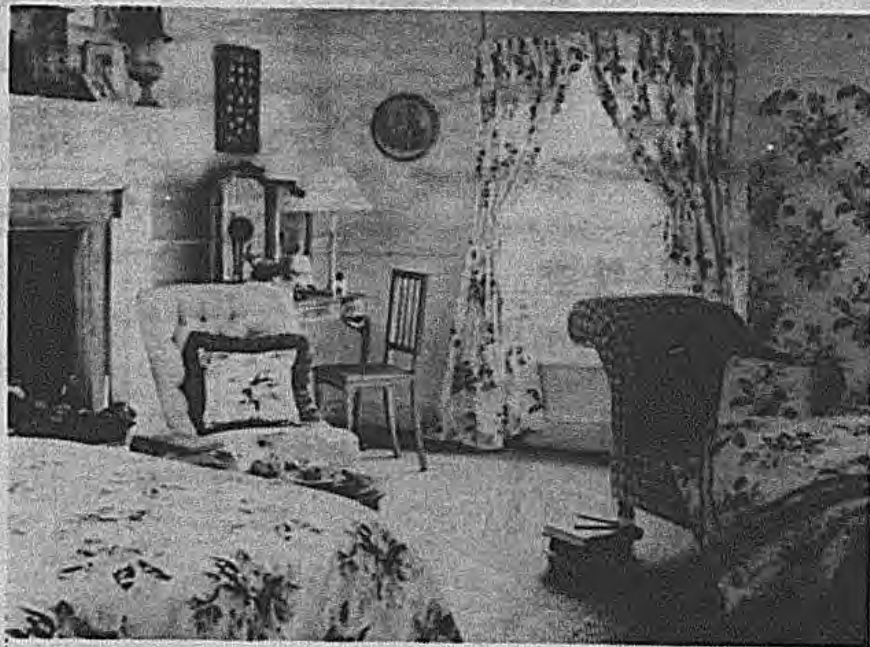

It's here that we encounter what may be sisal's only character flaw: It tends to spot. Once dropped, salt and oil marks are there to stay if you're talking old-fashioned natural sisal.

However, modern technology has found a way around even that problem, weaving sisal look-alikes out of wool and other more impervious fibers so you can have the appearance of the real thing in a much more expensive version.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN (Never known to fail), Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. New Alzheimer's drug approved by FDA

By Leonard J. Hansen

Tacrine (THA) has been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as the first pharmaceutical treatment for Alzheimer's disease. The drug is being marketed under the brand name of Cognex by the Warner Lambert Co. and will not cure but may alleviate symptoms and slow the process of the brain disease.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, Tacrine benefits only some patients with mild or moderate disease symptoms.

"Patients and caregivers are the best judges of whether the drug benefits them and the value of any improvements they see," said Stuart Roth, chairman of the national organization.

"If the drug only slightly improves a patient's attention or self-confidence, they might consider that a valuable benefit."

Physicians should now have information on the new drug, its potential benefits, risks and costs.

FLU ALERT

Adults age 65 and older are at the highest risk during the winter months for contracting flu, an epidemic which causes 10,000 to 40,000 deaths each year.

"In the early months of last winter's influenza season, type B virus strains, which usually cause milder illness, were the most prevalent. However, just before the end of the flu season last February, outbreaks of influenza A(H3N2) Beijing were reported and caused a significant increase in deaths due to flu," according to a statement by the National Foundation of Infectious Diseases.

The research organization warns, "Since the last strain of influenza seen in the spring generally predominates during the next year's epidemic, it is anticipated that the winter of 1993-94 will reflect this serious form of influenza A. Approximately 85 percent of all deaths from flu and flu-related pneumonia are those aged 65 and older."

At least 70 percent to 90 percent of flu in the ambulatory elderly is preventable through the use of a vaccine, reports B. Burton, infectious disease control nurse at the National Jewish Center for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine in Denver.

"Only about 20 percent to 30 percent of the high-risk mature adults are vaccinated, exposing them to the deadly flu when an exposed person coughs or sneezes nearby."

"Nurse B," as Burton is addressed by her patients, advises that the vaccine may take several weeks to be effective, and urges people 65 and older and those with respiratory diseases and chronic heart problems to be immunized before mid-November. The vaccine may be available free of charge through community clinics and from many physicians.

National Jewish offers informative brochures and other information free of charge through a toll-free telephone number, (800) 222-5864. There is no obligation when requesting brochures or asking questions about flu or other respiratory diseases.

EXERCISING FOR DISABLED

You can still exercise if you have physical limitations. In fact, exercise is just as important for those with disabilities as it is for the more mobile mature adult. A new video exercise program, "Keep Fit While You Sit," has been produced and is now available.

The concept of Allen Myerson, disabled in a roofing accident 12 years ago, the 45 minutes of warm-up, aerobic and cool-down exercises were created by physical therapist Karol Brumit.

"Keep Fit While You Sit" teaches aerobic exercises to work the arms, torso, neck and shoulders, and is designed to improve cardiovascular endurance as well as increase upper body strength.

The video is available for $29.95 plus $4.50 for shipping and handling, from The Disability Bookshop, P.O. Box 129, Vancouver, WA 98666. Credit card purchases may be made by calling toll-free to (800) 637-2256.

MANAGING MEDICATIONS

Prescription and non-prescription drugs taken for chronic diseases and common ailments such as a cold often conflict, causing serious and sometimes life-threatening side effects.

Most affected by interactions are 65 percent of all people between the ages of 65 and 74 who are afflicted with hypertension. Many of these mature adults are taking medications to treat the disorder, which raises the possibility of drug interaction when they turn to over-the-counter medications to treat cold symptoms.

Martin Higbee, professor of pharmacy practice at the University of Arizona, has prepared an informative brochure on medication management as a way to avoid drug conflicts. The publication outlines managing hypertension and medications, and includes information on drug interactions and adverse drug reactions, and a chart for creating a personal medication management system.

Vick's, manufacturers of Vapo-Rub, funded the publication and its cost-free availability to mature adults.

Request a copy of "Managing Medications: A Guide for the Hypertensive Patient," by toll-free call to (800) 283-4879.

How do submarines work?

Like a fish, submarines use weight displaced by air to make themselves lighter, or heavier, than the water they're in. They augment this rising and falling by propulsion and directional fins (hydroplanes).

Venus — Goddess of love and beauty

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a porcelain figurine that we have had for over 60 years. On the bottom it is marked Italy. It is 12 inches high and 18 inches across.

Could you please tell me what the value is and who the figures represent?

A. Your figurine represents a scene from ancient Roman mythology. The female figure is Venus, known as Aphrodite in Greek mythology, the goddess of love and beauty.

Venus is seated on her chariot that is drawn by two swans. Cupid, who is sitting on a shell, is the offspring of Venus. This scene was a popular theme in 16th century Italian paintings.

Your figurine was made in Italy in the early 20th century. The value would be about $200 to $300.

Q. Enclosed is the mark on the bottom of my 5-inch-high vase. It is translucent ivory, has hand-painted flowers and a gold rim.

Although I know it is American Belleek, I am curious about its age and value.

A. Your American Belleek vase was made by Willets Manufacturing Co. in Trenton, N.J., around 1890. This firm was in production from 1879 to 1962.

The vase would probably be valued about $225 to $235 in good condition.

Q. I am curious about a tea leaf-pattern plate that I have. It is 10 inches in diameter. On the bottom it is marked with a shield and the words Royal Ironstone China — Alfred Meakin — England.

Any information you can give me I would appreciate.

A. White Ironstone decorated with three copper luster leaves was first made in the 1850s. Many factories produced this ware and much was shipped to the United States. No two pieces were exactly alike because the decoration was applied by hand.

Your tea leaf-pattern plate was made by Alfred Meakin Ltd. in the late 1890s. It would probably be worth about $45 to $55.

Q. While cleaning her attic, my mother found a "Roy Rogers" wristwatch and a metal wind-up alarm clock that was mine over 40 years ago. The face of the watch has a picture of Roy and Trigger on it and is marked Ingraham.

The alarm clock has the name Roy Rogers on the dial and is also marked Ingraham. Would you believe after all these years they are still working?

Are they collectible and do they have any value?

A. No, I'm not surprised that they are still working. They just don't make things the way they used to.

Your Roy Rogers wristwatch and alarm clock were made by Ingraham around 1950 and are very collectible now. The fact that Roy Rogers' name is on the dial of the alarm clock makes it more valuable.

The watch is currently listed at $150 and the alarm clock at $175.

Q. I have a bisque nodder of Vladimir Lenin that is over 40 years old. He is 8 inches tall and dressed in military attire. On the bottom of the base are the words "Made in Portugal."

There are pins that allow the head and upper body to move. He is in perfect condition and quite a conversation piece.

Could you please give me an approximate value of my nodder?

A. Nodders were made as far back as the 18th century. They were a Chinese innovation that was adapted by European china manufacturers. Nodders were made in many countries, but Germany was the chief producer.

A variety of materials was used, such as porcelain, celluloid, papier-mache and bisque.

Your nodder was made in the mid-20th century. It would probably be worth about $200 to $225.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Is it possible that our 10-year-old Boston terrier has cataracts? She has had cloudy eyes for several weeks. She does not have any problems walking around in the house. Apparently she is not blind. She has never been sick or had any other health problems.

A. Your terrier may have cataracts. A cataract is simply a cloudiness or opacity of the lens of the eye. Depending on the amount and location of the opacity, the dog may be more or less blind.

Developmental cataracts are due to abnormal development during growth of the puppy and may be due to heredity, nutritional problems or infections.

Cataract development during the first six years of life occurs most commonly in miniature and toy poodles, cocker spaniels, wire-haired fox terriers, miniature schnauzers, Boston terriers, golden retrievers, beagles, German shepherds, pointers, Staffordshire terriers and Afghan hounds.

The method by which cataracts are inherited is not fully understood.

Degenerative cataracts usually occur late in life. They are due to old age, diseases such as diabetes, injuries of the eye, radiation and a wide assortment of poisons.

True cataracts due to old age are relatively rare.

Treatment of cataracts varies with the cause, location and age of the cataract. Many dogs get along quite well with cataracts. This is especially true of old dogs that are very familiar with their surroundings.

Dogs with cataracts secondary to other diseases such as diabetes should be treated for the underlying predisposing disease first.

Your veterinarian can recommend the best treatment for your dog.

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

I guess at this time you are deciding what you will be for Halloween, which falls on Sunday. This is an exciting time for all children. There are parties to attend, games to play and goodies to collect from the neighbors. Best of all, you can be anything you want on that day.

While you are making your plans, you should also consider Halloween Safety. Here are some things to think about. Never eat the candy unless it has been carefully inspected first. Make sure you can see well out of your costumes. Wear colors that can be seen by motorists. Always trick or treat with a parent or in a group.

I'm sure you can think of other ways of making Halloween safe as well as fun!

Your Friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Purchasing Medicare

By William M. Acosta

Q. If I am not entitled to Medicare based on my employment, or the employment of my spouse, can I buy the coverage? — P.E.

A. Individuals age 65 or over who are U.S. residents, and either U.S. citizens or aliens who have been lawfully admitted for permanent residence, and have resided in the United States for at least five years at the time of filing, can purchase both Part A and Part B, or just Part B.

The monthly premiums in 1993 are $21 for Part A and $36.60 for Part B.

Q. I am blind and am receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI). I earn some income teaching music, and would like to start a school with the help of some friends.

Can Social Security assist me in this effort? — R.O.

A. Yes.

You should ask Social Security about developing a "plan to achieve self-support," or PASS. A PASS permits a recipient to set aside income and resources for up to 36 months for a specified work goal.

The plan may be extended for an additional period of up to 12 months (total 48 months) when the objective involves a lengthy educational or training program. A plan can never exceed 48 months.

To qualify for a PASS, you must have a realistic work goal, a specific savings or spending plan, and a good method of keeping track of the funds that are set aside.

Q. I am a pastor in training and will be ordained soon. I'm writing a financial plan for my family and would like to know if members of the clergy are subject to Social Security taxes. — L.R.

A. Yes.

As an ordained member of the clergy, you will be considered self-employed, even though you may perform services as an employee. That means you'll have to pay your own Social Security taxes when you file your tax return.

However, if you have taken a vow of poverty, you may be covered as an employee, which means your church or other employer will pay them for you.

If you are opposed to the payment of taxes on income earned as a minister because of religious principles, you may file for an irrevocable exemption from paying Social Security taxes. You file this request with Internal Revenue Service.
