A Real Kool Way To Have Breakfast

By Keysha Hedgepath

World renown Pop/ Jazz Artists Kool and The Gang appeared at the Broadway Mall on Thursday, Oct. 4 for a taping of the "Breakfast Club" a talk show heard regularly at 10 a.m. Sunday mornings on WGBB, 1240 AM. Dave Heatherton is the host. Touting more than 25 years of musical history, Kool and The Gang is remembered for such such hits as "Too Hot", "Ladies Night" and "Celebration".

Musician Robert "Kool" Bell the group's founder and Saxophonist Dennis "DT" Thomas were among the guests on the show. Kool and The Gang were present to promote their new album Unite; a socially conscious combination of old and new styles. "We were called the Jazziacs at that time," remember Dennis "DT" Thomas, Saxophonist. "We were the band behind many groups who were imitating the Motown sound."

In the late 60's they were discovered by a local record producer who wanted to record them. They changed their name to "Kool and The Gang" and in 1969 recorded their first hit, which was named for the group. With the emergence of the 70's came a change in their music style. DT says that they were originally "very raw and funky. With the addition of some (background) vocalists the music became more melodic." However it was years before they had a specific lead vocalist. "Something Sweet" was one women's back-up group that recorded with the band. Their talents can be heard on "Ladies Night".

"We went through a lull near the end of the 70's. [Kool and The Gang] wasn't really a disco band," admits "DT". "Kool and The Gang" re-emerged in the 80's with a new "chic" sound. When James Taylor joined the group in 1980 the music changed again and they became more of a pop group.

Today they have come full circle with Unite. The title song is one "that Joe Jackson (Michael Jackson's father) collaborated on," noted Robert "Kool" Bell. Kool who said that the band has been touring Europe recently explained that Unite came from their expediencies in European countries suffering unrest. "[Or Unite] we're talking about uniting families, peoples and countries. It's a time for everyone to get together," states "Kool"

Yevoli Wins Second Term But Republicans Take Town Council Seats

By Kathy Gerber
and Caroline B. Smith

Last Tuesday's election proved once again the strength of the Republican party in Nassau County with Tom Gulotta winning the County Executive post that Democrats had hoped to capture.

As the clock struck midnight on election night at Republican Headquarters in Westbury, throngs of Nassau Republicans cheered preliminary numbers that showed their party ahead of the Democrats in many races. A Dixieland band played "Ain't She Sweet" as if talking about victory itself while well-wishers waited confidently at the Wheatley Tavern where the Republicans have traditionally celebrated.

"This was the sweetest victory of all. We had to run this year not only against the Democrats... we had to run against anti-incumbent sentiment... but most of all, we had to run against Newsday. Never in my career of public service have I seen such subjective coverage of a political race. However, we have a very sophisticated and intelligent citizenry in Nassau County and they have spoken! And what they have said is that they are going to run this county, not Newsday," said Gulotta.

According to Dave Vieser, Nassau County Press Office, the coverage was ad nauseum. "They took us on as such a crusade," said Vieser, who attributed the quality of coverage not to the reporters or photographers, but to the editorial staff, who wrote the headlines and gave Zwirn front and Gulotta back coverage, who made the photo selections. The Zwirn camp agreed, to an extent. "Did they go overboard, probably, but they felt strongly in what they believed in," citing Newsday is a liberal paper, according to Gerald Moan, chairman, Change Nassau '93. Moan doesn't consider The Wall Street Journal and The New York Times liberal, he said.

"We're disappointed in the electorate," said Moan. Zwirn was the right person and the citizenry will realize their error when Gulotta releases his budget. "It's not the true Republican party, it's the party of greed and patronage," said Moan.

"We're happy, we put a chink in the armor," said Moan. "This is only the first step. The next step is to help responsible people get elected to responsible positions to keep the chain going." At press time, Zwirn had not yet conceded, awaiting official results from the Board of Elections. Unofficial results: Gulotta — 192,000 -51% and Zwirn— 175,000-47%.

On the county level Republicans won every seat including District Attorney, which was retained by Denis Dillon; County Clerk, which went to Karen Murphy, over Doreen Banks, the incumbent Democrat; and County Comptroller which went to Fred Parola, a former state assemblyman. Democrat Lewis Yevoli broke through the Republican stronghold to win Supervisor of the Town of Oyster Bay for the second year in a row. However, his running mates, including Judy Jacobs of Woodbury, were defeated in their attempt to join the town board.

Republicans Leonard Symons, Angelo Delligatti (a former TOB supervisor) and Louis Savinetti captured the three open town board seats.

In North Hempstead despite a jubilant cry heard around 11:30 p.m. that said. "We're getting it back," the Republicans lost any ties to the town where Ben Zwirn, the democratic challenger in the county executive's race, hailed from. May Newburger will replace Zwirn as supervisor next January and the two town council seats and town clerk position were won by the Democratic party.

About 43 percent of registered voters turned out to vote in this election, said the Nassau County Board of Elections.

NEWSBRIEFSPesce Promoted To Manager

Robert Pesce, of Hicksville, has been promoted to manager with the Syosset accounting firm, Marcum & Kiegerman. A senior staff accountant prior to his appointment, Pece has been with the company since 1986. He has a B.A. degree in accounting from SUNY Old Westbury.

Tutoring Program Underway

The Hicksville Youth Council is running a Peer Tutoring program. Youth tutors are needed to help their peers in the areas of reading, foreign language and some sciences.

The philosophy of the Peer Tutoring Program is that teens feel more comfortable with other teens and, therefore, may be more motivated to learn. All tutoring takes place after school at mutually convenient times at the Youth Council. There are also some evening sessions available for those students who may be busy with after-school activities.

All tutors are asked to volunteer at least one hour per week. Tutors will receive a letter from the Youth Council stating that they have performed community service work. This letter is important as colleges and prospective employers look for this type of reference from applicants. If youths are interested in being tutors, they can contact Chris Plackis, Hicksville Youth Council, 822-KIDS.

1,000 Words of Safety

The American Automobile Association is sponsoring its 50th Annual National School Traffic Safety Poster Program. A local affiliate, the Auto Club of New York is inviting students to submit their safety-theme posters for consideration in this nationwide competition. $17,000 in prizes will be awarded to contestants whose treatment of the 20 safety themes reflect merit and originality. The deadline date is February 4, 1994.

Four grand awards of $500 Savings Bonds, will be presented for the best posters in primary, elementary, junior and senior groups. Two hundred and forty other prizes for winning entries will range from $75 to $150 in the four divisions of the program.

Conducted in cooperation with local officials, the program is open to students attending public, parochial or private school up to and including grade 12. School groups or classes can submit combined entries, as well as national youth organizations such as Boys or Girls Club. All entries should be completed under the supervision of an authorized instructor.

Ten first-place posters from the winning K through six grade poster designs will be reproduced and distributed to thousands of elementary schools throughout the country. Reproductions from the seventh through 12 group will also be considered for inclusion in selected AAA publications promoting safety.

Designing Women Display Talents

By Keysha Hedgepath

Oyster Bay's designing women came together recently for a "Decorators' Holiday House" the theme of which was "Home for the Holidays." Twenty prominent designers, many from the local area, choose a room each in the 18th Century Homestead located at Bailey's Arboretum, in Locust Valley and worked their creative magic.

Carolyn Guttilla designed the "sun room," the enclosed porch area of the home, choosing subtle yet cool colors to connote the holiday spirit. One of the highlights of her room was the "Trelice" effect which began as a hand painted design on the floor and culminated in a cross-hatched wood design on all four walls. The natural light emerging from the window gave the light colored room a feeling of warmth.

When asked about the understated nature of her design choices, Guttilla noted that "Interior design is a fashion vehicle and sometimes designers push things too far (with pattern upon pattern or bold colors)."

Guttilla said she inherited her talent from her father, a Harvard graduate who made his livelihood as an Architect. Prior to becoming a designer in her own right, Guttilla worked in design at Bloomingdale's. A resident of Oyster Bay, she currently owns an antique shop in Locust Valley.

The Decorators' Holiday House was not a normal commercial showcase. The primary purpose was to revive the house, restoring walls, floors and ceilings. Contributing designers were asked to decorate and furnish the house in a manner appropriate to the period in which it was occupied by the Baileys and to recreate the Holiday season as it was then. After the program concludes in mid-December, a large portion of the work will remain in place. There will be steps taken to secure more permanent furnishings, so the home can be made available for view on a more permanent basis.

The Baileys' Arboretum is the home of 42 acres of exotic trees, rare shrubs and flower beds. Frank Bailey purchased the estate in 1912 which he called "Munny-Sunk."

The Decorators' Holiday House is sponsored in conjunction with the Locust Valley Chamber of Commerce, Nassau County and the Arboretum Board of Trustees. It will open November 13 and run through December 12. Hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 am to 4 pm. Donation is $12.

Local shopkeepers will have holiday boutiques in the out-building and a Tea Room will also be open to serve morning coffee, lunch and afternoon tea. The festive event will be culminated with a gala parade through the village on December 12 announcing the arrival of Santa Claus.

HHS Is "Getting It Together"

Last Tuesday, Hicksville High School students participated in a Human Relations Day.

"Getting It Together Day" was coordinated by the high school administrators and school social worker Susan Bouton, and was designed to increase student appreciation for diversity. Each year high school students participate in a human relations day that focuses on a theme selected by the administration.

Father Frank Pizzarelli, a well-known speaker and youth advocate kicked off the morning activities with an address on "Wellness and Appreciation for Diversity." Pizzarelli is the director of Hope Ministries.

At the close of Father Frank's address, representatives of the Student Government presented their classmates with a newly developed school code of ethics. Each social studies class was directed to submit proposals for the code of ethics to the student government in the days before the event. Based on these submissions student-leaders drafted the final code.

Activities for the students included two presentations on stereotyping. The first was a dramatic presentation by high school students trained by a consultant. Rabbi David Nessendorf of the Anti-Bias League conducted the second program. Students also participated in exercises and discussions on relevant issues.

The theme of the day was carried over into an evening workshop for parents of high school students. Father Frank will present a workshop entitled "Communicating With Your Teenager." The workshop focused on survival strategies for parents and teenagers.

TO YOUR HEALTH

By RICHARD H. BLAU, M.D.

Arthritis Treatment - A Comprehensive Approach Part I - The Role of the Rheumatologist

This article begins a four part series on the comprehensive approach to the diagnosis and treatment of arthritis and disorders of the muscles and joints. This series will include an overview on the use of medications, the role of exercise, and finally the goals of nutrition. We will begin with the role of the rheumatologist in the diagnosis and management of rheumatic disorders.

Arthritis is a general term meaning joint inflammation. There are over 100 types of arthritis, each one requiring its own diagnosis and special treatment. Rheumatology is a branch of internal medicine dedicated to the scientific study and treatment of inflammatory disorders. An individual is recognized as a rheumatologist (arthritis expert) if the physician has completed several years of specialized training after medical school in the treatment of rheumatic disorders.

The most common reason for a patient to seek help from a rheumatologist is for evaluation of significant muscle or joint pain. Since most forms of arthritis result in pain, the first goal of the rheumatologist is to find out the cause of the pain.

The guidelines to proper diagnosis of rheumatic disorders include a complete medical history, comprehensive physical examination, specific blood tests, and diagnostic x-rays. Once this information has been evaluated, a specific diagnosis can be made, and an individualized program of treatment commenced. A program of treatment will include the use of anti-inflammatory medications to combat the arthritis, instruction in specific exercises to maintain joint mobility and, finally, specific dietary manipulation to reduce joint stress. These treatment programs are the specialty of the rheumatologist.

Next week: Part II-Arthritis medications.

Christmas Tree From Hicksville

The 10th EAB Plaza Tree Lighting Ceremony will have added significance for Long Islander Gene DiGennaro. The 79-year-old Hicksville resident will watch with great pride as the 80 ft. Norway Spruce he planted in his back yard 43 years ago will at the flick of a switch be illuminated with 35,000 lights.

The lighting of Long Island's Christmas Tree, signaling the unofficial beginning of the holiday season on Long Island, will take place Saturday, December 4, from 5:30-6pm, at EAB Plaza, Hempstead Tpk., in Uniondale. More than 25,000 spectators are expected to attend the event, which is sponsored by the DeMatteis Organizations and Euram Management, Inc.

Co-hosts for the 1993 tree lighting are News 12 Long Island personalities Lea Tyrell and Joe Cioffi. News 12 will have live coverage beginning at 5:30 pm.

"We are very excited about this year's tree lighting," says Anthony Vaccarello, senior vice president of the DeMatteis Organizations and chairman of the tree lighting committee. "This year is a special milestone marking our tenth anniversary, and we are planning a program and festivities that will be exciting and fun for everyone in the family."

Pre-event activities will begin at 4 p.m. Of special interest to the young children will be a popular model railroad exhibit by the Long Island Model Railroad Club. Spectators are encouraged to arrive early and park free of charge at the Travelers Building and Bishop Kellenberg Memorial High School located adjacent to the EAB Building. Additional free parking will be available until 5:30 p.m. at Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

New Service Benefits Elderly

A new computer-based service to help the disabled, the elderly and the homebound living alone recently became available to our community. Called "How Are You Today?" this service calls the homebound up to three times a day to ensure that they're all right. If the person needs assistance or is unable to answer, help is summoned immediately.

Started by Harold and Bonnie Lansday, husband and wife co-owners of LinCo/Hi-Yield Office Machine Service and Sales, the business relies on the power of the computer to schedule and place phone calls. "The hardware and software are available in today's world so that technology can and should do something beneficial for the senior citizen," said Harold. "Besides, using the computer to make calls keeps the costs to a minimum."

"I know many people who would like to check up on a parent, but can't because they don't have the time to get into long phone calls. Having the computer phone them solve this problem and also ensures their well-being," added Bonnie. "Priced at less than $1 per day, this service should bring peace of mind to the families of those single seniors living alone."

For more information, call 741-9373 for a recorded message with further details. No salesman will call you unless you request it. "We're not into a hard sell," emphasized Harold. "We believe in letting our products and services sell themselves."

Honor America's Veterans

"Let it be your pride, therefore, to show all men everywhere not only what good soldiers you are, but also what good men you are, keeping yourselves fit and straight in everything, and pure and clean through and through. Let us set for ourselves a standard so high that it will be a glory to live up to it, and then let us live up to it and add a new laurel to the crown of America."

— Woodrow Wilson, in his message to the United States forces, September 4, 1917.

This week, on November 11, we will all be asked to pause and remember those who served our country.

Veterans Day was originally designated to commemorate the armistice ending World War I in 1918 and to honor the veterans of the armed services. This year marks the 75th anniversary of the original observance.

Unfortunately, since 1918, America has seen many more of its sons and daughters risk their lives in the line of service. From the two World Wars up to the most recent Persian Gulf War and the ongoing presence in Somalia, soldiers have unselfishly laid their lives on the line in the completion of their duties.

Although it was not meant to be, even such missions as America's presence in Somalia, which began as a humanitarian, peace-keeping effort, resulted in the deaths of American soldiers.

As the years go on we continue to thank our brave soldiers with Veterans Day services throughout the nation. Our thanks and appreciation also go to the patriotic members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who remind us throughout the year that our fellow Americans unselfishly stood on foreign land to defend our rights.

We also thank the families of these brave veterans who watched and supported their loved ones overseas with the fear of the unknown. Through the strength and courage they instilled in these brave soldiers, they too, must be commended.

A Letter from Lulubelle...

Do you remember when you were in school—a long time ago—and discipline was very strict, in fact, we even received marks on our report cards for "deportment"...and if we went home from school and complained to our parents that the teacher had "yelled" at us or made us stand in the hall, did we receive any consolation?...Far from it!...As one old style mother said, "If the teacher said you done it, you done it" and what we received was not consolation but an additional punishment at home...I don't actually know anyone who went to school when students were hit with a ruler, but old literature certainly contains many tales of "whippings", and I'm sure we all deplore that thought...However, learning takes place in a disciplined environment, and I don't want my grandkids in a school that's run so loosely that no teacher can teach...there are some really poor teachers; we all know them; we all had some; but, in general, they're a very good group—teaching is hard work, physically and emotionally, and they deserve respect—and I think that all parents should teach their children this respect—and back the teacher...The beneficiaries will be our children...Here's for orderly classrooms where young minds can flourish!!

Yours, Lulubelle

Reservations About Redistricting

As a parent of former Willet Avenue School students, I am appalled at the decision of our school board to redistrict classes! What possible purpose could this action serve? Haven't our children been bounced around enough? This is not the action of a school board concerned with the welfare of its students. And that makes me wonder...". What is the school board up to now?"

Are we to gird ourselves for more school closings? This is the only real reason I can determine for redistricting at this time. Why else would the board be so willing to traumatize Hicksville's children yet one more time? Certainly not for the children's sake!

Travel Trends

With the chill in the air having us all think "sun," the Bahamas Tourist Office has introduced its "Hip to Hop" packages to encourage travelers to become acquainted with the numerous destinations and cultural diversity of the Bahamas. The new programs offer a taste of its many islands, with airfare and two-island accommodations including Nassau/Paradise Island, Grand Bahama Island, Abaco, Bimini, Eleuthera and Exuma. All these sites offer uncrowded beaches, luxuriant landscapes and a variety of land/water sports. In Nassau/Paradise Island, a choice of night life activities and on the others, unspoiled, tranquil relaxation. Cost saving packages until mid-December start at $265. Details from your travel agent or call tourist offices for Nassau/Paradise Isle: (800) 327-9019; Grand Bahama: (800) 448-3386; and Out Islands (800) 688-4752.

If Paradise Island's your choice, three popular resorts are offering special "sunsational" winter rates, some less than last year's. The luxurious 1,200-room Paradise Island Resort & Casino's restaurants, golf and tennis, boutiques, spectacular musical revues and huge gambling casino for lively days and nights, the elegant, quiet 71-room Ocean Club Golf and Tennis Resort's 12th century cloistered gardens, with special low room rates from $235 and the 100-room laid back atmosphere of the Paradise Beach Resort, which offers rates at 25 percent lower than last winter, starting at $115...and complete relaxation. Your travel agent has particulars.

With the elections of Mr. Pfaender, Mr. Black and Mrs. Lafferty, I had hoped the humanity would be brought back to our school board at last. Has the public been misled again? My own children, who are no longer in elementary school would not be affected by the redistricting, but that doesn't mean I can ignore the welfare of those who are! How can the school board?

For the last few years, parents of school age children in Hicksville have had to fight and plead and try to protect their children, not with the school board, but from the board. That's why there were so many upheavals during the recent elections. Here we go again!

Yours Truly,
Cecelia Yonick

Speaking of relaxation, we met friends for a revisit to a favorite, more-local resort: New Jersey's Scanticon resort in Princeton, just an hour and a half from home, beautifully attired inside and out, in autumnal glory. Its wooded acres are canopied in magnificent color and lush chrysanthemums fill the lawns. At night, trees are necklace with tiny lights, all of which we enjoyed as we lounged, swam...and ate too much from its enormous gourmet buffets.

Travel industry leaders will convene in January in Madrid for a Travel Safety & Security Summit to discuss ways of dealing with increasing threats of violence against travelers worldwide. (The latest tragedy involved a terrorist's attack in Egypt, wounding many and killing two American visitors.) The meeting is expected to draw top executives and government leaders who are determined to combat crime and terrorism involved in the world's largest industry.

On the subject of travel safety, the American Automobile Association has issued a six-page self-help brochure with tips for safety on the road, at hotels and while sightseeing. Drivers: Make sure your car is in top operating condition and thoroughly plan your routes in advance. More reminders in these mount-guard, take-precaution, keep-watch times: If you're new to the area, discover which parts to avoid and ask the car rental agency for map and directions. Familiarize yourself with your rental auto before leaving.

Take A Minute...

LI Library

Thin Ice, Meg O'Brien, Perfect Crime/Doubleday, 343 pp., $18.50. Meg O'Brien, whose earlier book, The Keeper, was described as a "nail-biter, guaranteed to keep you up late," has done it again with Thin Ice. This reviewer, at least, having read half of it gave up, put off everything else she should have been doing, and sat down and finished it. Since the book becomes more suspense-filled as it nears its end, it was the only thing to do.

O'Brien has included a number of topics here, from drug companies that take advantage of the government and the public, to child molestation to the martial arts, and she makes them all work together in a truly seamless fashion.

This is the story of Nikki Ryan, a 34-year old professor of mythology and comparative religions at Georgetown University, whose sister, Mary Clare Ryan, a young scientist, has just died in an automobile accident. Nikki, who had been feeling estranged from her much-loved sister, is devastated. She goes to her department head to ask for a heavier teaching burden, so she can lose herself in her work, and instead is told to take a semester off.

In a sudden desire to get away from Georgetown and the whole Washington scene, Nikki decides to take an airline ticket that Mary Clare had bought when she was planning to attend a medical conference in Los Angeles, and fly to the west coast.

In Los Angeles she meets again Dan Rossi, a man she had thought herself in love with, but who she now thinks betrayed her with Mary Clare. While in Los Angeles and after meeting with people who had known Mary Clare and her work in the scientific community, she becomes convinced that her sister's death was no accident. Mary Clare had apparently been working on something that was potentially a gold mine for someone. Nikki becomes friendly with Jack Blake, an executive in the pharmaceutical firm that is sponsoring the conference, and Jack warns her against resuming her relationship with Dan. When Dan finds out she is seeing Jack, he, in turn, warns her against the other man. Nikki is frantic, not knowing whom, if anyone, to trust.

In the end, she realizes that the only one she can really depend on is herself and Nikki's development as a person is one of the most interesting parts of Thin Ice. Be warned. Don't start it unless you have time to finish it.

Holy Family Kindergarteners Allison McNicholas and Peter Mangus show off the apples they picked, at the orchard in Fort Salonga.

Kindergarteners Enjoy The Fruit Of Fall

The Kindergarten children from Holy Family School experienced something new and exciting. They visited Fort Salonga Apple Orchard which has over 4,000 dwarfed apple trees. The trees are under 7 feet tall, with branches starting 18 inches from the ground.

Upon arriving, the children were given a short talk on how trees are grafted and were shown on model trees. Each child then received a picking bag and our tour continued through the orchard. There they were shown the correct way to pick an apple; twist it off, don't just pull it off.

After the children filled their bags with apples, they returned to their seats on the apple crates for a glass of cider and a snack. It was a fun and educational trip enjoyed by all.

The group will be going back to Europe in December but hopes to be touring in America soon. Their most recent American appearance was last month at Westbury Music Fair.

"Kool and The Gang's" musical future will represent 360 degrees of musical style. "We would like to do more vintage "Kool and The Gang" says DT. Unite now features old favorites revisited such as "Who's Gonna Take The Weight" and "Summer Madness" re-done as "Summer". They also have a new crop of lead vocalists and musicians. The group includes: Skip Martin, vocalist/Trumpet; Odean Mays, Lead/Keyboard and Shawn McQuiller Lead/Guitar. When asked by Heatherton why their music has endured DT responded "We understand the form and different cycles that music goes through."

The "Breakfast Club" is a variety show that has been on the air for more than 35 years. The hour long program originated at the Franklin National Bank in Garden City and featured Ray Heatherton, television's Merry Mailman, as host.

Barbara Streisand, Bob Hope and James Stewart are among the celebrities that have appeared on the show. In February Ray Heatherton retired and placed his nephew Dave Heatherton at the helm.

The program has been taping at Broadway Mall for the past two months. It is conducted in front of a live audience.

Boredom And Your Child

By Edward R. Walsh

Mrs. Jenkins, a young mother with an unusually optimistic outlook, was worried about Susie. Her seven-year-old bundle of energy had grown listless, peevish, tired of TV, toys and teasing neighborhood boys. With her two best friends at camp she had no one to play with.

"Mom, there's nothing to do around here," became Susie's mournful complaint, a complaint which chipped away at Mrs. Jenkins' composure. She offered her daughter several suggestions, but none was received enthusiastically. Summer wasted away as "Sorrowful Susie" sank deeper into doldrums. Her mother's early summer optimism rapidly wilted like hyacinths in August heat.

Does this domestic drama ring familiar? Such scenes become commonplace as more American families succumb to the sickness of our modern age: boredom. Like death and taxes, boredom has become a burden for citizens from all walks of life.

"Boredom is our biggest moral problem," noted John Garvey, Catholic columnist for the weekly magazine Commonweal. "Drugs, marital breakdown, sexual promiscuity and television are all symptoms not the problem."

"The problem is that we must always be interested, distracted, diverted; we're not willing to pause long enough to learn what we're avoiding so frantically."

The vague knowledge that something is wrong with the way we feel most of the time has led us to a dreadful self-consciousness. Psychoanalyst Erich Fromm seconds that emotion, stating that chronic boredom constitutes one of the major psychopathological phenomena in contemporary society.

The young and the restless are especially vulnerable to the dispiriting influence of boredom. Minnesota psychiatrist M. Robert Wilson, a specialist in youth problems, estimated that as many as twenty percent of our country's adolescents suffer significant boredom.

Several years ago, a survey conducted in the Chicago area revealed youth's own perception of the situation. All but two of the 180 suburban Catholic high school juniors surveyed listed boredom as their number one problem.

Such overwhelming response tends to indicate that society is sowing the deadly seed of boredom in our junior generation as

"inadequate stimulation."

Psychologist Maynard Shelly defines boredom as "inadequate stimulation, but that some of us particularly Americans, can have stimulation thresholds so high that it takes extraordinary measures to keep us from yawning. Shelly believes that problem will get worse."

How can today's parents help their kids cope with this common cold of the emotions? First, accept it as a reality that can't be ignored or minimized. A bored child or teenager may become a nuisance constantly demanding stimulating activity. Parents should recognize this as a cry for help.

"Boredom is a civil war in which two parts of the personality are involved in an energy-draining conflict," points out author Sam Keen who holds a doctorate in philosophy from Princeton University. "At a deep level we are psychologically employed and need new goals and passions to excite our imagination."

Parents can set an example by broadening their own interests and sharing their enthusiasm with other family members. Feelings are contagious.

Your children will absorb leisure attitudes as they observe and participate according to their abilities. Your own interest in quilting, needle work and wood working, dress designing, dollhouse construction, gardening can serve as seedbeds of enthusiasm for your youngster.

Investigate opportunities for your children's growth by contacting public, private, no profit and commercial resources in the community. Methods are available at every age level and in every situation states Judson Gooding, a counselor.

Teach your child a willingness to defer satisfactions, to wait and work for what he or she wants. "If there is one central universal prescription for avoiding boredom he adds, "it is this: diversify your interests and involvements into areas and activities that are beyond your normal routine."

Helping our children wrestle with their momentary unhappiness is the most effective thing parents can do to prevent problems from cropping up later on in life. As one astute psychologist noted: "A certain power of enduring is essential to a happy life and it is one of the things that ought to be taught to the young."

Your children may never thank you for teaching such a difficult lesson. Nonetheless, quietly congratulate yourself for having helped them handle boredom creatively. It will be a skill they will pass along to the next generation of the young and the restless.

SGT. ALFRED L. PLESSER (left) receives a Bronze Star for meritorious service as a medical liaison in Korea from Maj. Samuel G. Trask, troop commander, Tokyo Army Hospital, Japan. Forty years later, (right) Major General Joon-yeol So congratulates him after presentation of "Ambassador of Peace" certificate and a medal.

Remembering The Forgotten War

By William S. Dobkin

This Veteran's Day, Great Neck lawyer Alfred Plessner has renewed memories of the 35 years in which he served as an active and reserve member of the United States Army, especially of his stint during the Korean War.

Plessner, who received two Bronze Stars, entered the Army as a private in July 1942 and progressed to Staff Sergeant and fought in the Battle of the Bulge with the 75th Infantry Division. After World War II, he joined the Army Reserve and was activated when the Korean War broke out.

He recently returned to Korea, between Sept. 26 and Oct. 9, with his wife Marlene, together with 200 combat veterans, on the invitation of General Joon-yeol So, ROKA, ret., president of the Korean War Veterans Association and the Republic of South Korea. They took part in a celebration of the 45th anniversary of the formation of the Republic of Korea armed forces and a reception by President Kim-Young Sam, the newly elected head-of-state of Korea.

The occasion also marked the 40th anniversary of the truce, ending the Korean War.

The following are excerpts from Plessner's personal account of his revisit of Korea:

I had memories of a war-torn Korea where cold, chaos, destruction and despair prevailed. Today, it's very difficult to contrast the death and devastation that existed there during 1950-53 to what exists in South Korea now. Teaming super highways cross the country, modern skyscrapers dot the landscape and 747s arrive and depart Kimpo Airport.

Members of the United Nations forces, especially the Americans who fought in Korea for freedom and democracy, are proud and honored when they revisit Korea and see what a modern country it is as a result of freedom and the free enterprise system.

All our expenses were paid by the Republic of Korea and the Korean War Veterans Association. The returning veterans and their guests were guests of honor at a parade and reception at the request of the Minister of National Defense and the President of the Republic of Korea held in Kaeryoungdae (Taegon).

What we found most interesting and exciting was our visit to the DMZ (demilitarized zone between North and South Korea) at Panmunjom, where we got to walk on the North Korean side of the conference table—protected by ROK and American soldiers. There was a feeling of pride as we veterans of so many different lands stood together with our guests, shoulder-to-shoulder to honor our war dead at the National Cemetery and memorial monument to the American Forces, flags representing all of the 50 states and territories.

We were honored and proud to place a wreath in silent remembrance.

Any veteran member, who was in combat during the period of June 25, 1950 to July 27, 1953, is eligible for the revisit program, which includes spouses or any immediate member of the family. The program also includes Gold Star Mothers and wives of MIA or POWs.
